

THE DAILY REBEL.

Office of Market Street, nearly opposite the Post Office.

CHATTANOOGA.

THURSDAY MORNING, SEPT. 18, 1862.

To-day being set apart by the President as a day of thanksgiving and prayer...

THE POLICY OF THE WAR.

To what extent we ought to carry retaliation upon our enemies for the depredations and outrages committed in our country...

The general order issued by the Secretary of War of the United States in the city of Washington...

We find ourselves driven by our enemies by steady progress towards a practice which we abhor and which we are valiantly struggling to avoid.

Again he says: The President also instructs me to inform you that we re-assume our right of retaliation...

Our Government will not do any thing which will incur the charges of cruelty. We have a right to take what we can for the sustenance and support of our army...

of our citizens hereafter. This matter ought to be settled, and we ought to resort to such measures of retaliation as are necessary...

What ought to be done in reference to the negroes they have stolen from us, is a matter proper to be settled in a treaty of peace...

Although the British had plundered their country, yet they did not permit any such minor questions as the mere amount of property taken by the enemy to interfere with the great object they had in view...

Gen. Lee also says, in the same letter: We find ourselves driven by our enemies by steady progress towards a practice which we abhor...
