she and her husband were visiting. His friends tried to persuade him to fly or to conceal himself, but he insisted on washington to that effect. Mrs. Clay accompanied him. Later with Mr. Clay, Jefferson Davis and his wife and bab, she made what must have been a terrible trip to those two women, the journey to Fortress Monroe, where they arted with their husbands-as they eared forever. Afterwards, with all the nergy and perseverance of a brave and slever woman, she set to work to liberate her husband, with whom for eight months President Johnson she besieged, bringing also to bear upon him the influence of such men as Gen. Grant, Horace Greeley, Thad Stevens and Henry Wilson, of Massachusetts chusetts. It is improbable that any President this country has had has ever en taken to task as President Johnson was by Mrs. Clay. She prophesied his impeachment. She told him which of his supposed friends were his enemies, and exposed intrigues and cabals that were exposed intrigues and cabais that he being carried on and existed against him, and half in fear of her and to make of her a friend, he granted her husband's release, bot not until she had told him she would never leave the White House without it, and every one who knew her could not doubt her determination. After the war Mrs. Clay found herself penniless. She borrowed $1,000 of Mr. Corcoran, the Washington philanthropist, and set about redeeming her plantation in Alabama. Her house, which was one of the finest in the South, had been razed to the ground, the marble bust of her dead baby had been kicked all over the garden, and her diamonds had passed into the posses-sion of some Ohio women. By dint of her own tireless energy Mrs. Clay has again a fine estate with over 100 tenants upon 1t.

THE DRESSES OF THE SEASON. The dresses worn at the various receptions during the winter have been more elegant than the average of past years Every woman here seems to have had an ensive wardrobe at her back. Among the young women in society, however, one class of dresses seems to have been entirely overlooked-suitable costumes for afternoon receptions were very rare. on dress parade on their waiks and drives. There was also an abundance of magnificent ball dresses. These answered their purposes very well, but the young women in once being without costumes of the semifull dress style, were left no alternative when assisting at afternoon receptions than to appear in their ball dresses. In the bright glare of the afternoon sun, and in broad daylight their arms and shoulders did not appear as advantageously as they do by gaslight. Most of the after-noon callers appeared in wraps, bonnets and overcoats, and the bare arms and bare shoulders of the young women looked decidedly chilly in contrast, not to say out of place. Female loveliness owes more to gaslight than pen can tell. JAPS FLEECED,

Bill Nye has given the heathen Chinee a bad reputation for ways that are dark and tricks that are vain. Bill fails to say anything about the Chinaman's cousing He also overlooked a large contingent of Yankees, who possess all the characteristics of the pigtails described. Several of the younger members of the Japanese legation here have just learned of this omission to their sorrow. A year or two ago a man claiming to represent four or five newspapers of more or less obscurity suddenly appeared in Washington and began to go the rounds. He had a distinguished air and appearance, and very affable manners, which made friends of nearly everybody with whom he became acquainted. He was generous to a fault, and remarkably fond of a good game of draw poker with the young men he met bout town, but never played with professionals. Stakes often ran high among these young amateur gamblers, and the whilom correspondent played as high as any one with whom he came in contact. He played in wonderful luck, his losses invariably being confined to small pots and his winnings to arge ones. No one suspected for a moment that there was anything wrong moment that there was anything wrong ut his playing, and he was such a good fellow that his companions as a rule took delight in, instead of begrudging, his good fortune. One of his favorite playing grounds was in a room at the Japanese legation used exclusively by the young bloods attached to the embassy. His winnings here were so uninterrupted and so large that the host of the party eventually became suspicious, and determined to secretly watch the lucky gamester. Last Saturday the game was in progress, and, as usual, the correspondent won all the large pots and lost very few of the smaller ones. The host observed that he invariably won the largest pots with aces. When it came the host's turn to deal he looked over the pack of cards. He did not find a single ace, for the simple and very good reason that none were there. Then the correspondent began to show some signs of exitement. So did the remainder of the party.

After conclusively proving that he had abstracted the aces the party resolved itself into a committee of the whole. The correspondent was called"a blackleg.""a scoundrel," "a skin gambler," and then conducted to the front door, from which he was kicked into the street.

A NEW KIND OF WORK. A Few Points about Making "Gobelin" Tapestry.

NEW YORK, March 5 .- A lady wellknown in New York society as the wife of a prominent banker and distinguished likewise for her artistic talents has invented a new kind of work that is likely to become popular with those whose tastes lie in the same direction, and who are, perhaps, tired of the conventional methods of painting. She has imported from abroad a quantity of the material mployed in the manufacture of tapestry. Upon this canvas she paints a design in exact imitation of the style and coloring of old Gobelin. The effect is remarkably striking, and the observer seems in regarding it to gaze upon an ancient and musty treasure from a foreign palace. The work is done in ordinary water colors, the tints being, of course, especially selected for the purpose, while the drawing can be copied from any appropriate picture and enlarged to suit the The sketch should first be made er, then placed over the canvas and the outlines pricked through by means of a very sharp lead pencil. This is necessary to insure absolute accuracy in the drawing, as it is impossible to erase a line once made upon the material. coom paneled with tapestry of this sort a charming appearance, though

A new way of ornamenting a dinner table is to lay upon it a mirror so large that only a wide enough margin is left for the plates and glasses of the guests. The mirror is round, square, oblong or oval, according to the shape of the table. On the edge is a border of flowers, which must be of one kind only. At a recent dinner given in this city the immense mirror was placed on a cover of yellow silk and surrounded by tulips of the same hue. On the plateau itself were rows of silver candelabra with yellow candles

BELLEVIEW'S REAUTIES.

Some of the Advantages Which are Pashing the Town to the Front.

BELLEVIEW, FLA., March 6 .- This is one of the towns which has sprung up within the last three years. For a year past it has been known to all the travelers on the Florida Railway and Navigation railroad as one of the most attractive owns on the whole line of the road. Some thousands of orange trees have been and will be set out this year. Property has passed from the hands of those who were not likely to improve it into the hands of others who are rapidly making improvements. One of the most enthusipersistent and successful in behalf of Belleview workers workers in behalf of Belleview is Rev. L. H. Hallock, of Portland, Me. A recent mark of his enterprise is the starting of a rose hedge of considerable extent. Mr. Dyer, a wealthy gentleman of Portland, Me., is the recent purchaser of one of our best locations, and is setting eleven acres with fine orange trees, with some peaches, pears and other trees intermingled. He brings his New Eugland ideas with him to some extent, as is evidenced by his putting quite a barn on his lot as his first enterprise in building. Col. N. B. Brown, an enterprising banker, of Concordia, Kan., has recently ecome interested in this town, and has invested quite extensively in town lots. The manufacture of the "Betts" wire and picket fencing is another industry that is It is expected that a fine hotel will be teen Men Put in Coffins.

CHICAGO, March s .- An Inter-Ocean special from St. Louis, Mo., says: "The well-known steamboat mate Charles Murphy, who died at the Marine Hospital yesterday, was given a somewhat remarkable wake last night. Murphy's relatives, said to be very wealthy, all live in San Francisco. In their absence a self-appointed committee of the dead man's river acquaintance took charge of the remains. The body was properly laid out at an undertaker's establishment, and great numbers of Murphy's old friends made their way to the place. Early in the evening a supply of stimulants to keep the mourners awake during their long vigil was provided. A keg of beer was tapped. As the small hours advanced one of the watchers, who had par-taken freely, stumbled against the coffin That end of the coffin fell from its stand to the floor, and out slid the corpse, overturning a table and snaking down several lighted candles into the

A scene of the wildest excitement ensued, which increased when it was discovered that the clothing of the cornse was blazing, and a cremation and confiagration threatened. The mourners, however, were equal to the emergency, and after great confusion put out the fire and righted the corpse and the coffin. Affairs gradually quieted down to such an extent that a number of the wakers fell asleep, many dropping out of their chairs to the floor. Then came the climax of the occasion. Coffins were brought out of the warerooms and one sleeper after another put into them until there were seventeen men in coffins when daylight broke. Not a man of them, however, failed to straighten up enough to join the con-course that followed the body to the grave this afternoon.

A NEW USE FOR SAMPLERS.

They are Taking Their Place with

Bric-a-Brac in the Parlor. NEW YORK. March 5 .- The old-fashioned samplers that our mothers and grandmothers worked when they were children have been removed from the garret or old trunks where they have lain and have been placed in the parlor or library; in other words, they have become fashionable and have been called forth with antique furniture and bric-a-brac. Who does not remember them? First came the alphabet, then a verse of socalled poetry, then two impossible green dogs and two green trees, of the Noah's ark variety, and the whole to conclude, as the advertisements say, with the name and age of the worker. They are rather pretty, these dogs, in their quaint and attractive way, and certainly a warn-ing to those not of an industrious turn of

A Priest Made a Lieutenant. Tuscola, Ala., March 6.—Rev. P. M. Donohue, a young Catholic priest of Arcola, who has charge of the churches of that denomination at Arcola and in this city, has just been created by Gen. Bou-langer, French Minister of War, a Lieutenant in the French army for service rendered. Father Donohue speaks the French and Italian langues fluently, and is something of a scientist. He is reticent as to what prompted the appointment, but it is believed that it is for valuable services rendered.

Charged With Rape. Montgomery, Ala., March 6.—John Powell, a colored boy, 19 years of age, was arrested to-day charged with attempting to rape a little girl named Lee, the daughter of a respectable white man here. The crime was attempted in the second story of a building in the heart of the city, where the family lives. Powell was employed to do odd jobs about the rooms, and seized an opportunity when both parents were absent and the child was alone. The child identified bim after

Broad and Seifish Road. NEW YORK, March 5 .- The other day I who get into print, and second only to dygore." Beecher or Talmage in originality, interest and eloquence. This was the Rev. Dr. Charles H. It is an Episcopal edifice with a High Church congregation and a choir of on "The Two Roads of the Soul"-the broad one and the straight and narrow one. His idea was that any absence of restraint puts us on the broad and selfish road, and he said the worn-out roue on that road would joggle against the pale and hollow-eyed Bible student who was injuring himself by an over-indulgence in study, as harmful as any other overindulgence. But the doctor was most startling when he came to address the fashionable ladies who burden their lives gressive euchre, balls and dinners. He said they could profit by the example of their kitchen servants, who are zealous in their obedience to the church, believe their priests are above the average of men, and think the Pope a great and wise man, "which I do not," he added. Even outside their religious duties they have a life work, whose burden they cheerfully carry, that of saving up from their hard-earned wages to send over and bring their relatives here "to this Paradise of Paddies." as he called this country. It struck me that here was a clergyman worth reporting with thoughts of low-necked dresses, pro

The other day I found myself in church in Montreal. A Sunday morning in the French Cathedral of Notre Dame in Montreal is an experience worth taking, apart from its religious benefits. The church is the biggest in America and is a gorgeous imitation, so far as wood and paint go, of the great Notre Dame in Paris. But its greatest peculiarity is its French congregation. The Frenchman differs from the Anglo-Saxon in nothing so much as in his noisiness in public gatherings. You have heard one person sneezing in a public hall, or you have been interested in the hacking cough of a neighbor in such a place. Please imagine 5,000 to 8,000 persons thus engaged. The church seats 10,000 and you quickly get the impression that they have been saving up two things for that Sunday and your spe-cial benefit; their colds and their wedding notices. Hack, cough-cough, ahchew, s-s-s-ist is the continual chorus all around you. Cough-cough. ah-chew, hack-hack, it goes. Fancy it! literally thousands of persons hard at work snift ing, coughing, speezing, blowing cornet blasts with their noses and clearing their throats as if they were planing wood by

To accentuate the singular melody there are luils now and then-but only for an instant. In a second somebody takes out his handkerchief and sounds a blatant challenge that sets nearly every man and is another accomplishment. The yellow woman in the church to doing their utmost to keep up the noise. It is a cold climate and snuff-taking community—and then it is just as much the fashion to make these noises in a French church as it is the fashion to repress them in an English angles, made amusing by the explanachurch. Relief comes when the grand organ rolls out its vast volume of rich melody and the choristers within the chancel rail respond angelically to the cherubic tones of the choristers up by the organ, a block away in the second gal-lery. Against such odds the sneezers and coughers and snifters wisely reserve their energies, so that when the music ceases they are found to have new vigor. Then, once again the challenge is sounded by a man with the bugleistic nose, and away they all go back-back, cough-cough, snift, | Hopcraft's recently the guests were in a

A thing, by the way, which no one ever does, no matter what they know. JULIAN RALPH.

GOSSIP OF THE STAGE.

Blakely Hall Says it is a Season of Dramatic Failures.

NEW YORK, March 5 .- This season will godown in dramatic annals as the most unsatisfactory one of recent years. The array of failures is impressive and disheartening. "Jim the Penman" is a success, and Mr. Daly's revival of the "Taming of the Shrew" has won its way steadily from the start, but the other plays have silently died away, and one production after another has met with its doom almost as quickly as it was produced. It is surprising to realize how difficult it is to achieve success on the

New York stage. A man of unquestionable genius and a comedian of national reputation, Mr. N. C. Goodwin, took the Bijou Theatre in C. Goodwin, took the Bijou Theat the early part of the season and produced a burlesque which has been the duced a burlesque which has been the landon ever since August. "Little Jack Shepherd" was well written, lav-ishly mounted and admirably played. It was not a success. Then a farce comedy which Mr. Goodwin bought in London was brought out with a noticeably strong company and ran for a short season. The acting of Mr. Goodwin in this piece was wonderfully diverting and amusing, but he did not create a sensation by any means. Then he produced the "Mascotte," and that was succeeded this week by the reproduction of the "Skating Rink," a elever skit on a silly craze by Robert

Griffin Morris. When it is taken into consideration that during his previous visits to New York Mr. Goodwin always played to the full capacity of immense theatres like the Grand Opera House and Niblo's Garden, it is difficult to understand how he has escaped a great success at a popular theatre like the Bijou when surrounded by the best conditions. Miss Helen Dauvray is another in stance of pluck and perseverance expended to no purpose. There is probably no more beautiful theatre in New York than the Lyceum, and Miss Dauvray, no no matter what opinion may be held as for them has not availed her in this case. The public simply will not go to her thea-

As for Wallack's Theatre the variety of the failures seems to have no perceptible effect on it. Nobody knows exactly on what theory Wallack's is run. The house is no longer fashionable, for Daly has captured its entire clientele, and its present silly melo-drama, "Harbon Lights," only attracts people from out of town. There are capable actors in the company and the scenery and accessories operatic pretensions. Dr. Hall preached are invarably beyond reproach. But the dramatic stuff that the theatre dishes up is trite, tiresome and antique. I have been in Wallack's seven or eight times this season and have never yet seen the As for the Union Square Theatre, its vicissitudes were so unfortunate and unimportant that no one has paid any particular attention to it. Nearly the same thing may be said of the Standard, and the misfortunes of the other houses would make tedious reading.

Exactly what has contributed most to the unsatisfactory nature of the present season is difficult to indicate, for the failures bave been diverse. Many a plucky manager has dropped a fortune since October, and he is at a loss to know where the money has gone.
And the public, too, complains, for there is no place to visit at night, and the loungers and men about town are disconsolate. It is a great pity that in such a great city as New York there should be such a provincial spirit in amusement matters. The people who love to be diverted at night and are anxious and willing to pay for it find themselves obsolutely at a loss. There is nothing as a substitute for the Music Hall of London or the Cafe Chantant of Paris. Nowhere in a city of 2,000,000 inhabitants can a man find a place of amusement where he can sit and smoke a good cigar and find amusement, or be amused by a clever song for an hour or two after dinner. The searcher for amusements in New York may go to a rigidly conducted and far from entertaining theatre or he may stay at home There is no such thing as a middle choice.

TABLE ECCENTRICITIES.

How a Skillful Carver Gained the Sobriquet of "Banana Bob."

NEW YORK. March 5 .- Eccentricity at the dinner table seems to be the rage this season. Any startling or unique innovation appears to be welcome. The fresh young man, who cuts a human face on an orange, and then squeezes the fruit until the eyes weep and the mouth driz-zles, is in his glory. If ladies are at the table he takes great pleasure in exhibiting his artistic skill. A few smile, some give vent to exclamations of commisera tion, and others preserve a dignified silence. Peeling an orange geometrically rind is cut in lines with a sharp pen-knife until it resembles the "prisoner's puzzle," just now attracting so much attention. The skin is then stripped from the fruit in sections, making quaint tions accompanying the Malaga grape, the radish and the banana also afford much amusement in the hands of accomplished artists. Indeed one man has won such eclat by his skill in carving vegetables and esculents that he is known in society as "Banana

Frequently these dining table eccen tricities are turned into practical jokes. At a little dinner given to ex-Sheriff William Wright, of Newark, N. J., at George Not even the piping voice of the assist-late cream candies were stuffed with cotant priest who reads the banns of the be- ton, the lemon drops were made of gum crothed couples interrupts the bronchial | gualacum and the candled almonds were refrain. The shoe was a candied dummy made to order. The little way, like the endless call of a peddler in the street, only that it never grows faint ment that a police officer of Irish descent appeared. On seeing the condition of the table, the room and its occupants he apologized for his intrusion, Shin fane! shin fane! I thought vees were havin' a bit of a ruction, but it's nothin' but a shindy!" He improved the opportunity offered while all heads were turned listening to a good story to sweep the remains of the confectionery into his capacious coat pocket. The theft was discovered after his departure. "If his wife gets a choco-late cream, his mother-in-law a lemon drop, and the youngest child an almond bean, what a happy time that policeman will have after he gets home," ob-served the sheriff, and the hilarity was redoubled. I hear of dinners in the avenue, where living canaries fly out of the pies, and where bouquets of choice flowers hooped with diamond rings are placed at the plate of each guest. At another entertainment, tiny oil paintings on leaves of ivory depicted scenes in the life of each guest. Uncle Rufus Hatch displayed an unmatched eccentricity prior to his de-parture to Europe. He had invited a parture to Europe. He had invited a friend to dine with him in a private room at Morelli's. An excellent dinner was served. At its conclusion, and while the coffee was steaming, Rufus called for Cubanos. They were brought. "Now bring us a light," said the ex-magnate from Wall street. The waiter lighted a short snowy-wicked candle. Rufus raised the china candlestick to his mouth and lighted his cigar. He then replaced the stick on the table, and to the surprise of his guest, took the lighted candle from its socket, put it in his mouth, ate and swallowed it. He changed not a muscle of his countenance, but there was a merry twinkle in his gray eyes. A similar candle was placed before his guest, who also lighted his cigar. When asked why he did not eat the taper he replied that he was no Cossack. Thereupon Rufus opened his mouth and sent the second candle into his stomach after the first

It was a week before the guest got an explanation of the mystery. The candles were parts of apples fashioned into rotund shape by the expert use of a penknife and the wicks were the meats of almonds pared down and stuck into the top of the vegetable tapers.
