About a hundred head of Trego county horses passed through Hill City this week being driven to Phillips county where arrangements had been made to winter them.—Hill City Republican.

Governor Stubbs says the taxpayers of every county should form a tax league. Most of them have. The men take out membership when they get their tax receipts. More can be written about it after the votes are counted next November.—Osborne Farmer.

The "down east" reporter who said jack rabbits are starving to death out here, ought to be made to carry two around one hour and he would think they had been feeding on the fat of the land. No, Mr. Rabbit knows full well how to get his living and a good one at that.—Hill City New Era.

Old story which has been going the rounds of the newspapers: A country school teacher was receiving her monthly salary. The clerk gave her some soiled bills and told her to be careful as he suggested that germs were said to thrive on dirty money. "Don't worry," she said. "No microbe could live on my salary."

The Grainfield Cap Sheaf tells about a heifer, belonging to Art Spencer of that place, that froze to death standing up. Mr. Spencer went out to milk the cow in the morning and when he told her to "hiss" she wouldn't "hiss." He sat down and commenced to milk anyway and went back to the house with a whole bucket of ice cream.

County high school bonds cannot bear more than five per cent interest. The issue in any one county cannot be more than $20,000. They cannot run more than 20 years. They may be issued in demonations not less than $100 nor more than $1,000. If the bonds are sold to the state they may be paid of gradually, before maturity according to the taxpaying ability of the county.

The next entertainment will be given Friday evening, February 16. This will not be a lecture, but a comedy by Edward Elliott, monologist. (Accent on the second syllable.) A monologue is a speech or discourse by one person. (From monos, meaning one or alone, and logos, meaning speech or language). A monologist, therefore, is one who takes all parts of a play and impersonates all the characters in it.

The Trego county high school was established by law by a vote of the people of the county and there is no lawful way to disorganize it. To defeat the high school bonds will not and cannot abolish the school; only hamper it temporarily and increase taxes two or three years. If the bonds do not carry the trustees will be forced to continue to make a building levy. They have no choice in the matter. The law says they SHALL make the levy. If the bonds carry the levy will be reduced one-half or more and a part of the burden will be born by future patrons of the school.

Gibson, Mr. and Mrs. C. Steinberger, Dr. and Mrs. W. Y. Herrick, Mrs. L. C. Gleason, Mr. and Mrs. H. S. Givler and Miss Margaret Swiggett.

Occasionally things happen which are not on the program—more or less opportune, according to the viewpoint. One of these "unexpecteds" occurred at a recent appearance of the Victoria Lynn Concert Company at Wa-Keeney, Kansas. Miss Lynn, reader and manager of the company, was giving one of her most inimitable selections. The story portrayed the pride and concern of a young mother who was endeavoring to "raise" her "firstborn" according to "the book." The imaginary infant was finally placed in the hands of its nurse and sent into an adjoining room from which the audience was supposed to hear more or less plaintive wails emerging, which proved to be the "psychological moment." Just as the fond mother was saying "it isn't really as loud as it seems," a nearby steam whistle emitted a series of ear-splitting blasts. The house came down handsomely. So did Miss Lynn, but she was equal to the occasion and probably no one enjoyed the situation more than she.

Dear Amy,—

Say! You and Bob must come over and take dinner with us next Sunday. We have just got such a nice new dining room table. that I want you both to share our first Sunday dinner upon it. Bring the kiddies, too. We can put in a leaf.

I had a hard time picking out a table. They had so many beautiful ones. I also saw lots of new furniture that I wanted. John has promised to furnish our home nicely all the way through. Don't forget to bring the kiddies. As always,

Lou.

P. S.—I bought my new table and chairs from
