Justifies Farmers' Organizations

Secretary of Agriculture Wallace, in addressing the Grain Marketing Committee of Seven, strongly championed the right of farmers to organize for the more economical and profitable marketing of their products, and severely scored the critics of farmers' co-operative organizations, pointing out not only the farmers' right to organize, but showing also that it was their plain duty to do so in order to prevent the waste and extravagance of our present system of marketing through the agency of useless middlemen. The following extracts from his address will prove his loyalty to the agricultural interests:

"It is true that your work along this line has met with some criticism. There are some good people who seem to think that the farmer should not concern himself with matters of marketing. They look upon him as a man whose sole business it is to produce. They think he should grow the largest possible crops and the greatest numbers of live stock without asking either as to the demand for what he grows or the price he is going to get. And they seem to think, further, that having produced abundantly he should turn his crops and his live stock over to the nearest buyer and be thankful for whatever he may receive.

"This is a shortsighted view. The obligation to get our food products to the consumer with the least possible waste and at the least possible cost consistent with fairness to all who handle them is just as sacred as the obligation to produce those crops in the first place. There is no more reason that the farmer should be expected to confine his efforts solely to the production of his crops than that the manufacturer should be expected to confine his mechanical process of manufacturing his goods. No one questions the right and the propriety of the manufacturer selling the products of his factory to the best possible advantage once he has produced them, and many manufacturers carry their products through the various channels of the ultimate consumer to the action of both. The farmer to do this same thing cannot be questioned. The only matter open for consideration is whether he can follow his crops beyond the limits of his own farm or the nearest market place with benefit to himself and to the consumer."

Men, War and Disarmament

(Flora McIlmsey in Maryland Women's News).

Aren't men killing? And haven't we had a killing time ever since men started to run the world? I heard a weird story not long ago about a bunch of men who had to go far away and live without any women for a long time in some kind of a camp, mining or lumber or railroad. But anyhow, do you know the poor boob became out-and-out savages? I never heard whether they became tamed again, but that just shows what merely having women around does for the superior sex, and that's about all we Janes can do now—sit around with all the sex and legal disabilities we have to contend with. But wait! Brethren, you think you are little tin gods now. Wait till the refining process starts in earnest. Making silk purses out of sows' ears is nothing compared to the supermen we are about to create out of the material at hand.

When this disarmament we hear so much about takes place I'll be there with a resolution. I insist that disarmament begins at home. Observe the new State Constabulary, armed to the teeth, and who knows what they are up to? A perfectly killing incident took place at the hearing in Washington on disarmament. Some Baltimore woman quoted from the Bible: "He that taketh up the sword shall perish by the sword," and do you know, honey, one of those old fat Congressmen spent the rest of the day hunting through the Bible to see if she had quoted it correctly. He was perfectly oblivious to all the proceedings, determined to trip that woman up. I'll bet he's got a mean disposition. Another woman gave the old hawks a jolt when she started telling them supposin' she had $100 a week to run her house on (that's going some), and supposin' she spent $93 on pistols and guns to shoot up her neighbors, which would leave her $7 to buy grub, educate the kids and pay for all peaceful pursuits, and she added that is exactly what this man-handled nation is perpetrating this very minute. Think of it, girls, and shriek it from the housetops! It's up to us to make these dreadful men behave themselves and stop killing each other.

Are you ready?
"Let's go!"

FLORA.

Trustee's Sale OF REAL ESTATE

By virtue of a decree of the Circuit Court for St. Mary's County, in Equity, passed in a cause wherein Joseph and others are plaintiffs and Bertha Emma E. Currier and others are defendants, No. 1304 N. E., the undersigned trustee will offer for sale at public auction to the highest bidder, at the Court House door in Leonardtown, Md., on at 2 o'clock p. m., all that tract or parcel of land situated about 2 miles from Mechanicsville, in the Fifth Election District of St. Mary's County, State of Maryland, called and known as "Part of Thomas' Lot" and "Jacob's Discovery," containing 37 acres, more or less, and being the property lately occupied by James R. Holly and Fannie Holly, his wife. The above land is valuable for its growing timber and wood, a portion being arable and adapted to the staple crops of the section. Improvements consist of small tenant house and out house.

TERMS OF SALE, as prescribed by decree, being one-half of the purchase money to be paid in cash on day of sale and balance in twelve months from day of sale, or all cash at the option of the purchaser, the credit portion to bear interest from the day of sale and to be secured by the note of the purchaser, with security satisfactory to the trustee.

WM. MEVERELL LOKER, Trustee.

An Artistic Roof for Your Home—

The possibilities for artistic treatment afforded by Johns-Manville Transite Asbestos Shingles have thus far been but partially developed. The different colors, shapes, sizes and thicknesses of this modern roofing and the opportunities to vary methods of laying to obtain distinct and attractive roof effects, prove this a rich field for study.
Nor is it difficult to foresee the time when inflammable roofings will be generally prohibited by law, as evidenced by many recent city ordinances.
In Johns-Manville Transite Asbestos Shingles you can have a distinctive roof, free from the threat of communicable fire. It will neither burn, rust, nor demand periodic and costly repairs.
Johns-Manville Transite asbestos shingles are examined, approved, and labeled by the Underwriters' Laboratories, Inc., under the direction of the National Board of Fire Underwriters.
