Their plans to ald Ivanhoff again demonstrates his versatility and are heard by Lady Creech and she Ray Hanford as Ivanhoff, the escaped and her brother determine to inform the police unless Pike "comes through" with the dower of threequarters of a million. Pike delays his answer to their demands and learns, through Ivanhoff, that Hawcastle was at one time a contractor in St. Peters, burg—using one of his family hames to hide the fact that a member of the British nobility was in trade and had stolen the wife of the escaped convict after informing the police that Ivanhoff was a Socialist. Ivanhoff was sent to Siberia while his wifethe comtesse-and Hawcastle, leave Russia. Pike, secure with this information, sends for his ward and for her titled friends, forces them to admit to the girl their intentions of sending Pike to jail unless he allows her to pur-chase the title; refuses to agree to their demands and turns the tables on their rascality by presenting Ivanhoff to the assembly, while the Grand Duke deplaces himself and frustrates the efforts to send Pike to jail.

The final curtain finds Pike and Ethel alone on the terrace of the Italian hotel — he having told her of his dreams of a home in Kokomo and of the dream-girl who, in the twilight hours, would sing "Sweet Genevieve." The dream-girl is Ethel but Pike has made up his mind that after the manner in which he has interfered in her plans for an alliance with the British nobility she will have none of him. That he is mistaken in this surmise Tarkington and Wilson make perfectly clear when Ethel tells him that Daniel Vorhees is a hard-working "the girl of his dreams will be there."

"The Man from Home" is full of sparkling comedy, clean cut and refreshing. The slight touch of loveson, who with her brother, Horace making is not overdone, the scenes all are natural. Tarkington and Wilson performed a great service to the theater-goers when they took Daniel Vorhees Pike out of his Kokomo law office and put him on the stage. More plays like this would be gratefully welcomed.

The World's Fair players are good and the scenic effects are most elaborate, "Buck" Theall having extended himself to the limit to make "The Man from Home" a worthwhile offering. It is. -W. W.

At the last payment of the troops at this post B Company of the 2d Infautry made what is believed to be a record for deposits with the paymaster as regards a company on garrison duty and as to the proportion of men of a single organization making such deposits. Forty-four men left in captain Freeman's hands five hundred and thirteen dollars on which the government will, of course pay the four per cent interest authorized by law on such sums. This sum brings the total deposits of Captain McCleave's men to $6179. In addition all tments amounting to $209 per month are existent. These allotments are made by individuals to certain allctees in the states for various family or investment purposes. Allotments and deposits together are therefore being made by more than one half of the men in this company.

Private George A. Smith, 159th Co., C. A., from Fort Ruger, died at the department hospital on Friday last. That "Shamus O'Brien" film is good! Very good, in fact-at least such was the verdict of those who attended either of the shows last night. History, drama, tragedy, and a little comedy were all present in that 2,000 feet of well-acted photo-play.

Four supporting pictures filled the program not only acceptably but in a manner that brought considerable applause from both the younger generation and its parents.
