ST. LOUIS, Mo., June 15—(U.R)— beyond. Snead lined up his putt Lew Worsham won the U. S. Na- carefully and then fired too soft. Lew Worsham won the U. S. National Open Golf championship to-day with the last putt on the 18th green in his playoff match with Sam Snead, who missed a two and one-half footer under the terrific pressure of golfdom's toughest test.

Lew Worsham won the U. S. National Carefully and then fired too soil. It was tough to judge which ball lay closer to the cup and who had the first shot at the title.

Worsham called for a measurement and Ike Grainger, U. S. G. A. secretary, got out the tape. Snead test.

Worsham's last putt was almost exactly the same distance as Snead's, but Sammy missed and Lew didn't—and that was the story of the 1947 open championship. The Washington pro had a 69
