GERMANY DISAVOWS SINKING OF ARABIC

Agrees to Pay Indemnity for Loss of American Lives

Washington, Oct. 6.—Germany has completely acceded to the American demands for settlement of the Arabic case. The imperial government, in a letter presented yesterday by its ambassador, Count von Bernstorff, to Secretary Lansing, disavows the sinking of the vessel, announces that it has so notified the submarine commander who made the attack, expresses regrets for the loss of American lives and agrees to pay an indemnity to their families.

Official Washington was both gratified and relieved by the diplomatic victory. The communication delivered by the ambassador pursuant to general instructions from his government gives absolute confidence that there would be no more submarine controversies between the United States and Germany, for the document reveals that stringent orders have been given to submarine commanders to prevent a recurrence of such incidents as the Arabic.

May Settle All Disputes.

Since this case embraces the principles for which President Wilson contended in his notes following the torpedoing of the Lusitania and the Falaba, the concessions made by Germany to the American viewpoint were generally regarded last night as paving the way for amicable settlement of all the cases which have threatened severance of diplomatic relations between the two countries.

Count von Bernstorff left here last night, happy over the results of his work, expressing the confident hope that relations between Germany and the United States would continue to improve.

Note to Great Britain.

With the settlement of the Arabic controversy, the dispatch to Great Britain of the long delayed American note on interference with trade is expected within a few days. President Wilson has consistently refused to send this communication while the issues with Germany were pending, because the Berlin government had, through its notes, given the impression that on the action which the United States took with one set of belligerents depended its own conformity to international law. As the issues with Germany appear now to be adjusting themselves, the president, it is known, feels free to press Great Britain for a modification of the orders in council and restrictions of American trade.

It was not until the German ambassador submitted his letter at nearly 1 o'clock yesterday that the change in the relations between Germany and the United States became definite. Until that hour the suggestions Count von Bernstorff had made were considered unsatisfactory. In New York last Saturday the ambassador had submitted a draft of a letter on the Arabic case, but since it did not include admission of liability and agreement to pay indemnity, its terms were not acceptable to either President Wilson or Secretary Lansing. Yesterday he came to Washington at the request of Mr. Lansing.

In a few minutes he learned of the American government's objections, and in return gave oral assurances that these would be promptly overcome.

Von Bernstorff's Letter.

Returning to the embassy, the ambassador re-drafted the letter originally delivered in New York and sent it by messenger to the state department. Secretary Lansing carried it to the White House and shortly afterward announced its text, which follows:

"My dear Mr. Secretary:—

"Prompted by the desire to reach a satisfactory agreement with regard to the Arabic incident my government has given me the following instructions: The orders issued by his majesty, the emperor, to the commanders of the German submarines, of which I notified you on a previous occasion, has been made so stringent that the recurrence of incidents similar to the Arabic case is considered out of the question.

"According to the report of Commander Schneider of the submarine which sank the Arabic and his affidavit as well as those of his men Commander Schneider was convinced that the Arabic intended to ram the submarine.

"On the other hand the imperial government does not doubt the good faith of the affidavit of the British officers of the Arabic according to which the Arabic did not intend to ram the submarine. The attack of the submarine was undertaken against the instructions issued to the commander. The imperial government regrets and disavows this act and has notified Commander Schneider accordingly.

"Under these circumstances my government is prepared to pay an indemnity for American lives which to its deep regret have been lost on the Arabic. I am authorized to negotiate with you about the amount of this indemnity.

"I remain, my dear Lansing, Yours very sincerely,

"I. von Bernstorff."

The promptness with which Count von Bernstorff altered the original draft of the letter demonstrated that he had been empowered to negotiate a complete settlement of the case, and it was assumed that he naturally did not finally accede until the American government made known its unalterable determination not to relinquish any of its demands.

Lansing Much Pleased.

Secretary Lansing made no comment on the ambassador's letter except to remark that it spoke for itself. He was very much pleased over the conclusion of the case, because since the sinking of the Arabic he inaugurated the idea of personal negotiations in Washington. This method of exchanging views was welcomed by Count von Bernstorff, also, particularly as he has had no means of direct communication with his government. To this lack of communication has been attributed much of the ill-feeling that characterized the earlier stages of the submarine controversy.

Satisfaction Everywhere.

Yesterday's events spread satisfaction everywhere, not only at the White House and state department, but the German embassy as well. The recent critical stage of the negotiations which threatened rupture of diplomatic relations had raised to the keenest point the tension at the embassy.

"His excellency is contented." Was the comment that ran from the porter's lodge to the chancery when the ambassador returned with the announcement that the United States government was satisfied. The smiling faces of the embassy's personnel, busy preparing for the return of the staff from summer quarters a fortnight hence, reflected the spirit displayed by their chief.

"It is a diplomatic victory for the United States," the ambassador remarked to a friend, "but credit must be given to Germany. I believe, for nobly accepting the word of the British officers that they did not intend to ram the submarine."

This point, it was learned, at one time threatened to interrupt the proceeding as the German government at first wished to arbitrate the conflicting evidence.

CHIEF OF GENERAL STAFF.

Major Murray Appointed to Army Post by Great Britain.

London, Oct. 6, 2:46 a. m.—Major General Sir Archibald James Murray has been appointed chief of the imperial general staff at army headquarters in London, according to the Times.

Major General Murray was succeeded as chief of the general staff in March last by Major General Sir Wm. R. Robertson. He had already established a reputation for gallantry in the present war, having been twice praised by Field Marshal French in official reports. He was inspector of infantry from 1912 to 1914.

IF COFFEE CAME IN CAPSULES

as its drug, caffeine, is frequently sold, coffee drinkers would wake up to the fact that coffee is not a food but a drug.

Yet in spite of the warnings of reputable physicians, many persons fail to realize the harmful effects of caffeine, coffee's subtle, habit-forming drug. Taken regularly this coffee drug—the frequent cause of nervousness, heart-flutter, headache and other ailments—sooner or later gets its hold.

Look coffee in the face—read what physicians and health experts say: (Names on application)

"Coffee is a dope and narcotic, almost equal to opium. Slowly but surely it gets control of its victim and holds him in its grasp a pitiful, helpless victim."

"Coffee is a drug. Those addicted to its use are drug addicts."

"Some people get the craving for alcohol by first taking tea or coffee."

"They (the tea and coffee drugs, are comparable to opium in that they induce a habit and should be avoided."

Right now, Mr. Coffee Drinker, is the time to find out whether or not coffee has a hold on you. It's simple and easy—quit coffee ten days and use
