THE POLYNESIAN, SATURDAY, MAY 1, 1852.

SAVANNAH, APRIL 28, 1852.

A report of the Committee on the joint resolutions of the House and Senate of the 21st and 22d of March, was laid before Congress, which was accordingly referred to a committee of the whole House. The committee had been instructed to report a bill providing for the permanent establishment of a Board of Inspectors of Works, and to report a bill authorizing the expenditure of $500,000 for the construction of a lighthouse on the coast of Georgia. The report of the committee was unanimous in favor of the first bill, and favorable to the second. The bill providing for the permanent establishment of a Board of Inspectors of Works was adopted by the House, and referred to the Senate. The bill authorizing the expenditure of $500,000 for the construction of a lighthouse on the coast of Georgia was also adopted by the House, and referred to the Senate.

Mr. A. D. Smith presented a bill providing for the permanent establishment of a Board of Inspectors of Works. The bill was read, and referred to a committee of the whole House. The committee had been instructed to report a bill providing for the permanent establishment of a Board of Inspectors of Works, and to report a bill authorizing the expenditure of $500,000 for the construction of a lighthouse on the coast of Georgia. The report of the committee was unanimous in favor of the first bill, and favorable to the second. The bill providing for the permanent establishment of a Board of Inspectors of Works was adopted by the House, and referred to the Senate. The bill authorizing the expenditure of $500,000 for the construction of a lighthouse on the coast of Georgia was also adopted by the House, and referred to the Senate.

Mr. A. D. Smith presented a bill providing for the permanent establishment of a Board of Inspectors of Works. The bill was read, and referred to a committee of the whole House. The committee had been instructed to report a bill providing for the permanent establishment of a Board of Inspectors of Works, and to report a bill authorizing the expenditure of $500,000 for the construction of a lighthouse on the coast of Georgia. The report of the committee was unanimous in favor of the first bill, and favorable to the second. The bill providing for the permanent establishment of a Board of Inspectors of Works was adopted by the House, and referred to the Senate. The bill authorizing the expenditure of $500,000 for the construction of a lighthouse on the coast of Georgia was also adopted by the House, and referred to the Senate.

Mr. A. D. Smith presented a bill providing for the permanent establishment of a Board of Inspectors of Works. The bill was read, and referred to a committee of the whole House. The committee had been instructed to report a bill providing for the permanent establishment of a Board of Inspectors of Works, and to report a bill authorizing the expenditure of $500,000 for the construction of a lighthouse on the coast of Georgia. The report of the committee was unanimous in favor of the first bill, and favorable to the second. The bill providing for the permanent establishment of a Board of Inspectors of Works was adopted by the House, and referred to the Senate. The bill authorizing the expenditure of $500,000 for the construction of a lighthouse on the coast of Georgia was also adopted by the House, and referred to the Senate.

Mr. A. D. Smith presented a bill providing for the permanent establishment of a Board of Inspectors of Works. The bill was read, and referred to a committee of the whole House. The committee had been instructed to report a bill providing for the permanent establishment of a Board of Inspectors of Works, and to report a bill authorizing the expenditure of $500,000 for the construction of a lighthouse on the coast of Georgia. The report of the committee was unanimous in favor of the first bill, and favorable to the second. The bill providing for the permanent establishment of a Board of Inspectors of Works was adopted by the House, and referred to the Senate. The bill authorizing the expenditure of $500,000 for the construction of a lighthouse on the coast of Georgia was also adopted by the House, and referred to the Senate.