MINERS OF COLORADO SEND MAN TO DULUTH

JAS. KIRWIN OF MINERS EXECU-

Colorado Becoming a Veritable Si beria.-Peabodyism is Military Tyranny.-Eastern Capitalists Responsible for the Trouble.—No Violence is Committed by the Miners.— Awful Deeds of Persecution.

The Labor World has devoted considerable space during the past three months to the Colorado miner's strike. Its correspondence on the subject was received fresh from the field, and at Bell, who threatened to shoot him as all times has proved to be reliable. This week the Western Federation of Miners sent one of the members of their executive board to this city, are right. Up to this time there has a Mr. James Kirwin, who is visiting among the unions and securing financial aid for the striking miners. Mr. Kirwin is a true type of the They western miners. He is making a three. most favorable impression among the dants. trade unionists of Duluth. His mild pen a manner, and his honest, gentlemanly so on. appearance is winning for him a host

He complimented the Labor World for its defense of the cause of the miners, and was pleased to note the friendly feeling existing here.

The Western Federation of Miners does not affiliate with American Federation of Labor, and for that reason it was expected that he would have a hard row to hoe, but it is not so The most fraternal feeling exists, and the local unions are giving freely to help the victims of capitalistic anarchy in Colorado.

Answers False Charges
Mr. Kirwin was shown an article in a capitalistic magazine purported to have en written by a disinterested party in Colorado, in which the miners were condemned most strongly. 'It is false throughout," he said. "It accuses us $10.00. of espousing the cause of socialism. and says that this in itself should defeat us. The fact is that while our convention declared for the public ownership of mines and other means of production it has had no immediate effect upon the politics of the state In Teller county, the seat of most of the trouble just now, there were less than 100 socialist votes polled at the last election. Investigation by the coroner's jury, however, developed that the explosion was either a conspiracy on the part of the mine owners, or it was accidental. The explosion had the desired effect so far as the mine owners were concerned, for the militia was kept for some time longer and martial law was completely observed.

NO PAY FOR SICKNESS SAYS COMMON COUNCIL

ASSISTANT CITY ATTORNEY COM-PELLED TO PAY FOR SUBSTITUTE.

Council Adopts Same Policy That Is Criticized By People In General Against Selfish Coporations.— City Employees Must Loose If They Get Sick.-Some Aldermen Use "Laboringmen" as a Shield to Defend Their Position.

The citty council spent fully twenty minutes last Monday evening fighting over the payment of $77.00 to a substitute for assistant city attorney Holmes. While Mr. Holmes was prosecuting the Edwards-Wood case in St. Paul he became ill, and was confined to his bed for three weeks.

During his illness it became necessary to employ an assistant to care for municipal court cases. A requisition was sent to the council for pay for this substitute: It was recommended for passage by the committee, but Alderman Walker objected to it. He said that he did not believe that the city should allow salary to an employe during illness. He was supported in his remarks by Aldermen Sang and Shaef-fer. All of them shielded themselves behind the excuse, the the "workingmen" were not allowed pay for loss of time during sickness. They contended that there should be no discrimination between city employees. The fact remains, however, that steady city employes are seldom docked for loss of time during sickness. To be consistent some of the Aldermen who are absent from meetings of the council should refuse to take their salary for those meetings. But that would be taking the matter home where their argument would not apply.

It is the opinion of the Labor World that Mr. Holmes should receive his pay for the time that he was sick. He beforming a duty for the people. It should not be the purpose of the city council to follow the methods of selfish corporations in matters of this kind. Indeed many corporations recognize that it is a duty they owe to their employes to care for them during illness. Surely a city government can afford to be just as magnanimous as a private corporation. No laboring man who wants to be fair would ever object to this policy. His usual generous spirit would prompt him to accord the same privilege to a brain worker, that he would be pleased to enjoy himself.

CARNEGIE'S PHILANTROPY.

It has been announced at the office of the Carnegie Steel Company that Andrew Carnegie has set apart $4,000 .-000, the interest upon which is to form a perpetual fund to relieve workmen injured in the Carnegie plants and to aid the heirs of those killed while at work. Married men will receive $1 daily while idle and single men will get 75 cents, while children under sixteen will receive 10 cents daily. In case an employe is killed while at work $500 will be given his family, while $100 will go to the family of any child under sixteen which meets death while at work.

The other announcement is to the effect that wages at the Carnegie plants will be reduced $12,000,000 a pear. Carnegie can lay aside the $4,000,000 for the perpetual fund and still have $8,000,000 eft for free libraries out of what he intends keeping from his employes. Carnegie is very liberal.

GAMBLING IS ROUTED FROM LOWELL BLOCK

ENANTS OGJECT TO QUIET PO-ER GAME GOING ON THERE.

Claimed That City Employe Rented Room for Gambling Purposes and Sub-let it to a Prominent Ward Palitician. 'Many People Saw Outfit When it Was Removed From Building. New Place is Not

A few knights of the cloth were very much disappointed the other evening when they found that they were obliged to give up quarters in the Lowell block. It seems that a certain city employe had rented a room from the agent of the building. He in turn subilet it to a prominent young ward politician. The consideration is said to have been $1 per day. When the room was fitted out, it was said to contain but two card tables, some chairs and a tin box. Everything went along smoothly for two weeks, until Saturday evening, when the tenant of the building learned what was going on, and then there was something doing. No one was arrested. It is so hard, you know, to catch people in the act of gambling. The green cloth, the cards and the chairs don't count for anything. That does not prove that men were gambling. Even the character of the men, with an upto-date vagrancy ordinance, was not sufficient. The police theory is that they must be caught in the act of dealing out cards and taking the money. Possibly this is true, but it usually de-pends upon who the parties are. In this case no one was arrested. All that is known is that a dray was seen to back up to the door of the building. A little later it was seen to drive away loaded with the full equipment for a very inducing poker game A tenant of the building who preends to know something about the affair said to the Labor World that all the parties are known to be occupants of the Lowell building. The city employe who rented the rooms in the first place: the ward politician who sub leased them and who ran the game, and the men who patronized the game are all known to him. It is not known where the outfit was moved to, but it is safe to say that it will not long remain idle.

THE UNIVERSITIES HORSES IN BATTLE; TWO GOOD STORIÉS

Major J. A. Watrous, U. S. A., in the Kansas City Star.

AMES F. LYON, of the First Wisconsin cavalry, told me this story that way practicing on their famous about a good horse in battle—a story which General O. H. La-Grange, of that regiment, now governor of the national home for soldiers in California confirms:

"We had in our company a young German named Schultz. His horse was his especial pride. Sometimes Schultz went to sleep without rations, but his horse never. No matter how scarce or how hard it was to get forage the young German's horse always had an evening feed, a thorough rubbing down. in two languages—broken English and in two languages—broken English and German. Many a time have I seen Schultz skirmish for a lunch for his horse when we halted to make coffee horse when we halted to make coffee cal time. It was a hot fight and no time for the general to limber to the times English. Some of our horses showed lack of care; Frank's showed overcare; was always in good order; in as his master of him. When the Atlantic campaign opened, in May, 1864, use. there was not a prouder soldier or a lit prettier horse than Schultz and Frank

"Our first fight of note in that campaign was at Varnell's station May 9. Somebody—never mind who—made a mess of it. Our little brigade, the Second of the First cavalry division, consisting of the Second and Fourth Indiana and the First Wisconsin, commanded by Colonel O. H. LaGrange, manded by Colonel O. H. LaGrange, was thrown against General Joe Wheelwas thrown against General Joe Wheeler's entire command and we fought it all day. We started to charge, but were ordered to fight on foot. We were already under fire and in considerable confusion and only a portion of the command heard the order, so it happened that some of us fought as cavalry and some os infantry. Soluta realry and some as infantry. Schultz remained mounted and did heroic service. Early in the fight his pet was shot. As the animal made but little fuss over it and steadled down quickly his rider representation. his rider remained in the battle all day, having traveled many miles in the performance of important and dangerous tasks, the wounded animal seeming to enter into the spirit of the work as completely as his master. That night at 9 o'clock the brigade camped.

The moment Frank was unsaddled he lay down. Shultz thought it was ccause the horse, like himself. red, and, after patting him and tell-HAVANA, Feb. 10.—Major General ing him in both languages what a M. Young, U. S. and thanking him for carrying him safely through one of the hottest battles, he busied himself with suppergetting. In the forage bag were several ears of corn. After his own repast of black coffee, crackers and uncooked white pork, such a banquet as many a soldier has been more thankful for than he was for the feast of last Thanksgiving, Shultz shelled the corn and took it to Frank. The horse did not welcome him as usual, did not rest his head on his master's shou'der and look, if he did not speak, thanks for such a master. He didn't hear Shultz announce in German that he was coming with a double ration. Frank was dead and stiffening, showing that soon after lying down life had departed.

"When Schultz realized that his pet. was dead he threw the corn down. dropped by the side of the animal, tenderly laid one hand on his neck and with the other gently rubbed his head, as he had done many time before, and sobbed like a child. In talking about his loss the next day he said: 'My poor had we had you have had you Frank could not tell me he was badly nurt and ask to go to the hospital, as would have done had I been shot. He carried me all day as if he thought it was his duty and that things would go wrong if he didn't, and when the battle was over and I was getting supper he lay down and died. That horse was a better soldier than I am—than any man in the regiment. No one would have expected it of us, yet I expected it of Frank and he did not fail me. I shall never think as much of anything again as long as I live. With this outburst the poor fellow broke down again, and none of his comrades made light of the young German's sorrow; they knew it was sin-

That was a story of a good horse and a good soldier. Now let me tell you about one of the trials of a good soldier with a bad horse. The late General John A. Kellogg, who fought his way from lieutenant of a company to com-mander of a brigade, bought a magnificent roan a few days before General Grant began the closing campaign. It was a high spirited creature, tall, powerfully built and speedy. Kellogg was greatly pleased with his new possession His staff had to do a good deal of fast riding for a week before the closing scenes of the great contest began. The general seemed to want everyone in the Fifth corps to see his handsome roan, so he rode from camp to camp, making social calls, his staff, made up largely of new riders, bobbing, and joiting behind him. There, was not a man of Kellogg's military family but regretted the birth of that roan. He was joiting their young lives away.

The day of reckoning came at the battle of Grayville Run, or, as some call it, White Oak Road, March 31, 1865. Kellogg massed his brigade in a piece of woods. About 10 cclock it became necessary to move quickly to a His staff had to do a good deal of fast that way practicing on their famous "Yell" song. Just as the brigade was in line and almost before it had got its beating heart well under foot the enemy poured a vast sheet of lead at us. "Stand fast, men; hold your ground!" commanded Kellogg from his roan. Then came another volley. That, with the roar and the rattle Union guns, was too much for the roan. He bounded into the air and seemed to turn around, facing the rear, before he struck the ground. In spite of Kellogg's weight on the bits and his frantic whoas, the roan "limbered" to loving pat and a good night, Frank, frantic whoas, the roan "limbered" to two languages—broken English and the rear at a greater speed than he had instead of preparing his own lunch.

While the rest of us stayed in our tents and read or played cards, Schultz would keep Frank's company for hours, sometimes talking German to him and sometimes Talking German to him and sometimes. The little of the general to limber to the rear. Just as the chief of staff ordered an orderly to go to the general's rescue and give him a safe horse I saw Keland give him a safe horse I saw Kellogg slide down to the tail of the flying roan and start on a dead run for the eral Kellogg made on his roan that and the next day would make a thick book wholly unfit for family and church say that it was a very uncommon thing for a horse to try to get away from a battle. A thousand men longingly looked for a chance to "limber" to the rear and "cool coffee" during a fight unless wounded, were as unconcerned, apparently, as if they had been pulling plows or reapers. The man in battle who was as unconcerned as one holding a plow or driving a reaper was a fool. Men who say they were as happy and contented in a battle as while at home on the farm or eating a Christmas dinner pie. Such a thing is impo sible, unless, as stated, the man is fool; and fools didn't enlist.

All the men at the ceremony wore bright blue jackets, very tight black trousers, and no fewer than three waistcoats each. The women donned spotless white head-dresses, gaily em-broidered bodices, clocked stockings and bright sashes of variagated hue. Owing to the peculiarity of their head-dresses, the ladies of Plougastel wear their hair cut quite short, while the men let theirs grow as long as it will.
