SOUTH CAROLINA—THAT ACCIDENTAL SHOT.

The Charleston correspondent of the Philadelphia Inquirer, (Republican), writing on March 8th, gives the following explanation of the "accidental" shot fired at Fort Sumter on that day:

"On passing down Meeting street late last night, I saw that the official residence of Governor Pickens, and the headquarters of General Beauregard, were still open and illuminated. I saw messengers pass from one building to the other, and imagining that some coup d'etat was in preparation, I determined to be up early this morning, and on the lookout for squalls. About half past four, I went to the battery, containing General Beauregard and staff, and within an hour from that time the guns commenced firing blank cartridges, and at about half past six a ball was fired, which struck Fort Sumter near the gate. I was watching most intently with my glass, and saw Major Anderson, who had been watching the whole of the proceedings, open his battery on that side. A boat—which, strange to say, was in the most convenient spot for the purpose—was instantly dispatched under a flag of truce, Major Anderson mercifully awaiting its arrival. An apology was made to him, in which he was assured that the shot was "purely accidental"—the officer in command having no idea that the gun contained a ball. You can take these different facts, in connection with each other, and put upon them your own construction. Having moved about Charleston a great deal lately, and having heard the almost unanimously expressed opinion that Major Anderson would capitulate on the first attack, I have no hesitation in saying that it was a plot, the design of which was to test his loyalty to his country and his country's flag. I am happy to tell you that they are perfectly satisfied, or rather entirely dissatisfied, that Major Anderson is neither a coward nor a traitor. The men who expected that he was of Twiggs's calibre are entirely deceived, and the promptitude with which he opened his battery this morning proves that traitors need expect no quarter from him.

"I have heard from the best authority to-day that General Beauregard considers the artillery wholly inefficient to reduce Fort Sumter, and decides that it must be shelled. If he had any doubt before, he must have been convinced this morning. Singularly enough, it was one of the largest guns on the Point that was 'accidentally' discharged this morning, and one of those nearest to Sumter. It only grazed the skin" off the walls, and was otherwise harmless."

JACKSON'S RECONCILIATION WITH BENTON.—But the most remarkable case of reconciliation was that which occurred between Gen. Jackson and Col. Thomas H. Benton, whose brother Jesse's bullet Gen. Jackson still carried about with him, embedded in the flesh of his left arm. "Well," exclaimed Col. Benton, in one of his letters of this period, "how many changes in this life! General Jackson is now sitting in the chair next to me, and yesterday at the session. Several Senators saw our situation, and offered mediation. I declined it, upon the ground that what has happened could neither be explained, recanted, nor denied. After this, we were put upon the same committee. Facing me one day, as we sat in our seats, he said to me, 'Colonel, we are on the same committee; I will give you notice when it is necessary to attend.' (He was chairman, and had the right to summon us.) I answered, 'General, make the time to suit yourself; it will be convenient for me to attend at any time.' In committee we did business together just as other persons. After that, he asked me how my wife was, and I asked him how his wife was. Then he called and left his card at my lodging—Andrew Jackson for Col. Benton and lady; forthwith I called and left mine—Colonel Benton for General Jackson. Since then we have dined together at several places, and yesterday at the President's. I made him the first visit, he held forth his own hand, and we shook hands. I then introduced him to my wife, and thus civil relations are perfectly established between us. Jackson has gained, since he has been here, by his mild and conciliatory manner."

PROPOSED SECESSION OF A COUNTY.—The Nashville (Tenn.) Democrat has the following: "Franklin county is one of the half dozen in this State in which disunionists were elected. The returns had not well been lodged with the Secretary of State before the disorganizers offered their first fruits on the altar of secession—nothing more nor less than the defection of that county from the State, for the purpose of joining Alabama. We much doubt if that part of Alabama they are so anxious to join would feel flattered by the acquisition—the loss so from the fact that North Alabama wants to join Tennessee, because of her late glorious stand for the Union. Here are the resolutions: 'Resolved, That we earnestly petition the Legislatures of Alabama and Tennessee, through them, and by ourselves, and all other authorities that can give us any aid in the matter, to change the line between the States so as to transfer the county of Franklin to the State of Alabama, unless, before this can be done, Tennessee secedes from the Union, thereby giving to us a Government having our consent. And that copies of this and the next resolution be sent to the Governors of Alabama and Tennessee as early as can be.'

"Resolved, That, upon the conditions of the fifth resolution, we declare ourselves out of the Union, subject to be ratified by the States of Alabama and Tennessee, at a meeting in said resolution, which we again earnestly request may be early attended to."

Here we have secession carried to its full extent. For, if a State has a right to secede, why has not a county the same right?—N. Y. Express.

AN OLIGARCHY.—The State of South Carolina contains 29,967 plantations, containing 4,072,551 acres of improved and 12,145,949 acres of unimproved land—valued at $22,431,684; averaging to each, 541 acres.

The Government is based on the Constitution of 1790, and the amendments added to it at various periods. The right to vote requires a freehold of 50 acres in ordinary cases. The Legislature is elected annually. A Senator must be 30 years old, a resident citizen five years, and if resident in the district, must own a freehold worth $300; if non-resident, $1,000.

HARVARD COLLEGE.—The Massachusetts Legislature has chosen for overseers of Harvard College, Messrs. H. B. Wheelwright of Boston, Thomas Russell of Taunton, A. A. French of Braintree, F. W. Crocker of Barnstable, and A. A. Miver of Boston.

MISCELLANEOUS ITEMS.

THE HEAVENS.—The planet Mercury may now be seen a short time after sunset, passing from its superior conjunction to its greatest elongation, when it is in its greatest brilliancy. About twelve or fifteen degrees west of the Pleiades may be seen the planet Mars, of inferior brilliancy. In the east may be seen the planet Jupiter, in its great brilliancy, being superior to any other body in the heavens. Passing east, by Regulus, and distant about ten degrees, may be seen the planet Saturn, also in its greatest brilliancy.

Count Cavour, it is currently stated, has proposed and been accepted by an English lady holding a distinguished place at the Court of Queen Victoria, and whose title belongs to a high grade of nobility. It is added, that as soon as matters are somewhat more settled in Italy, the marriage will take place.

LOVE IN DEATH.—A few days ago, a young lady in East Boston, Massachusetts, who had consented to the last wishes of her lover, sick with consumption, named William Ricker, to be united to him before he died, arrived at the appointed hour in her bridal robes—only to find that he had died an hour before.

PROOF OF RATIONALITY.—A man residing in a neighboring town, at some distance from a near relative, received a message one cold evening in December to hasten to his residence, as he was in a dying state. When he arrived, he was told that his relative was a little better, but that his reason had entirely left him. The sick man presently turned his head, saying, in a faint voice: "Who is that?"

He was informed that it was his relative. "Oh, ah," said he, "yes, yes. He must be a-cold. Make him a good warm toddy—yes, a toddy."

"I guess he ain't crazy," said the visitor to the friends standing round, "he talks very rationally."

Colorado and Nevada are Spanish words. Colorado means colored, generally reddish, and is the name given to several rivers in America. Nevada means as white as snow.

A SECRET OF ELOQUENCE.—I owe my success in life to one single fact, viz: that at the age of twenty-seven I commenced and continued for years, the process of daily reading and speaking upon the contents of some historical and scientific book. These off-hand efforts were made sometimes in a cornfield, at others in the forest, and not unfrequently in some distant barn, with the horse and ox for my auditors. It is to this early practice in the great art of all arts that I am indebted for the primary and leading impulses that stimulated me forward, and shaped and moulded my entire subsequent destiny. Improve, then, young gentlemen, the superior advantages you here enjoy. Let not a day pass without exercising your power of speech. There is no power like that of oratory. Cicero controlled men by exciting their fears; Cæsar, by captivating their affections and swaying their passions. The influence of the one perished with its author, that of the other continues to this day.—Henry Clay.

BRIEF BUT SUFFICIENT.—A Boston correspondent (a lawyer of thirty years' standing) of the Portland "Argus" has the following: "Judge Curtis was engaged as counsel for a client in a patent case, (the matter relating to a certain machine for burring wool.) The case had been long contested, and various decisions had been given, chiefly in favor of the client of Judge Curtis. A motion was made for an injunction against the use of the plaintiff's patent—Judge Curtis being for the plaintiff, but making no argument to sustain the motion beyond the mere reiteration of certain admitted facts. The defendant's counsel occupied several days of the attention of the court in reply to the motion. He was so loquacious—made, as he thought, such a mighty spread as to lead himself to suppose that he must prevail upon the court to reject the motion. He concluded his speech, whereupon, Judge Curtis replied: "May it please your Honor, I have heard all the remarks of my learned brother, but I do not think it is necessary to say anything in reply."

"Judge Curtis took up his hat and umbrella, and left the court. The motion for an injunction was granted."

THE AGE OF FORTY-SIX.—Thomas Hood died at the age of forty-six, at the very moment when he had excited the greatest expectations. There seems to be a fatality at this period of life for a certain class of intellects, nearly as great as that which has rendered the age of thirty-seven dangerous to the higher ranks of artistic genius—to Raphael, to Mozart, to Burns, to Byron. It is the grand climacteric of a soldier's and the statesman's life. At forty-six, Pitt gave up the ghost, and passed away in the prime of his power. At forty-six, Napoleon lost the battle of Waterloo, and ended his career. At forty-six, Wellington won that battle, and may be said almost to have commenced his civil career. At forty-seven, Nelson's hour had come at Trafalgar. In literature, we find that Spenser died at forty-six, Addison at forty-seven, Goldsmith at forty-six, Hood at forty-six.
