JUDGE PERRY WOULD COLLECT FROM PETERSON

Asking for an injunction restraining Attorney C. F. Peterson, William Kawaia and Chun Kim Sut from disposing in any way of the $750 awarded Peterson in circuit court last week, until his own claim is satisfied, Antonio Perry, associate justice of the supreme court today filed a petition in circuit court.

Just prior to the filing of this petition an execution was served on the attorney, seeking to levy on any money or property to satisfy the claim, but the execution was returned by Deputy Sheriff Patrick Gleason as wholly unsatisfied.

The present case is the outgrowth of a suit won by Kawaia in Judge Cooper's court a week ago. Peterson, who had served as counsel for Chun Kim Sut, the Chinese held last year on a charge of infanticide claimed $750 for his services. He had assigned the claim to Kawaia, and the latter filed an affidavit yesterday stating that the assignment was made to him on December 11, 1912.

Directly after the Kawaia suit was decided the associate justice filed a demand for an accounting by Peterson. Perry holds a judgment against the attorney which he says amounts now to $2543.25. In the petition filed by Perry today he avers that his judgment was awarded on December 7, or four days before Peterson assigned his claim to Kawaia.

In his petition asking for the restraining order, Perry also alleges that Peterson assigned his claim to Kawaia without any satisfactory consideration in exchange, and on the instruction that the money was to be paid to Peterson's creditors as he, Peterson, should direct.

CRITICISMS OF CAMP CASTNER ARE EXPLAINED

Why Complaints Are Made and Reasons Why Post Is Built As It Is

Stories from Schofield Barracks criticizing Camp Castner and its buildings on the ground of exorbitant expenditure for inadequate results have met with emphatic denials by army engineers and builders, and more recently with investigations that reveal a state of affairs entirely different from what would seem to be the case from the many "kicks" and complaints that undoubtedly are emanating from the big post on the plateau. Stammered down to a few words, the trouble at Castner seems to be that, following the designs of army officials in Washington, and forced to erect buildings that will be at once permanent and cheap, the local army men have built a semi-concentrated type of post that arranges the houses closely together, and that sacrifices beauty of exterior finish to utility for all-around use.

No one can call the Castner officers' quarters beautiful; no one can even call them pretty. They are built of concrete, rather bare of exterior, nor do the windows and doors add much of comeliness to the general appearance. The porches, with their heavy concrete pillars, only add to the general air of unadorned austerity.

Complaints have been frequent at Castner, since the officers and their families moved in. Some of these complaints are entirely logical and most if not all of them are entirely natural. The post does not strike the observer as attractive, in fact it is just the reverse just now, before the walks and lawns are completed, and before the plants are growing along the streets and alleys. The camp site is still bare; everything is in the raw, with material just beginning to be cleared away. But the builders have a scheme for landscape gardening that looks as if it might redeem the appearance of the entire post.

Coming down to the officers' quarters themselves, where the principal criticisms seem to be, complaints have been made, and even have gotten into the service papers of the mainland, that the houses are uninhabitable. A visit to Camp Castner and inspection of a number of the houses shows that such a statement is very far from the facts. The houses are inhabitable, and are above the grade of most houses in Honolulu occupied by people in any except the weather walks of life. The rooms are not large, but they are not small; they approximate a medium, and while it is somewhat warmer at Castner than further up toward the mountain, it is cooler than in the majority of Honolulu homes, and the winds give good ventilation. The rooms, closets, bath-rooms, etc., are as well arranged as in other houses of approximately the same cost. A set of double officers' quarters at Castner costs $10,000, and considering the type of house that is built at the post, the money seems to have stretched farther than it generally does in expenditures for government work.

Of Permanent Type. A large part of the cost of these houses has gone into making them permanent. They are at Castner to stay. The walls and floors are of strongly reinforced concrete, the roofs are tiled. There is nothing of the flimsy construction usually associated with the tropics. The builders were ordered from Washington to make these quarters of a durable type, and they did it and did it well. But there are drawbacks in matters of detail. These drawbacks are just the kind that upset domestic arrangements and irritate in a score of petty ways. And, having to contend with these drawbacks constantly, it is not to be wondered at that officers' wives at Castner make some sharp complaints.

They point out little things that might be remedied—or might have been remedied—such as the absence of window fastenings, the inconvenient arrangements of windows. Say "Too Crowded."

An inspection of the post and a talk with Castner people reveals that the most generally-felt, or at least the most generally-voiced grievance, is with the type of post itself. The army designers back in Washington chose to make this post compact, small, concentrated. The buildings are close together, arranged in a horse-shoe shape, with the officers' quarters around each side and the street in the center.

Complaints are made that the quarters are too close for comfort and for privacy. It is true that they are close, but the fact is that they are no closer than the majority of city homes. But in the vast expanse of land on which Schofield Barracks is situated the Castner buildings, with almost limitless ground around them, certainly at first sight seem rather closely packed.

But there is a reason for this, and like everything else at Castner, that reason originated at Washington. It was felt, according to those in a position to know, that it would be great economy in building and later in populating the camp to make it a compact set of buildings. Thousands of dollars were saved in streets, sidewalks, pipe-lines, and other exterior features.

What Builders Had To Do. As a matter of fact, the Star-Bulletin is informed by Honolulu builders and contractors who have no interest whatever in Castner or the army construction work, the building of Castner is an achievement of which the entire army should be proud. More has been done with less money than

ALOHA PLANNED FOR CHINESE BALL-PLAYERS

The members of the All-Chinese baseball team, returning to Honolulu after a successful season on the mainland, will be tendered a royal welcome when they arrive in the Sierra Monday morning. Plans for their reception, which have been in the making during the past week, were completed this morning, and, according to the present arrangements, the baseballers will be lionized for a day at least.

A delegation of members of the Honolulu Ad Club will greet the players at the dock, in company with the Chinese consul and a committee of local Chinese business men. The team will then be placed in automobiles and given a ride through the principal streets, just to show the boys that the city has changed but little since their departure more than six months ago. Following this, they will be the guests of the Chinese consul at a party at his residence in Sheridan street. The Ad Club will entertain the players in the evening.

In order to complete their share of the greeting, the local Chinese merchants will give an elaborate Chinese banquet for the members of the team some time next week, but the exact date has not been set as yet. The All-Chinese team has made a wonderful record during the season just completed and their welcome home is but a slight token of the appreciation shown for the splendid manner in which they have conducted themselves throughout, and have spared no efforts in doing their share toward placing Hawaii more prominently in the eyes of the traveling public as a summer and a winter resort.

Police Notes

A horse attached to a delivery wagon having become frightened, E. K. Chung, the driver, was thrown to the ground and suffered minor injuries. He was given attention at the hospital.

Charged with street begging, Polos, an aged Hawaiian, was placed under arrest today. He is alleged to have been an inmate of Lunalia home, to which institution he will be returned.

Ozawa, a Japanese, alleged by the police as having attempted to bribe an officer with a view of securing a license to drive a delivery wagon, was found not guilty when arraigned before District Magistrate Monserrat this morning. Attorney Rawlins proved to the court's satisfaction that in the payment of $10 by the Japanese no attempt to bribe a public official was intended.

Two military prisoners under sentence at Schofield Barracks, made a successful break for liberty last Thursday and were recaptured by Harbor Officer Carter yesterday, the men being found on a vacant lot in the rear of a pineapple cannery at Iwilei. The men turned over to the military authorities this morning gave their names as J. L. Conley of Company H, 1st Infantry, and Private Gebas of Company L, 1st Infantry.

David Miller, an enlisted man, was placed under arrest at Lihue yesterday afternoon by Deputy U. S. Marshal David Sherwood, on a warrant accusing him of selling liquor without paying the special tax levied by the federal government. He will then be given a preliminary hearing at 2 o'clock Monday afternoon before U. S. Commissioner George A. Davis.

on almost any other post on Oahu, it is asserted. One contractor in Honolulu, Mr. J. L. Young, former army engineer and experienced in all kinds of construction work, says that Major B. F. Cheatham, quartermaster, and his associates are doing work for a figure that a private contractor could not afford to do.

"They are doing it so cheap that a private contractor could not meet their present figure and make a reasonable profit," is the statement made by Mr. Young.

Other Honolulu builders pay as high tributes to the handling of the Castner work. Even those who join in the criticism of the type of building used say that everything has been done that can be done to make the camp well-built.

Organization Built Up. Several improvements have been made in the "shooting" of the concrete from the "concrete gun," by which even better work is done than was done at Fort Ruger, where the system was given its first local trials. Months of hard work have been spent by Major Cheatham and his associates in developing a working organization, and they have it now. The army men have spent many days and nights in scheming and planning how to build these houses and keep within the sum allotted them, and it was only recently, they admit, that they were absolutely sure they could finish the camp as they agreed to do.

As matters now stand, the camp is practically complete, and certainly it is not "uninhabitable." When everything is done, the grass in, trees growing, flowers blooming and the water-system finished so that there is plenty of water, Castner will be a very different place. It will not be a collection of mansions, but it will be an army post built to meet the ideas of men in Washington, built for certain military efficiency plans—and built to stay.

GIRL IS VICTIM OF ACCIDENT AT Y.M.C.A.

The first accident to be recorded by the Young Men's Christian Association occurred in the games hall of that institution yesterday afternoon when Inga Larson, 15 years old, a pupil of the Central Grammar school, was struck in the forehead by a baseball bat which flew from the hands of one of the boys as he struck at an indoor ball. The girl was removed to the Queen's Hospital, where the wound was attended to, she being taken to her home during the evening. She was reported to be resting easily this morning.

The accident happened during the annual open-house of the Y. M. C. A. to the Central Grammar pupils. A lively game of indoor baseball had begun in the games hall between the girls and the boys, and one of the latter, striking at a ball, let go the bat, which sailed across the hall and struck Miss Larson. First aid was immediately applied by the secretary in charge and the girl taken to the hospital.

An interesting game of baseball will be played at Mollili Field at 10 o'clock tomorrow morning between the two teams of the "Bensine" League. These teams, representing the Auto Livery stars and the Oahu Auto Stand cracker, will battle for championship honors. Following is the lineup of the Auto Livery: V. Freitas, c; A. Machado, p; J. Hughes, 1b; A. Kalana, 2b; B. French, 3b; J. Riney, ss; J. Cummings, cf; S. Peters, lf; E. Cummings, rf; C. Lopez, mascot. Substitutes: Jim Quinn, Manuel Reis and Tom Quinn.
