A sap accident, resulting in the death of the only son of Mr. H.J. As he did so he heard a shout stopped the engine in a moment, and it was then discovered that the young lad, who had been standing on the end of the car next to the was degraded into a contest as to who should get tender—had been thrown between the car and the tender, and that he had been killed by the gold, and call it a gold case, then the time came in the tender striking him pron the head panelled a jury to view the body which was then conveyed to the residence of Mr. Nolte. MR. COLEMAN's newly invented and patented cane planter-the result of the experimental trip of which has been noted in these columns-is now in successful operation on Parker's planta-tion at Kaneohe. The first work done by the machine was to furrow, plant and cover over two and a half acres of land—furrows six feet apart -in six hours, which is equal to about four probably be considerably lessened on other machines which will be made lighter than the one now in use without detracting from their strength. The area of land planted can also be increased by using mule power and thus securing greater speed. Owing to the failure of the Legislature to annul the present patent law, Mr. Coleman can fully protect himself in all his rights to the machine here, and he has filed the necessary papers before the Consuls in the United States and elsewhere. THE trial of the steam fire-engine in Alakea street on Saturday afternoon was a success and a failure. It was a success as far as a mere twoinch connection with Dr. McGrew's well-head could afford a test of what could be done, for, when the engine was in full work there was plenty of extra water to be had from other connections with the well. It was a failure, because a two-inch connection to supply a four-inch suction hose is a useless thing. It may answer well enough with 150-lb pressure in the mains, but as things go in Honolulu such a pressure is not available unless the supply from a ful! reservoir can be concentrated at the spot where the engine is at work. The Department have connections of no other calibre, although their fireplugs communicate in many places with mains of at least 4-inch diameter. A connection subsequently made with the street mains in showed that the supply from the well was in-finitely better than that from the water mains at he hour of trial, 5 p.m.

THE Amateur Musical Society gave a grand concert on Saturday evening in the Music Hall, The concert was announced as "in aid of the funds" of the Society and was very well attended, nearly all the seats in the dress circle and parquette being secured beforehand. The prices of admission however, appear to have been fixed too low for an occasion the special object of which was money-raising, and notwithstanding that the lower part of the house was filled there will only be some $75 for the treasury of the Society after all the expenses are paid. Cowen's cantata "The Rose Maiden" was given, preceded by some instrumental selections and by a song "Robert toi qu' j'aime," by Miss Ponti, The principal parts in the cantata were sung by Mrs. Paty, Mrs. J. F. Brown, Mr. T. Walker, and Mr. J. F. Hackfeld, and for the choruses there was a full muster of the members of the Society to the number of nearly forty, The orchestra was under the leadership of Prof. Berger and consisted of nine amateurs, Both the vocal and instrumental portions of the performance were highly meritorious and were often warmly applauded by the audience.

THE eucalyptus tree has proved itself to be of great value in this country, not only for tuel but as a shade and as an ornamental tree There are many localities now covered with groves made up of different varieties of this tree, that, before they were planted, were barren wastes. It has been proved that worn-out cane lands are the best possible spots on which to grow the eucalyptus, and many a field still under cultivation with cane is ferced by rows of fine trees, to which a few lines of wire are fastened. THE THE PARTY OF T

INQUEST.

On Sunday last the Coroner, David Dayton, empannelled the following jury to take evidence in regard to the death of the young son of Mr. H. J. Nolte: S. Roth, J. H. Schuack, J. Asch, Louis Adler, F. Wilhelm, C. Gertz. The jury, after viewing the body, adjourned until Monday, in order that witnesses might be summoned from Waimanalo Upon assembling on Monday p.m. the followng persons were sworn and gave their evidence in effect as follows :-Moses Hiram testified that he was employed as engineer upon the road where the acsident occurred, and on the 12th instant, a little before

4 o'clock p.m., started from the junction of the two roads with the locomotive pushing before it three trucks laden with railroad iron. There were seven or eight boys on the truck nearest the engine when he started, and he told them to get off. They did not do so. Saw one of the lunas standing by the side of the track motioning with his arms for me to stop, but before I scruple, and enabling them to prepare their did so he waived for me to go on. Went on about 100 feet, and then the luna signalled for me to stop. Did so. The boys were still on utensils with them. The following is the daily me to stop. Did so. The boys were still on the truck. I turned around when I stopped to diet scale for an adult, the provisions to be supreverse the lever, and heard some one call out plied them from the plantation store at prime 'Pilakia Charley." Shut off steam, jumped "Pilakia Charley." Shut off steam, jumped off the engine, and saw Charley under the ash- lbs. rice, 4 ounces whole or split pleas, 1 ounce

James Smith testified to seeing the boys on the truck, and to hearing Mrs. Nolte call to from their wages. They could supplement their Charley to get off the cars. He told her he was diet with the vegetables and fruits of the islands, all right. The witness was walking alongside to all of which they are accustomed, these they the cars, which were not moving but a little faster than he was walking. When they stopped heard the cry for help, and when he reached the engine saw the body lying as described by

Thomas Cummins, jun., saw the boy sitting on the edge of the car next the engine. Next he saw him under the ash-box. The car and engine were about twenty feet apart. J. A. Cummins, sen., certified to the appearance of the body when it was taken out from under the engine, and also stated that the distance from the axle to the ground was about five inches, and from the ash-box to the ground about

Frederick Peterson deposed that he was on the locomotive at the time of the accident, Charlie was on the truck, and when the engineer stopped the engine he tried to jump on the notive, but missed, and fell under it. The distance between the locomotive and the truck was about three feet. Both engine and truck were moving slowly in the same direction at the time, the trucks rather the faster, being then uncoupled. Dr. Stangenwald testified that he had examined the body of the little boy, and found that the skull was fractured from over the right eye across the forehead, over the left side, and over Queen," and the spirited "Victor Emmanuel" the back of the head, completely separating the march which last called forth some vivas from a bones, so that the upper part could be moved from the lower part. The skin was not much injured, showing that the injury was caused by some blunt object, not a sharp edge. The right leg was broken above the ankle, and three fingers of the right hand badly cut and bruised. There were other bruises upon the body, but death was undoubtedly caused by the injury to the head, and must have been instantaneous, After the hearing of the evidence, the jury returned the following verdict :- The death was acres in nine hours. The force used was seven | accidental, and caused by jumping from the car yoke of oxen and six men, which force will while in motion, the locomotive going partly over the body.

THE Philadelphia (Pa., U. S. A.) Ledger lately mentioned, among many others, the case of Chief of Police of that city, Samuel H. He has also heard from many who have used it for rheumatism that it, above all remedies, did them good.

What the People Say.

We invite expressions of opinion from the public upon all subjects of general interest for insertion under this head of the ADVERTISER. Such communications should be authenticated by the name of the writer as a gua-rantee of good faith, but not necessarily for publica-of popular discussion and inquiry.

To all inquirers we shall endeavor to furnish information of the most complete character on any subject in which they may be interested.] The East Indian Coolie.

MR. EDITOR:-The importation of the East Indian Coolie as a labor supply to our plantations has been under discussion from time to time, and I think the question may be re-opened order to get water for the boiler of the engine | with a view to encourage the Board of Immigration to give the scheme a fair trial out of the appropriation at their disposal, and thereby set at rest by actual experience the many theories advanced for and against their introduction. The Colony of British Guiana from 1838 to the present time has systematically recruited this abor, which fact is conclusive evidence that East India Coolie labor is of value to the planter. Other nationalities were introduced, and the proportion at the end of ten years was as follows: 2,000 Africans Portuguese .

during this term 7,000 East Indians returned to their homes. Here we have tested as laborers, Scandinavians, Portuguese, Chinese, and South Sea Islanders, and the merits of each nationality are known to the planter, therefore, while the Government have funds at their disposal, why not make the experiment with East Indian labor I will endeavor to show the cost of introducing and employing this labor, Assuming that we have recruited 800 adults to serve for five years the cost of collection and transport to these Islands would be as follows: Bonus to recruiters at $5 per adult, $ 4,000 Bounty to emigrant, $5. 4.000 Charter and fitting of steamer 17,500 Agency charges-salaries, travelling expenses, advertising, printing, and contingent charges Food for voyage of 30 days at 12 cents. 2.880 Averaging within a fraction of $43 per adult, After the expiration of their term the Convention stipulates for a free return passage, this would cost at the above estimate, for transport and food, say $25, those re-engaging receive $25 The rate of pay and ration allowance would be regulated by that offered by the established agencies, and would not exceed monthly, per adult males $9, ration allowance, $4; females $5, ration allowance, $3. Minors from 16 to 18, males $4.50, females 2.50; ration allowance, $2.50. About 16 and under 21, males $6, females $3.50; ration allowance, $2.50 With full wages and ration allowances at 21 years. The coolies would prefer cooking their own rations, the provisions being supplied to them at cost price from the plantation stores. The cost of Portuguese to the planter under the present arrangement is, per male adult $100. female and minors $50. But what does the very large percentage of unproductive labor represented by children cost him to feed and house. We know the Government sunk $30,000 on the last shipment per Monarch for unproductive

I am, etc. The Labor Question. Sin :- I am sorry to see that certain recent statements of Fiji papers have led you to look upon Western Polynesia as a worn out field for labor recruiting. There has always been more or less difficulty in procuring laborers from that quarter, and almost every year the same cry is to be found in the Fiji and Queensland papers; whether got up by interested parties or not I cannot say. Whatever difficulty there may be in getting men from New Hebrides and the islands to the west of that group, I would like to see our planters and the government recognize and extra cost that they may cause. They are, undoubtedly, the best field laborers in the world that is for plantation work in a hot country. The only sample of them that we have ever had here were those that came up by the Pomare. These are on different plantations, and at the Planters' Convention their employers spoke in such terms of them that in spite of Judge Harts'

perience in the matter I would ask you to permit me to give some information on the subject through your columns. In the first place I would remark that a good deal depends upon the kind of soil your sup-positious acre is composed of; as in some localities you couldn't grow any bananas or anything else for that matter. But presuming that the soil is good and moisture abundant (I use the not desirable) the banana sprouts can be planted six feet apart in rows six feet distant from each other, leaving occasional paths of ten feet in acre. The plants or young shoots more properly speaking should be bedded in the bottom of holes dug about 15 or 18 inches in depth. This depth is regulated somewhat by the character of the soil. If the surface be rich and porous and a compact clayey subsoil is found, the holes must be shallow. In no case should the haului or bunch of rootlets be bedded in clayey soil. Again, -and this is an old native fact-the shoot should not be planted upright but a little inclined. The object of this is two fold. When the fruit is matured it is nearer the ground and easier to cut than when the plant is upright, and secondly, it will be found that the shoots from the old plant are clustered on the upper sideif so it may be called, and are better matured and easier detached when needed for planting. Again the shoots do better if planted in a soil that is a little different from that in which they grew-and so they should be shifted to other acres. With a minimum of care given to them when young the plants will do well and produce fruit in about twelve months from the time of transplanting, irrespective of the time of year or 50 pounds in weight it is easy to see that the amount of food thus grown to the acre is From the front balcony a very pleasant view of compared with the expense attendant upon raising a crop of potatoes, it will be found that an interior finishing that it will very soon be ready for occupation. Already the forward state of matters rendered it possible for His Majesty to give a banquet in the Dining Hall to the members of the Assembly on the occasion of the prorogation. Outside the Palace, great improvements have also been made during the past few months. Wide carriage drives have been constructed from the King Street and Richard Street Gates. Then sweep entirely round the Palace. In front they broaden into a great oval affording room for a muster of the Household troops and the Band on state occasions without interference with the approach for carriages. These changes have involved the removal of a number of trees. The open space permits the façade of the Palace to be grasped at one view, and the structure gains as much in appearance as is possible for a building whose design is so little suitable to its character. In the terraces over which] the verandahs of the Palace extend a pavement of colored tiles, of chaste and pleasing design, is being laid by Mr. Bowler. This is a great improvement and corresponds much better with the elaborately ornate character of the ceilings of the verandahs than the cemented floors origi-

Inside Mr. Lucas's workmen have so far completed their task as to permit of a general idea of what the Palace will look like when occupied. The staircase with its massive balusters and the panelling of its landings, all of highly polished koa looks now very handsome and relieves the appearance of the hall, Nothing can compensate for the erroneous design of the staircase enforced by the plan of the rooms on the uppe floor, but the best has been made of the circumstances with a result far nobler in its proportions and better in effect than we had ventured to nels. The front doors and those of the rooms which open into the hall are of koa with tomano panels. The upper part of the front door has figured glass specially cut for the purpose. The carved work over the folding doors between the dinning room and reception room has at the suggestion of Her Majesty the Queen, been relieved by some mouldings of kon. The sliding doors themselves are handsome, being of kon. with tomano panels and mouldings in walnut. Upstairs the wainscotting is all of white cedar. Here the floors of the rooms have been carefully planed and polished, as the carpets ordered for them are not intended to cover the whole floor. We hope it will not now be long before we can give our final notice of this building and report t at last as out of the hands of workmen.

THE IMMIGRATION BARRACES. Since last occupied the Immigration De Kakaako has undergone a thorough overhauling under the immediate superintendence of Captain John H. Brown, and sundry improvements of a minor character have been carried out. When visited by our reporter, the place looked exceedingly pleasant, and it must be a delightful change from shipboard for immigrants after the weary journey round the Horn. A new solemn protest against bringing here any more savages a resolution was passed to have "a good man with full powers" sent "as soon as possible to the New Hebrides." This instruction has, I am glad to see, been carried out, and I have not the least doubt the result will show its wisdom. The difficulty of obtaining men has al- tories for men, but should the necessity arise it department. THE HAWAIIAN HOTEL Alterations and improvements are still in progress at the Hotel. All fences and old out buildings have been removed from the lot at the orner of Richard and Beretania Streets which Dr. McGrew has thrown into the hotel premises, and the tower formerly used in connection the gas supply has been removed bodily to the rear of the kitchen. These changes leave a fine open space behind the Hotel, surrounded by the cottages which are provided for guests. The bar word moisture advisedly for too much water is of the hotel has been remodelled and extended across the whole width of the saloon. Great credit is due to Mrs. Lawlor for the tasteful selections of new furnishings made by her in San Francisco, and to Mr. Lawlor for judgement in his suggestions as to things necessary and desirable; suggestions which have been liberally carried out by the new proprietor, who seems to have but one idea, viz: to make the hotel everything that it should be, MR. BAWLING NEW BUILDING.

A handsome building to be used for the purposes of office store and dwelling, has been lately erected for Mr. Rawlins on the frontage to the main road of his well known Soap Works on King Street. Mr. Sam'l Harrison was the contractor for the building which is of brick on a stone basement, with front of compressed bricks. The front, of this building is twenty-four feet, and it runs back forty-two feet. The lower story has a cemented floor laid down in Mr. Harrison's when set out. Ripe bananas can be had all the best style. The upper story is divided into suityear round, and as good bunches will average 40 able dwelling apartments and has a wide balcony simply enormous. THE Y. M. C. A. BUILDING. Work was commenced a fortnight ago by Mr. Lucas on the foundations of the new Hall for the Young Men's Christian Association. We have already given a general account of what this building is to be. The contract price has by some alterations in the specifications been reduced to $14,600, but no change has been made in the character or dimensions of the building. Already the walls of the basement are some feet above the ground, and arrangements are being made to have the corner-stone laid about 31st instant with appropriate ceremony.
