

ACCESSORIES MAKE DRESSES VERSATILE

Keep Costume Up-To-Date With Correct Shoes, Hose And Jewelry

By JULIA McIVER Extension Specialist in Clothing North Carolina State College

Pick a dress or suit for its good fit. Then with the right accessories it can be made as versatile as the day is long. Accessories are an important factor in expressing good taste in dress. They are a means of keeping costumes up-to-date, and introducing an element of newness and charm into the wardrobe.

Accessories include shoes, hose, jewelry, purses, jewelry, handkerchiefs, scarfs, and all the small details which the fashion-wise person points up her costume.

Shoes Are Important Shoes have much to do with the general appearance of the entire costume. They should express their purpose and be chosen with regard to the costume. Of course, there are shoes for all occasions, but as there are dresses, but to just as there are correct shoes, they must be entirely correct. They must harmonize with the dress in material and style. Heavy fabrics, such as tweeds, call for reasonably heavy shoes with low or moderate heels. Light weight materials require a finer quality fabric in shoes, especially simple designs.

Below are a few general principles which may help you in choosing shoes:

1. A short vamp with a square toe makes the foot appear shorter.
2. Shoes with long vamps make the foot appear more slender.
3. Wide straps make the feet seem broader.
4. A broad foot is emphasized by a flat heel that is too low.
5. A high spike heel makes a larger woman seem too heavy.
6. Shoes made of contrasting colors, or with intricate designs, call attention to the foot as do buckles or ornaments.
7. Shoes should harmonize with the costume in purpose and color.

Today And Tomorrow

By WALTER LIPPMANN

There are compelling practical reasons why this country is moving toward a policy of European union. It has become increasingly clear that there can be no German settlement except within a framework of European unity or Germany. Simultaneously, it is becoming evident that the United States cannot deal effectively with the impending financial crisis if it has to deal separately with the United Kingdom, France, Italy, and the western zones of Germany.

Yet work on the German settlement must be resumed in the autumn. The financial crisis will call for Congressional action at the very latest early in 1948. For these two events of transcendent importance, it is now necessary to prepare by the clarification of ideas, the formulation of policy, the elaboration of plans and an immense amount of consultation and preliminary negotiation. The formative idea in all of this is bound to be not—as it has been—the unification of Germany, or costume; after forty, women should wear pretty hats, the feminine, flattering, veil-softened kind. It must form a flattering frame for the face and agree in line, color, and texture with the ensemble.

Each season brings changes in hats so that it is difficult to know what to select, but you should study the styles best suited to your hair arrangement, shape and size of your head and features, as well as the effect of the hat upon your size and height.

Try on a hat before a full-length mirror, when you are standing, so you can see the size and shape in relation to your entire figure.

Small girls should avoid extremely wide-brimmed hats, tall girls should not wear very high, narrow hats.

A hat in the same color as the rest of your outfit will make you appear taller. A hat in a different color will have a shortening effect.

Leather or plastic handbags are good with wool dresses, coats, and tailored suits; a suede, silk, or fine kid bag for afternoon, and a silk, velvet, or beaded one for evening. Bags of cotton or linen are nice to use for summer wash frocks. If one bag must be used the year around, it would pay to invest in a good leather bag. The size of a handbag should be kept in scale with a person's size.

Gloves Must Harmonize Gloves, as well as shoes, convey the idea of good taste when characterized by simplicity. Over-ornamentations is the worst fault in gloves.

Gloves must be in harmony with the costume in texture as well as color. Shoes, gloves, or hat and gloves may match in color to give an interesting contrast to the costume, or to balance by contrast, yet they must not violate the rule of unity in costume.

Hose Colors Vary Colors for hose vary somewhat each season and popular colors and shades for the season should be kept in mind.

A medium gray-beige, or natural beige is appropriate with blues, black, vintage and plum shades, while a golden coffee tan goes well with browns, rust, copper, or greens.

Costume jewelry has become an important and interesting type of accessory. There is also the tendency for people to make themselves conspicuously gaudy by using too much of it. When used together, clip and a bracelet are always good, but if you should add a ring, necklace, and earrings, you would immediately take on the air of a gypsy. This type jewelry should be used sparingly and in good taste, and never except to fulfill a definite need.

DOWNY MILDEW EXPECTED SOON

U. S. Technicians Issue Advice On Methods For Its Control

Downy mildew of cucumbers is expected to appear in North Carolina in two or three weeks, according to J. M. Jenkins, Jr., horticulturist in charge of the Vegetable Research Laboratory at Castle Hayne.

Information received by the laboratory indicates that downy mildew of cucumbers has already appeared in fields in South Carolina. As a rule it appears in North Carolina about two or three weeks after it is reported there.

Plant pathologists of the N. C. State college will inform county agents and growers as to when they believe dusting of cucumbers should start, but since the disease appears every year in this state, growers should have a supply of dust on hand and be ready to start the weekly applications as soon as they are advised to do so, Jenkins said.

Several dusts can be used, he said, but the one that is being recommended at the present time is tri-basic copper sulphate (5 per cent metallic copper). Cost of the dust should not exceed $10 to $15 per acre for the season and good control can be had provided the applications are made properly and at regular weekly intervals, he concluded.

Book Reviews

DESIGN FOR NOVEMBER, by Ronald Mitchell. New York: Harper and Brothers. 289 pp. $2.75.

This is the story of a young couple, their dreams, ambitions, and fight for no more than any young couple deserves—security.

With an insight into human nature and with love for his fellow man, Ronald Mitchell tells their story and the story of a quiet, comfortable, old Midwestern university town, the faculty and the townspeople, in vivid, descriptive language.

Sam Forester, a graduate assistant in the art department at Creighton university, drew just enough salary to pay grocery and rent bills. He, and more particularly, his wife, Catherine, (who was very ambitious about his future at the university) had dreamed and looked forward to the day when he would receive his appointment as an assistant professor.

For that, to them, would mean the end of poverty. Sam was next in line for the position, and there was to be an opening very soon. But something happened which made them lose faith.

Underneath the story, and woven into the plot, lies the explanation and depiction of the thoughts in a mind driven by a too strong will to the belief that long-awaited desires could be attained regardless of the means to the end.

An inevitable tragedy evolves in the life of the young couple—a tragedy wrought by the actions of the force too strong to halt.

It is a strong novel from many standpoints, filled with a little humor, a little pathos, a little excitement and suspense—about every day people and events that might very well happen in the life of someone you know.

But this is not an "every day" novel. The way the story is told, the portrayal of the characters, even to the most minor, and their idiosyncracies will furnish you with several hours of reading enjoyment.

Except for the closing chapters we would say that "Design For November" is an excellent novel. Sam Forester is portrayed as a friendly, capable, ambitious though not very aggressive person, could not possibly have acted and thought as he did in the closing chapters. The author makes Sam Forester step out of character in order to force a happy ending would not have been probable, or possible, for a man such as Sam Forester, in so short a time.
