

AMUSEMENTS.

THE OPERA HOUSE. TO-NIGHT, MR. R. ROBERTS' COMEDY COMPANY. MINNIE PALMER as MY SWEETHEART.

NATIONAL THEATRE. A Change of Bill. Last Three Performances of MR. and MRS. N. C. GOODWIN.

THEATRE COMIQUE. Monday, October 17, Nightly and Tuesday and Wednesday.

THEATRE COMIQUE. Monday, October 17, Nightly and Tuesday and Wednesday.

THEATRE COMIQUE. Monday, October 17, Nightly and Tuesday and Wednesday.

THEATRE COMIQUE. Monday, October 17, Nightly and Tuesday and Wednesday.

THEATRE COMIQUE. Monday, October 17, Nightly and Tuesday and Wednesday.

THEATRE COMIQUE. Monday, October 17, Nightly and Tuesday and Wednesday.

THEATRE COMIQUE. Monday, October 17, Nightly and Tuesday and Wednesday.

THEATRE COMIQUE. Monday, October 17, Nightly and Tuesday and Wednesday.

THEATRE COMIQUE. Monday, October 17, Nightly and Tuesday and Wednesday.

THEATRE COMIQUE. Monday, October 17, Nightly and Tuesday and Wednesday.

THEATRE COMIQUE. Monday, October 17, Nightly and Tuesday and Wednesday.

THEATRE COMIQUE. Monday, October 17, Nightly and Tuesday and Wednesday.

THEATRE COMIQUE. Monday, October 17, Nightly and Tuesday and Wednesday.

THEATRE COMIQUE. Monday, October 17, Nightly and Tuesday and Wednesday.

THEATRE COMIQUE. Monday, October 17, Nightly and Tuesday and Wednesday.

THEATRE COMIQUE. Monday, October 17, Nightly and Tuesday and Wednesday.

THEATRE COMIQUE. Monday, October 17, Nightly and Tuesday and Wednesday.

THEATRE COMIQUE. Monday, October 17, Nightly and Tuesday and Wednesday.

THEATRE COMIQUE. Monday, October 17, Nightly and Tuesday and Wednesday.

THEATRE COMIQUE. Monday, October 17, Nightly and Tuesday and Wednesday.

THEATRE COMIQUE. Monday, October 17, Nightly and Tuesday and Wednesday.

THEATRE COMIQUE. Monday, October 17, Nightly and Tuesday and Wednesday.

THEATRE COMIQUE. Monday, October 17, Nightly and Tuesday and Wednesday.

THEATRE COMIQUE. Monday, October 17, Nightly and Tuesday and Wednesday.

THEATRE COMIQUE. Monday, October 17, Nightly and Tuesday and Wednesday.

SPECIAL NOTICES.

Washington Market Company.

SALES OF STALLS

IN

Centre Market,

October 22, at 11 o'clock.

These stalls are required to be made by act of Congress, which says that the stalls and stands shall be let to the highest bidder at auction for a term of one or more years.

These stalls are required to be made by act of Congress, which says that the stalls and stands shall be let to the highest bidder at auction for a term of one or more years.

These stalls are required to be made by act of Congress, which says that the stalls and stands shall be let to the highest bidder at auction for a term of one or more years.

These stalls are required to be made by act of Congress, which says that the stalls and stands shall be let to the highest bidder at auction for a term of one or more years.

These stalls are required to be made by act of Congress, which says that the stalls and stands shall be let to the highest bidder at auction for a term of one or more years.

These stalls are required to be made by act of Congress, which says that the stalls and stands shall be let to the highest bidder at auction for a term of one or more years.

These stalls are required to be made by act of Congress, which says that the stalls and stands shall be let to the highest bidder at auction for a term of one or more years.

These stalls are required to be made by act of Congress, which says that the stalls and stands shall be let to the highest bidder at auction for a term of one or more years.

These stalls are required to be made by act of Congress, which says that the stalls and stands shall be let to the highest bidder at auction for a term of one or more years.

These stalls are required to be made by act of Congress, which says that the stalls and stands shall be let to the highest bidder at auction for a term of one or more years.

These stalls are required to be made by act of Congress, which says that the stalls and stands shall be let to the highest bidder at auction for a term of one or more years.

These stalls are required to be made by act of Congress, which says that the stalls and stands shall be let to the highest bidder at auction for a term of one or more years.

These stalls are required to be made by act of Congress, which says that the stalls and stands shall be let to the highest bidder at auction for a term of one or more years.

These stalls are required to be made by act of Congress, which says that the stalls and stands shall be let to the highest bidder at auction for a term of one or more years.

These stalls are required to be made by act of Congress, which says that the stalls and stands shall be let to the highest bidder at auction for a term of one or more years.

These stalls are required to be made by act of Congress, which says that the stalls and stands shall be let to the highest bidder at auction for a term of one or more years.

These stalls are required to be made by act of Congress, which says that the stalls and stands shall be let to the highest bidder at auction for a term of one or more years.

These stalls are required to be made by act of Congress, which says that the stalls and stands shall be let to the highest bidder at auction for a term of one or more years.

These stalls are required to be made by act of Congress, which says that the stalls and stands shall be let to the highest bidder at auction for a term of one or more years.

These stalls are required to be made by act of Congress, which says that the stalls and stands shall be let to the highest bidder at auction for a term of one or more years.

These stalls are required to be made by act of Congress, which says that the stalls and stands shall be let to the highest bidder at auction for a term of one or more years.

These stalls are required to be made by act of Congress, which says that the stalls and stands shall be let to the highest bidder at auction for a term of one or more years.

These stalls are required to be made by act of Congress, which says that the stalls and stands shall be let to the highest bidder at auction for a term of one or more years.

THE RETURN

FROM THE YORKTOWN PILGRIMAGE.

The Closing Ceremonies--What 'The City' Reporter Thought of Them--The Crowds Disperse and Yorktown Returns to its Normal Dullness--The Return Trip.

The steamer Excelsior, with the Yorktown Congressional Commission, District Commissioners Dent, Morgan and Twining, Col. H. C. Corbin, Gov. Hamilton, of Maryland, and staff, Bishop Harris, of New York, a number of Senators and Representatives and their families and invited guests, arrived here this morning from Yorktown.

The Trip Up was a pleasant one, delayed somewhat by a heavy fog on the river early this morning, but every one arrived safely, pleased to reach home again, and enthusiastic in their gratification over the manner in which they had been entertained during the pilgrimage, which Senator Johnston is chairman, had a valuable assistant in Col. Corbin, who was assiduous in attending to the comfort of the party, and who in many instances, inconspicuously and unobtrusively, endeavored to please others. Col. Corbin and Capt. Wilson performed good service at Yorktown, also, deserving thereof much credit. The officers and attaches of the Excelsior, also, were very polite and attentive, and good service was performed by the detectives and policemen sent down on the steamer from Washington. To their credit, it may be stated, that while a number of passengers on other steamers complained of the stowage of their baggage, the Excelsior lost on board of the Excelsior. The trip up last night was without incident, except in a single instance, where a negro waiter was caught in the act of Securing Forged Orders. It was discovered that he had practiced that scheme systematically during the entire trip, filling up wine cards for whatever he could get, and signing them with the name of the Excelsior. When the officers started to arrest him last night, the negro yelled "fire!" at the top of his voice, and was knocked down to prevent a panic among the passengers. He was taken to the boat and arrested with a warning. Completely tired out, the passengers retired early, and when the steamer arrived this morning many were still asleep in their beds.

BALTIMORE, Md., Oct. 21.--A large number of troops returning from the Yorktown celebration reached here this morning. The Baltimore Corps, of Whitehall, Newark; Ransom Guards, of St. Albans, Vermont; West's Cavalry, Vermont; and the 1st Regiment of Foot, of the latter State, and staff, arrived on the steamer Sue.

The Rhode Island militia arrived on the steamer Mason L. Weems, and proceeded to the army of the Excelsior, Maryland Regiment and thence to the Philadelphia depot. Gov. Long, of Massachusetts, and staff, with the Independent Cadet Corps, of Boston, arrived on the steamer Empire State. They landed at the depot, and proceeded to the Rhode Island militia, of New Jersey, and staff, and the State militia, came on the steamship William Crane. Mary Commandery Knight Templars, of Philadelphia, arrived on the steamer Theodore Wood, and proceeded to the depot, and thence to the depot.

The Grim Old General has wandered about, apparently disgraced, and did not even get an opportunity to deliver an after-dinner speech.

Although there has been a great deal of dissatisfaction expressed about high prices, limited accommodations and the general lack of attractions here, there has been, however, some very interesting features, not included in the official programme. I refer to the catch-penny schemes displayed on shore. It seems as though all the fakirs in the country have massed here, and have brought with them every known humbug arrangement to

Scrap in the Duets of the Gallies. Booths and tents, shooting galleries and quack doctors with their "infallible" remedies, men with cheap jewelry, memorial medals and cheap finery, gamblers with wheels of fortune, kimo and fero lay-outs, blind musicians, dirty beggars, dancing negroes, the inevitable merry-go-round, candy hucksters and everything else in the fakir's line. But the most interesting was a big negro, who, for ten cents, would

But on the Head of a Barrel or split a three-inch board with his head. Then there was another fakir with a wooden leg, attired in the rebel gray uniform, who offered for sale genuine Merrimac canes. These canes, so the veteran assured the public, were made from wood recovered from the wreck of the rebel ram Merrimac. Another sight was an old negro, Jane Shepherd, wrinkled, bent and toothless, who sat by the roadside daily, begging from all who passed her. She claimed to be

112 Years Old, and looked it, and to have been an eye witness of the surrender of Cornwallis. She was born at Yorktown, and never left its shores in her life. The oldest residents of Yorktown corroborate her story. The passing crowds contributed liberally to the old woman's appeal for aid. Quite

An Interesting Incident occurred yesterday. Dr. Hamlin, nephew of ex-Senator Hamlin, who was a surgeon in the regular army during the war of the rebellion, was stationed in Yorktown in 1862. While there he was sent out with a scouting party, and had a skirmish with a party of rebels. During the engagement Dr. Hamlin was struck with the bravery of a rebel sergeant, and mentally resolved if an opportunity was presented to find that officer and shake hands with him. Dr. Hamlin was out visiting the camp yesterday and mentioned the incident to a party of North Carolina officers, one of whom proved to be the soldier the Doctor referred to. Naturally there was a lively handshaking all around, and the story was told and retold over several bottles of champagne.

The Stars and Bars. While everybody enthusiastically praises the military pageant of to-day, there is still some comment concerning the appearance in line of a party of rebels. During the old rebel battle flag as to deceive ninetieths of the spectators. This flag was carried by the Chatham artillery, of Savannah, Ga., and while it is assumed was not displayed with a view to reviving recollections of the past, or for any wrong purpose, it would, in the opinion of many, have been more appropriate to have left it at home. Similar flags were displayed in front of several hotels in town. While that may have given rise to unfavorable comment, Virginia, however, came to the front and exemplified the progress of events by parading in her crack regiment two companies of colored troops. They were fine, soldierly-looking men, who marched admirably and were loudly cheered all along the line. Another commendable feature of the procession was the splendid showing made by the Veterans from the Soldiers' Home. They were repeatedly cheered and they marched bravely along, some on crutches and some otherwise maimed, the proudest of any in line. They were put to a severe test, though, when the order for "double time" was given, and their tanks were sadly

SHERMAN SHRINKS

FROM A FULL INVESTIGATION.

Reassembling of the Senate--Inter-esting Proceedings Today--John Sherman Wants the Report, But Not the Testimony, in the Treasury Investigation--A Variety of Interesting Notes, Comments and Facts Gathered by the Indefatigable 'City' Reporter.

Both parties seem to be maneuvering for position in the matter of electing the Secretary of the Senate. The Democrats are endeavoring to force the Republicans to bring the fight on, and the Republicans want the Democrats to take the initiative. Judge Davis still remains the great unknown quantity. If the Democrats were sure he would vote with them they could not afford to proceed to an election, because Judge Davis voting with them would not elect, because his vote would only tie the Republicans. Should he not vote the Republicans would have one majority. It is claimed by those who ought to know, that Judge Davis will not vote for Col. Washington, but that he would vote for a resolution authorizing the Chief Clerk to perform all the duties of Secretary of the Senate until Congress meets or a Secretary is chosen. Should this be true, and should the Republicans vote solidly against the proposition, Mahone voting with them, the resolution would be lost for want of an affirmative vote.

Some Democrats seem to think that, owing to the dissatisfaction of some of the Republican Senators as to the Republican caucus nominee for Secretary, that they will probably vote for such a resolution, and thereby allow the Democrats to hold on to the patronage of the Senate for a few days longer.

It may be that this will be so, but if it should thus turn out it will be the first time in the history of the Republican party's existence that it ever failed to support, and that unto the end, the caucus's action in all matters pertaining to party or any other subject that may emanate from their caucus. Both parties recognize the fact that it is necessary to either elect a Secretary or provide some means whereby the duties pertaining to his office may be discharged. It will not do.

Not Can Either Party Afford. For the sake of the little patronage in the office, to allow matters to stand as they now in regard to the office of Secretary. If the question of settling the difficulty is made a party issue, there can be but one of two results in the end, either a dead-lock or no result, or the Republicans will elect their man.

The knowing ones tell us that on Monday next we are to have some Cabinet nominations, and that by Wednesday the Senate will be ready to adjourn.

Senate Proceedings Today. Senator McPherson, of New Jersey, who has been itching ever since the extra session convened to dig out some nuggets of political ore for use in the next campaign, sprung the trap in the Senate this morning by calling up the petition from members of the New York Legislature.

Protesting Against the Admission of Messrs. Lapham and Miller to the Senate. He supplemented his motion by explaining that an investigation of the charges was an absolute necessity. The Senate, without objection, allowed McPherson full swing, and the petition was referred to the Committee on Privileges and Elections.

Treasury Investigation. Senator Sherman then took the floor, and, in accordance with his statement last Monday, insisted on the adoption of his resolution, calling for the report of the Treasury investigating committee, which it was reflected somewhat badly on his administration while Secretary of the Treasury. The Ohio Senator was very earnest in securing the adoption of his resolution, but he

Changed Color and Exhibited Some Discomfiture. When Sherman arose and moved to amend the resolution so that the testimony on which the report is based should be submitted to the Senate also. This was just what Mr. Sherman did not desire, and he sprang to his feet and explained to Farley that his demand for the testimony was a very unusual proceeding, adding further that the best part of it was the duty of the Senate to look into them. Senator Dawes took sides with Sherman, and

Talking to the Galleries as Usual. Senator Sherman took up the discussion again and replied to Mr. Farley, saying that the public press had insinuated that there was something in the report which implicated a Senator. These charges having been made in a responsible newspaper he deemed it his duty and his right to call for the report. If the charges were true, it was his duty to see that they were investigated. When any man impugned his official integrity he proposed to have it investigated. He opposed the amendment as unjust, the testimony being informal and not taken under oath, the commission having no power to administer oaths or compel testimony. He made this objection not so much on his own account as that of others.

Mr. Farley took the ground that if the Senate had any jurisdiction in the matter it should, the report being ex parte, have the testimony on which it was based.

Sherman Objects to the Testimony. To this proposition Mr. Sherman strenuously objected. He contended that the report should be presented for March if there was found anything to be investigated, the Senate could make the investigation and take the testimony under oath in its own way. The Senate should not be made a party to the publication of scandal founded on mere rumor.

Mr. Farley, disclaiming any feeling in the matter, still insisted the testimony should accompany the report. If the report should be presented for March it should be accompanied by the testimony on which it was based. The Ohio Senator was very earnest in securing the adoption of his resolution, but he

Mr. Morrill opposed the amendment, believing that a Raking Through the Departments for Scandal would be beneath the dignity of the Senate.

Mr. Dawes said no one would shrink from any charge the Senator from California would make. The charge which prompted this call was that there was something in this report to the Secretary of the

SHERMAN SHRINKS

FROM A FULL INVESTIGATION.

Reassembling of the Senate--Inter-esting Proceedings Today--John Sherman Wants the Report, But Not the Testimony, in the Treasury Investigation--A Variety of Interesting Notes, Comments and Facts Gathered by the Indefatigable 'City' Reporter.

Both parties seem to be maneuvering for position in the matter of electing the Secretary of the Senate. The Democrats are endeavoring to force the Republicans to bring the fight on, and the Republicans want the Democrats to take the initiative. Judge Davis still remains the great unknown quantity. If the Democrats were sure he would vote with them they could not afford to proceed to an election, because Judge Davis voting with them would not elect, because his vote would only tie the Republicans. Should he not vote the Republicans would have one majority. It is claimed by those who ought to know, that Judge Davis will not vote for Col. Washington, but that he would vote for a resolution authorizing the Chief Clerk to perform all the duties of Secretary of the Senate until Congress meets or a Secretary is chosen. Should this be true, and should the Republicans vote solidly against the proposition, Mahone voting with them, the resolution would be lost for want of an affirmative vote.

Some Democrats seem to think that, owing to the dissatisfaction of some of the Republican Senators as to the Republican caucus nominee for Secretary, that they will probably vote for such a resolution, and thereby allow the Democrats to hold on to the patronage of the Senate for a few days longer.

It may be that this will be so, but if it should thus turn out it will be the first time in the history of the Republican party's existence that it ever failed to support, and that unto the end, the caucus's action in all matters pertaining to party or any other subject that may emanate from their caucus. Both parties recognize the fact that it is necessary to either elect a Secretary or provide some means whereby the duties pertaining to his office may be discharged. It will not do.

Not Can Either Party Afford. For the sake of the little patronage in the office, to allow matters to stand as they now in regard to the office of Secretary. If the question of settling the difficulty is made a party issue, there can be but one of two results in the end, either a dead-lock or no result, or the Republicans will elect their man.

The knowing ones tell us that on Monday next we are to have some Cabinet nominations, and that by Wednesday the Senate will be ready to adjourn.

Senate Proceedings Today. Senator McPherson, of New Jersey, who has been itching ever since the extra session convened to dig out some nuggets of political ore for use in the next campaign, sprung the trap in the Senate this morning by calling up the petition from members of the New York Legislature.

Protesting Against the Admission of Messrs. Lapham and Miller to the Senate. He supplemented his motion by explaining that an investigation of the charges was an absolute necessity. The Senate, without objection, allowed McPherson full swing, and the petition was referred to the Committee on Privileges and Elections.

Treasury Investigation. Senator Sherman then took the floor, and, in accordance with his statement last Monday, insisted on the adoption of his resolution, calling for the report of the Treasury investigating committee, which it was reflected somewhat badly on his administration while Secretary of the Treasury. The Ohio Senator was very earnest in securing the adoption of his resolution, but he

Changed Color and Exhibited Some Discomfiture. When Sherman arose and moved to amend the resolution so that the testimony on which the report is based should be submitted to the Senate also. This was just what Mr. Sherman did not desire, and he sprang to his feet and explained to Farley that his demand for the testimony was a very unusual proceeding, adding further that the best part of it was the duty of the Senate to look into them. Senator Dawes took sides with Sherman, and

Talking to the Galleries as Usual. Senator Sherman took up the discussion again and replied to Mr. Farley, saying that the public press had insinuated that there was something in the report which implicated a Senator. These charges having been made in a responsible newspaper he deemed it his duty and his right to call for the report. If the charges were true, it was his duty to see that they were investigated. When any man impugned his official integrity he proposed to have it investigated. He opposed the amendment as unjust, the testimony being informal and not taken under oath, the commission having no power to administer oaths or compel testimony. He made this objection not so much on his own account as that of others.

Mr. Farley took the ground that if the Senate had any jurisdiction in the matter it should, the report being ex parte, have the testimony on which it was based.

Sherman Objects to the Testimony. To this proposition Mr. Sherman strenuously objected. He contended that the report should be presented for March if there was found anything to be investigated, the Senate could make the investigation and take the testimony under oath in its own way. The Senate should not be made a party to the publication of scandal founded on mere rumor.

Mr. Farley, disclaiming any feeling in the matter, still insisted the testimony should accompany the report. If the report should be presented for March it should be accompanied by the testimony on which it was based. The Ohio Senator was very earnest in securing the adoption of his resolution, but he

Mr. Morrill opposed the amendment, believing that a Raking Through the Departments for Scandal would be beneath the dignity of the Senate.

Mr. Dawes said no one would shrink from any charge the Senator from California would make. The charge which prompted this call was that there was something in this report to the Secretary of the

SHERMAN SHRINKS

FROM A FULL INVESTIGATION.

Reassembling of the Senate--Inter-esting Proceedings Today--John Sherman Wants the Report, But Not the Testimony, in the Treasury Investigation--A Variety of Interesting Notes, Comments and Facts Gathered by the Indefatigable 'City' Reporter.

Both parties seem to be maneuvering for position in the matter of electing the Secretary of the Senate. The Democrats are endeavoring to force the Republicans to bring the fight on, and the Republicans want the Democrats to take the initiative. Judge Davis still remains the great unknown quantity. If the Democrats were sure he would vote with them they could not afford to proceed to an election, because Judge Davis voting with them would not elect, because his vote would only tie the Republicans. Should he not vote the Republicans would have one majority. It is claimed by those who ought to know, that Judge Davis will not vote for Col. Washington, but that he would vote for a resolution authorizing the Chief Clerk to perform all the duties of Secretary of the Senate until Congress meets or a Secretary is chosen. Should this be true, and should the Republicans vote solidly against the proposition, Mahone voting with them, the resolution would be lost for want of an affirmative vote.

Some Democrats seem to think that, owing to the dissatisfaction of some of the Republican Senators as to the Republican caucus nominee for Secretary, that they will probably vote for such a resolution, and thereby allow the Democrats to hold on to the patronage of the Senate for a few days longer.

It may be that this will be so, but if it should thus turn out it will be the first time in the history of the Republican party's existence that it ever failed to support, and that unto the end, the caucus's action in all matters pertaining to party or any other subject that may emanate from their caucus. Both parties recognize the fact that it is necessary to either elect a Secretary or provide some means whereby the duties pertaining to his office may be discharged. It will not do.

Not Can Either Party Afford. For the sake of the little patronage in the office, to allow matters to stand as they now in regard to the office of Secretary. If the question of settling the difficulty is made a party issue, there can be but one of two results in the end, either a dead-lock or no result, or the Republicans will elect their man.

The knowing ones tell us that on Monday next we are to have some Cabinet nominations, and that by Wednesday the Senate will be ready to adjourn.

Senate Proceedings Today. Senator McPherson, of New Jersey, who has been itching ever since the extra session convened to dig out some nuggets of political ore for use in the next campaign, sprung the trap in the Senate this morning by calling up the petition from members of the New York Legislature.

Protesting Against the Admission of Messrs. Lapham and Miller to the Senate. He supplemented his motion by explaining that an investigation of the charges was an absolute necessity. The Senate, without objection, allowed McPherson full swing, and the petition was referred to the Committee on Privileges and Elections.

Treasury Investigation. Senator Sherman then took the floor, and, in accordance with his statement last Monday, insisted on the adoption of his resolution, calling for the report of the Treasury investigating committee, which it was reflected somewhat badly on his administration while Secretary of the Treasury. The Ohio Senator was very earnest in securing the adoption of his resolution, but he

Changed Color and Exhibited Some Discomfiture. When Sherman arose and moved to amend the resolution so that the testimony on which the report is based should be submitted to the Senate also. This was just what Mr. Sherman did not desire, and he sprang to his feet and explained to Farley that his demand for the testimony was a very unusual proceeding, adding further that the best part of it was the duty of the Senate to look into them. Senator Dawes took sides with Sherman, and

Talking to the Galleries as Usual. Senator Sherman took up the discussion again and replied to Mr. Farley, saying that the public press had insinuated that there was something in the report which implicated a Senator. These charges having been made in a responsible newspaper he deemed it his duty and his right to call for the report. If the charges were true, it was his duty to see that they were investigated. When any man impugned his official integrity he proposed to have it investigated. He opposed the amendment as unjust, the testimony being informal and not taken under oath, the commission having no power to administer oaths or compel testimony. He made this objection not so much on his own account as that of others.

Mr. Farley took the ground that if the Senate had any jurisdiction in the matter it should, the report being ex parte, have the testimony on which it was based.

Sherman Objects to the Testimony. To this proposition Mr. Sherman strenuously objected. He contended that the report should be presented for March if there was found anything to be investigated, the Senate could make the investigation and take the testimony under oath in its own way. The Senate should not be made a party to the publication of scandal founded on mere rumor.

Mr. Farley, disclaiming any feeling in the matter, still insisted the testimony should accompany the report. If the report should be presented for March it should be accompanied by the testimony on which it was based. The Ohio Senator was very earnest in securing the adoption of his resolution, but he

Mr. Morrill opposed the amendment, believing that a Raking Through the Departments for Scandal would be beneath the dignity of the Senate.

Mr. Dawes said no one would shrink from any charge the Senator from California would make. The charge which prompted this call was that there was something in this report to the Secretary of the Second Edition.

4:00 P. M.

CONTINUED DESTRUCTION

Caused by the Breaking of Levees in the Mississippi Valley.

QUINCY, Oct. 21.--The flood steadily advancing, the river has risen seven inches during the past twenty-four hours. The Hannibal & St. Joseph, Quincy, Missouri & Pacific, and St. Louis, Kookuk & Northwestern Railroad tracks, on the Mississippi side of the river, are submerged, and all train running is abandoned.

A break is reported in the Indian Grove levee, sixteen miles above Quincy, but the crevasse is not serious. The backwater from Quincy Bay has already flooded a wide extent of country north of Quincy. Along the bay the destruction is complete. The water from the crevasse west of Rockport is gradually extending and inundating the fine farming country protected by the embankment. Last night the bay levee broke at a point seventeen miles below East Hannibal, and the water is pouring in and backing up over the bottom land. Unless there is a speedy fall the water may be expected to cover all the low lands back of the levee as far up as East Hannibal.

The breaks in the levee is said by the levee commissioner to be 200 feet in width, and the water being almost to the top of the levee, the water may be expected to break through in a roar and rush that can be heard for miles. No definite estimate of losses can yet be obtained, but the cars still remaining on the bottom will be almost totally destroyed. The levees above this place have not broken, but at one point opposite here is sloughing off and hourly growing weaker. The river has risen twenty-one inches in the last twenty-four hours, and is now but two feet below the high water mark of 1851. This is higher than ever since that memorable year. Railroad tracks are all under water, and traffic is nearly at a standstill.

DAVENPORT, Iowa, Oct. 21.--The Mississippi River lacks one inch of the highest stage in the record of flood of June, 1880. The streets near the river are badly flooded and travel on some of them is impossible. In one place the street-cars are running in water a foot deep. The sidewalks are tiled to the houses by ropes. The cellars of many large business houses are full of water, necessitating the hasty removal of large quantities of goods. The water is still rising.

GOD SAVE IRELAND. Manifesto from Mr. Patrick Ford. NEW YORK, October 21.--Mr. Patrick Ford called to the Freeman's Journal this morning the following:

OFFICE OF THE IRISH WORLD. Men of Ireland! the eyes of the world are on you. Stand together. Be faithful to your imprisoned chiefs. Obey the manifesto, no rents. Prepare for sacrifices. Be brave, but prudent. Rely on American money and sympathy, which will be forthcoming.

We will succor the children of the evicted and honor moral heroes. Landlords must go. Be true to principle and redemption is assured. God save Ireland. PATRICK FORD.

The Irons Safe. CHICAGO, Ill., Oct. 21.--The Daily News this morning publishes the following dispatch from Chippewa Falls, Wis.: "Prof. King and Mr. Haslogen reached here late last night. They landed in the woods of Baron County and worked their way out. Both were very fresh."

The Signal Service observer that accompanied Prof. King in the balloon reports to the Chief Signal Officer under date of Chippewa Falls, Wis., Oct. 21, as follows: "Last five days in swamps."

Current Rumors in Wall Street. special Despatch to THE EVENING CRIC. NEW YORK, Oct. 21.--Very few people knew until last evening that Secretary Windom had changed his policy, and had made an official offer to redeem the balance of the extended sixes at once. At the Windsor Hotel last night, Mr. C. C. C. shall be admitted that the stock market would be very strong, and advance to-day in consequence of this redemption of about thirteen million of these securities.

Mr. Gould, however, especially on Chippewa Falls, Wis., Oct. 21, as follows: "Last five days in swamps."

The Vanderbit party here declare that the latter's successful election at Cleveland yesterday morning, that Mr. C. C. C. shall hereafter form a Vanderbit feeder instead of an Erie connection. By it he has greatly strengthened his hand and correspondingly weakened the opposition, so that he may settle the Trust. (no troubles by-and-by if he pleases on his own terms.)