A DREAM OF THANKSGIVING - - - By COLLIER

LABOR LOOKS AHEAD

By DR. WILLIAM WITHERS

THREATS TO SOCIAL SECURITY

Labor must defend its right to unemployment insurance. This hard-won right can easily be nullified by an anti-labor administration of our unemployment insurance systems. Unemployment levels may reach ten to twenty millions. We must be prepared for heavy unemployment when it comes, by maintaining administrative procedures which are fair to labor.

It is true, of course, that the unemployment insurance provisions as they now stand are inadequate in many ways to meet serious post-war unemployment. Many domestic civil service and war workers are left unprotected by the present laws. It is possible also that even with the heavy taxes paid into the funds from high war wages the drain upon these funds in a period of heavy unemployment would make them insolvent. In many states the benefit rates are far too low to allow decent support for a man and his dependents while unemployed. In spite of these serious weaknesses, the greatest threat to unemployment insurance comes not from the inadequacies of the statutes, but from the growing unfairness with which they are administered. In many states a variety of devices have been developed to keep people from obtaining their unemployment benefits. For example, workers have been required to accept lower wages than they have been receiving or forego their benefit rights. If they move to another state in search of jobs for which they are fitted, they may also lose their benefits. In one state, West Virginia, this has already happened. The court has decided that a worker who will not accept a job in that state cannot draw benefits for which taxes have been paid. This decision, in effect, ties workers in West Virginia to the West Virginia labor market.

These practices of state administrations have increased the solvency of state unemployment insurance funds at the expense of the workers. They have not, however, fulfilled the purposes of the Social Security Act. Unemployment insurance systems were not established to maintain solvent funds, but to provide benefits for the unemployed. In the event of great post-war unemployment, there will be a strong tendency to employ these and many other practices to maintain the solvency of the funds. Where the state governments involved are controlled by administrators with a States Rights philosophy, this tendency will be extremely strong. These administrators fear that if the funds become insolvent, a national unemployment insurance system will be adopted.

These tendencies are not new. There is a brand of American conservatism which goes on record for the extension of the coverage and the benefits of all kinds of social security legislation and, by dishonest or weak administration, prevents this legislation from having its intended effects.

More serious than the denial of benefit rights is the tendency to use our unemployment insurance systems to force down wages. If there is heavy post-war unemployment, will it not prove very effective to threaten a man with loss of unemployment insurance benefits if he will not take a lower paid job? It is being done now. Labor must start immediately to prevent the administrative practices which lead to this wage cutting. If labor falls asleep at the post, it may soon find that the Social Security system has become a great mechanism to lower wages after the war.

Union Head Sees Permanent FEPC

New York City (ILNS).—Citing the assertion by Leo Cherne, in his book, "The Rest of Your Life," that "increased tension, discrimination and intolerance are inevitable in a post-war America suffering from unemployment," A. Philip Randolph, president of the Brotherhood of Sleeping Car Porters, AFL, declares that a permanent Fair Employment Practice Commission is "the only legislation which can sharply decrease race conflict when reconversion gets under way." Randolph's statement is contained in a letter to the Workers Defense League Bulletin.

Randolph declares believers in fair play for racial minorities can pass the permanent FEPC bill by insisting on approval of the bill in Congress. He urges the following action: 1—Wire or write your two Senators and Representatives, urging them to support the bill without amendment as to coverage and enforcement. 2—Secure similar action from your church, union, lodge, social club—and your friends and neighbors, too.

Demand the Union Label.

Let Us Say "THANK YOU"

By RUTH TAYLOR

Most of us were brought up in homes where the fine old custom of saying Grace prevailed and we learned to daily express our gratitude to the Giver of all Gifts. "In our home we say Grace" meant something very real and fine.

Saying Grace is a custom that should be part of our lives today, for we have much for what to be thankful. Although the road is rough and the toll greater than we can yet conceive, we know now that victory lies ahead.

What are we thankful for this Thanksgiving Day?

We are thankful that we have learned much in the years since war came upon us. We have lost much, but we have learned what things are essential and what we can do without. External things can never again have as vital a meaning to us.

We are thankful that we have in the misery of those days learned that the ideals of which we boasted on holidays and at campaign times are living things for which we are willing to sacrifice.

We are thankful that we have learned how to spend less time thinking about what we want for ourselves, more time concentrating on our duties to others and more time enjoying those mercies we already possess.

We are thankful that we have learned to cooperate with our neighbors and how to put aside old differences to work with our fellow men, finding in the stress of emergency that the divisions that divide us are less important than the things that we have in common and that unite us.

We are thankful that we have learned the inner satisfaction in work and sacrifice and in being on the side of justice and mercy.

We are thankful that we have learned the privilege of living in the greatest hour of history, that we can in that hour be of service to our brothers everywhere, whatever their class, creed or color.

As Chesterton so aptly said—"The way to love anything is to realize that it might be lost." We have learned what we really love—for that knowledge while there is yet time to keep it, we are thankful.

Fred Umhey Cited For Fine Services

Secretary Patterson Presents Merit Award To Official Of ILGWU

Washington, D. C. — Frederick F. Umhey, Executive Secretary of the International Ladies Garment Workers Union, on October 30 was awarded the certificate for Meritorious Civilian Service for assisting the War Department "during a critical period in the mobilization and expansion of war industry." The award was presented by Robert P. Patterson, Under Secretary of War.

Mr. Umhey has served during the past three and a half years as a member of a special board to advise the Under Secretary on the issuance of "Necessity Certificates" which expedited the building by private industry of five billion dollars worth of new facilities for munitions production.

In presenting the award, Mr. Patterson said:

"You have responded to every call made upon you by the War Department, serving without glory or compensation and without regard to personal considerations in frequent and often protracted absences from your home and normal duties. By your self-sacrificing efforts, you have made an important contribution to the marshalling of our industrial resources for war. You have earned the profound appreciation of the War Department."

Land Sees Merchant Marine Employment Chances Good For Years After The War

UNIONS, OPERATORS AGREE ON PROGRAM TO BENEFIT INDUSTRY

Washington, D. C. (ILNS).—Steps to speed the recruitment of seamen and to retain men on the merchant ships supplying the fronts were made here at an industry-wide conference, at which unions and operators agreed on a program of proposals to benefit the merchant marine and its employees.

The outlook for continued employment in the merchant marine is better than in industries ashore, Vice Admiral E. S. Land, War Shipping Administrator, said in opening the conference.

"In my considered opinion," Land said, "our present merchant marine will have to be operated for at least 3 1/2 years after cessation of hostilities at full capacity. There will be troops, supplies, rehabilitation materials and the work of the United Nations Relief and Rehabilitation organization to be carried on."

Industry In Good Position
"The merchant marine is in a far better position than other industries ashore to promise continued employment for merchant seamen."

War Manpower Commission Chairman McNutt indicated that much of the job of recruiting manpower would have to be accomplished within the industry itself, by the unions and ship operators, and by the Recruitment and Manning Organization of War Shipping Administration who had been given mandates by both Selective Service and WMC to control the entry and exit of merchant seamen from the industry.

Admiral Land emphasized that "the shortening of the war now depends to a very great extent upon the merchant marine, and our ability to keep ships sailing with cargoes for the battlefronts."

Right Program Endorsed
General proposals agreed upon by both unions and operators were: Freer exchange of information concerning manpower between unions, operators and the RMO; special measures to induce experienced seamen to stay aboard their ships at the Christmas holiday season, and the active support by both unions and ship operators of a merchant seamen's "G. I. Bill of Rights" extending benefits to seamen similar to those enjoyed by members of the armed services.

Selective Service Director Hershey, War Manpower Commission Chairman McNutt, Deputy War Shipping Administrator Edward Macauley, in charge of recruitment, manning and training activities, representatives of maritime unions and ship operator's associations, Navy, Coast Guard, Army Transport Service, Immigration and Naturalization Service, and other major officials of War Shipping Administration attended the conference.

25,000 SHIPYARD WORKERS NEEDED
Washington, D. C. — West Coast shipbuilding and naval repair yards must have an additional 25,000 workers this month to meet urgent accelerating military orders, Paul V. McNutt War Manpower Commissioner, said.

Another 2,000 shipyard workers are needed for naval repair work at Pearl Harbor, he added.

War Department Honors AFL Building Tradesmen

Washington, D. C. — Private First Class Roy E. Moffet, an AFL building trades worker, has been awarded the Silver Star, high Army medal, for courageous and tireless efforts in aiding wounded soldiers in the face of heavy enemy fire in Italy, the War Department announced. Pfc. Moffet's father, Roy R. Moffet, of Salina, Kan., is a veteran of World War I and proud of the honor awarded his son. Son Roy, though only 21 now, before entering the Army worked for the Tarlton & McDonald Construction Company in Salina.

The War Department citation for Pfc. Moffet reads:

"On December 21, 1943, during a Mediterranean campaign, when his battalion was ordered to withdraw from a hill under intense enemy shell fire he was assigned the task of furnishing supplies and ammunition to the covering forces remaining on the hill. The enemy's vicious attack inflicted many casualties on the withdrawing troops, and he voluntarily joined a party to evacuate the wounded from the hill. Although he had not slept in 32 hours, he indefatigably covered the rough terrain, constantly exposed to enemy fire, to bring aid to the wounded soldiers. He was successful in recovering and evacuating many of his comrades, but in so doing he himself was wounded by an enemy shell fragment. His determination to save the wounded in the face of grave personal danger forcefully demonstrated his courage and valor."

War-time queues seem to have supplied a large part of the American people with a kind of inexpensive entertainment and experience that they thoroughly enjoy.

When JOHNNY COMES HOME

Sweetheart, you rate the best there is!
an ELECTRIC RANGE

THE things you can cook on an Electric Range are "out of this world" and so easy, so automatic, that Johnny will want you to have one so that he may have delicious food as well as a fresh, happy wife to serve it.

The story of Electric Cookery isn't new—and it never will be old, because it is the complete answer to perfect food. Before the war, during the war and in post-war homes, the Electric Range always belongs where home-makers want the best.
