your city, and ornament to the whole the creek. your city, and ornament to the whole country, regardless of cost. [Applause.] We propose to build not only for present use, but for use of com ng generations. [Applause.] We shall erect commental structures on a permanent plan; that is, structures that are not likely to be superceded for many years to come, and structures in harmony with the most approved artistic taste. It will take considerable time to carry out our plans in this respect. It may take years; but you will see the work going on under your own eyes, and, therefore you will know that it is to be done.

The creek.

At a Newport dance the other night he was introduced to a very modes: was introduced to a very modes: and obstiching girl, and so, of course, was doing his very best to merit his good luck. Feeling a sudden indisposition, he excused himself for a min-tue, and on returning was in the act of removing a few cloves from his vest procket, when the damsel astonished him by saying: "Don't chew that; I'd rather smell the new rum."

Encouraged Manufactures.

we need our own facilities in this country for rolling rails, for manufacturing every kind of iron that we may require as railroad, steamship and steamboat companies. We must have facilities in addition to build cars, and also locomatives in due course of time. In other words, with a view of economy, we must render ourselves as independent as possible of eastern manufacture. And we mean to do so as early as practicable. Of course the establishment of iron works, such as we contemplate, we will be a great benefit to your city. It will bring a large additional labering population here—I hope of the very best kind. [Applause.] And I hope the establishment of thee industrial enterprises will be but the beginning of the establishment of others.

A WEDDING IN WYOMING.

Camping near the town, we secured our stock and then went in. Entering the leading store, I introduced myself to Mr. Stiles, one of the proprieters and rootsmaster.

to Mr. Stiles, one of the proprieters and postmaster.

"It's now half-past 2, and at 3 there's to be a wedding down the street at Jonas Barton's. Old Jonas is a rough old com that we elected justice of the peace about a month ago, and, as this will be his first attempt at a marriage, I think we will see some fun. Ome and go down with me."

We went down to the old 'Squire's cabin. We found him pouring over a large volume of the statutes of Wyoming, swearing like a horse and looking terribly anxious. After greeting us he said:

"Stiles, the man that got up these yer laws hadn's gumption enough to hast him over night. I've run through the blamed book a half dozen times, and can't find a dod blasted word about matrimany, or how the bitchin' is proceeded with. I'ze just got ter put the clamps on this couple, hit or miss, and of foun't yoke 'em up legal I can't help it."

'Oh," said Stiles, "just do the best you can. Any kind of a cremony will do in this country, for people will now that a great proportion of deaths arise from Heart Disease. But said from the stailty which attends it, the inconvenience and suffering which even the first stages and suffering which even the first stages are tramedy of modern times for curing disease of the Heart is "Sedatine-d-India."

Now, as regards the other enterprises that we have under completion, I mentioned to the committee of the board of trade who awaited upon me on our arrival, that we thought of creoting a dry-dock here and of establishing large iron works. I am happy to say that the crection of a dry dock is dectided upon. [Applause.] I have looked into the matter, and I think in our interest as owners of so many steamships on the coast, it will be an advantageous investment. We do not expect at first to get much business from the general sailing trade, but it will come in due course of time. We think by having a dry-dock here we cam save to ourselves the exorbitant charges we are obliged to pay in San Francisco. The iron works I felt sure will be esta lished, [Applause.] The details of the project are not yet fully matured. But it stands to reason that with the enormous transportation interests that we are developing here, we need our own facilities in this country for rolling rails, for manufacturing every kind of iron that we may require as railroad, steamship and steamboat companies. We must have facilities in addition to build cars, and also loomstives in due course of time. In other words, with a view of economy, we must render ourselves as independent as possible of eastern manufacture. And we mean to do so as early as practicable.
