THE EVENING CRITIC.

Howgate Released.

The Criminal Court-room was this morning the centre of an interested audience, comprising the more prominent citizens. The Howgate embezzlement case being on preliminary investigation, there was a great gathering of the members of the bar. On the opening of the court, Judge Cox said: "In the case of Capt. Howgate, I have considered that inasmuch as he has already given good bail in the sum of $40,000, he may be discharged on his personal recognizance in the sum of $10,000 until the further order of the court. There may be some ther order of the court. There may be some other disposition made of the case in the

Mr. Williams said Capt. Howgate was in court, and ready to give his personal recognizance.

Capt. Howgate immediately repaired to the clerk's desk and gave his personal recognizance in the sum named, when he was discharged from custody.

A Collateral Question

"Is there no appeal from the decision of a police lieutenant?" asked a young man of a Carric reporter the other day. The reporter, who is not good at answer-ing conundrums, asked the young man to ing conundrums, asked the young man to be more explicit.

"Well," said he, "the other day I had occasion to slap the face of an insolent fellow, for which he swore out a warrant against me. This was all right. I knew the warrant was out, and without waiting to have it served upon me I went to the station-house, the Eighth Precinct, and gave myself up to Lieutenant Boteler, thinking, of course, I could get out upon depositing a small amount of collateral. The Lieutenant was asked how much collateral he wanted, but he turned a deaf ear to me and ordered the officer to lock me up. I remonstrated and offered any amount he asked, but the stern-hearted lieutenant wouldn't yield, and had me put under lock wouldn't yield, and had me put under lock and key in a cold, dark cell for the slight-est offense known to the law."

If the statement of the young man is true, Lieut. Boteler was certainly guilty of an act of tyranny, for he had a right to ac-cept collateral for such a slight offense.

Our French Guests.

The National Fair Association, of this city, is arranging everything perfectly for the reception of the French guests of this nation at the Yorktown Centennial celebration. There are thirty-nine French gentle-men who will arrive here representing our sister republic on Thursday next. Quarters men who will arrive here representing our sister republic on Thursday next. Quarters have been arranged for them at the Arlington Hotel. They will be escorted to the National Fair grounds on Friday and given earle blanche. The club house, which commands even a better view of the track than the grand stand, will be at the disposal of the guests and exclusively for their use, the members of the association, the invited officials of the Government, and the press. The races will be a steeple-chase by the Warrenton Club, of Fauquier County, Va., running races, hurdle-races, and what will be most interesting to our visitors, trotting races by the fastest horses we have. A trotting race is a novelty to foreigners, it being peculiarly an American institution; with the exception of the trots upon the ice in Russia, it is a sport unknown abroad.

In the evening the illuminations will follow, and the city turn out en masse upon our broad avenues to evince their respect and friendly feeling for those whose forefathers fought for our independence a hundred years ago.

The National Rifles.

The National Rifles.

The regular monthly meeting of the National Rifles was held last night. The following gentlemen were, on application, elected honorary members of the company: A. C. Stovens, Walter Scott, Col. C. M. Alexander, A. T. Whiting, Col. James S. Pierce, Charles A. James, C. Kennedy, George D. De Shields, John J. Rae, R. O. Edmonston, J. W. Barker and C. C. Bryan. The company declined the invitation received from Baltimore to take part in the military parade in that city. In order to assist the new recruits to fully uniform themselves the company have concluded to give a grand military fair this fall. The reception and entertainment of the governor of Rhode Island and staff, and the bat alion of troops from that State, on the occasion of their visit to Washington en route to Yorktown, has been assigned to the Rifles. A committee has been appointed to make the necessary arrangements.

THE GLORIOUS ORIOLE.

Everything in Headiness for the Grand Festivities in Baltimore Next Week.

The Oriole is close at hand, and Baltimore has indeed done royally in carrying out all promises. Work on the mystic portion of the pageant as well as upon the floats in the hands of the city committee and the French. German, and Italian committees are all practically completed and everything in readiness for a glorious time. Tuesday night. The pageant has been added to so greatly as to reach an extent almost double the original intention. Society after society have become interested and raised large sums of money and worked night and day to excel each other in originality, beauty, and effect of their floats. The pageant will exceed three miles in length and probably be upward of two hours in passing any given point. In addition to the floats there will be a large number of elegantly attired horsemen and hundreds of torch-bearers flanking the floats on either side. Arrangements have been made to light the whole of Baltimore street with electricity, and in-horsemen and hundreds of torch-bearers flanking the floats on either side. Arrangements have been made to light the whole of Baltimore street with electricity, and instead of confining all the electric lights to one color they will be shown in a variety of hues and will produce an effect never before seen in the country. To attempt a description of the pageant in advance would be impossible, as the twenty-four floats in the mystic portion have been constructed in the utmost secrecy, and nothing will be known of the subject illustrated until the night of the pageant. The number and excellence of the bands in line will be a very noticeable feature. At the head will be Gilmore's superborganization, of New York, numbering sixty-five pieces, and at various places in the line will be the noted Marine band, of this city, Second United States Artillery band, and about twelve other bands of almost equal celebrity. Baltimore is rapidly putting on her holiday attire, buildings being decked throughout the entire city in the most lavish manner. Stands are erected at all available points on the line of march and there will be no question of ample accommodations for all. The Baltimore and Ohio, with its eighteen trains on Monday from Washington to Baltimore, twenty-six on Tuesday, and twenty-two on Wednesday, has well provided for the immense demand there will be for transportation from this city. The most of these trains will make the trip in one hour, and, running into Camden street depot, will land passengers within three squares of Baltimore street.

The Alleged Fenian Infernal Machines.

A special dispatch from Philadelphia to the Baltimore American says: "The investigation set on foot by the Government Secret Service officials, aided by English detectives, has led to the discovery that the shipment of infernal machines to England on the White Star Line was a fraud, by which a clever Irishman of this city was enabled to obtain ten thousand dollars from the English government. The connection of O'Donovan Rossa, Patrick Crowe, of Peoria, Illinois, and Peter H. Foye of this city, with the affair has ostracised them from the respectable Irish Nationalists in this country. Peter H. Foye was the one who pretended to be the traitor, by giving information of the shipment to the British government, and when the machine was seized he received his pay. He has recently disappeared from this city, fearing that, as the plot was fully exposed, he was about to be arrested."

Gress Injustice at the Government Printing Office.

Editor of the Evening Critic:
In the interests of a large number of fellow-sufferers, I appeal to you for that help which the strong right arm of THE CRITIC has never refused to those in need; for, although numerically strong, we require help. Through your columns we appeal help. Through your columns we appeal for justice.

As many of your readers are doubtless aware, the employees of the Government Printing Office have been required to lose the time when the office was closed as a sign of mourning, a mark of respect justly paid to the memory of a dead President. The injustice of compelling the employees to lose on an average $20 from the September pay is apparent to all, but that it might be still more unjust, certain persons in the office are declared exempt from suffering this loss, and, as is usually the case, those persons are best able to stand such an unexpected deficiency in their finances, as necessarily (?) follows an enforced absence from work. They are the assistant foremen, the printers detailed for special duty in the office of the chief clork. Mr. Defrees' son, whose duties are not defined or known, and a few favored ones whose toadying manners have found favor in the eyes of the authorities. Why is it that several employees who reserve 50 cents and 53 cents. authorities. Why is it that several em-ployees, who receive 50 cents and 53 cents per hour, were not docked, while in every

Death of a Virginia Veteran.

Reuben Clements, the oldest male citizen of Petersburg, Va., died Thursday night, aged ninety-one years. He was the last survivor of the company of one hundred and three young men, known as the Petersburg volunteers, who, under command of Captain Richard McRae, lefe Petersburg on the 21st of October, 1812, and marched to Canada to fight in the war against Great Britain. It was their conspicuous gallantry at Fort Meizs that won from the lips of President Madison for the city of their nativity the prond title it has since borne of the "Cockade City."

Training the Will. Men often speak of breaking the will of a child, but it seems to me they had better break the neck. The will needs regulation, break the neek. The will needs regulation, not destroying. I should as soon think of breaking the legs of a horse in training him as a child's will. I would discipline and develop it into harmonious proportions. I never yet heard of a will in itself too atrong, more than of an arm too mighty, or a mind too comprehensive in its grasp, too powerful in its hold. The instruction of children should be such as to animate, inspire, restrain, but not to hew, cut and carve; for I would always treat a child as a live tree, which was to be helped to grow, never as dry, dead timber, to be carved into this or that shape, and to have certain mouldings grooved upon it. A live tree, and not dead timber, is every little child.—Theodore Parker.
