RABBI WECHSLER TALKS.

He Addresses the Christian Ministers -The Resurrection.

At the meeting of the Christian ministers at English's Hotel yesterday morning, Rabbi Judah Wechsler, discussed "Ancient and Modern Judaism." In reviewing the history of the Jews he spoke of how faithful the race has been to its law and creeds, and through the ages of persecution, the race has remained true to its religion. The rabbi said it was wrong for people to say that because the Jews do not believe in the divinity of Christ they are inclined to mock at his teachings. Had it not been for the fanatics Christ would never have been crucified, the rabbi said. The rabbi answered a number of questions asked by the ministers, announcing among other things that there are 900,000 Jews in this country.

Before Methodist Ministers.

An address on "The Resurrection" was delivered at the meeting of the Methodist Ministerial Association yesterday morning by Rev. Virgil W. Tevis, pastor of Broadway Mcthodist Church. In the course of he said: "Like Daniel Webster I am glad that we worship a God of mystery, for it would be impossible to worship any other God. Jesus himself hurled the challenge at the Roman government and the Jewish nation. He said, 'Destroy my body and it will rise again within three Dr. Watson in his new history of the Master, which is now running through one of the magazines, says that Christ referred to the Temple of God when He said those words. But Dr Watson is mistaken; Christ meant exactly what he said. He meant that his body would rise, and his body did rise. We have every evidence that the Savior was seen after his strange disappearance from the tomb, and the fact of his resurrection will in the end convert

MINE OWNER SEEKS AID.

He Says the Union Men Are Stirring Up Trouble.

B. F. Strasses, of the Indiana Coal Company, at Washington, Daviess county, paid a visit to the city yesterday for the purpose of invoking the aid of the labor commission. Mr. Strasses is running a mixed union and nonunion men, and he elelms that union men from other camps are trying to intimidate his men and stop them from working, because of the employment of nonunion men. He asked the commissioners to put an end to outside interference. Labor Commissioner Schmidt will go to Terre Haute to-day and ask President Van Horn, of the Eleventh district of United Mine Workers, to aid Mr. Strasses in the settlement of his troubles. An employe of the Ontario silver works, at Muncle, was discharged for breach of discipline. He appealed to the other emloyes, who struck. Since then the men have realized that they were not justified in striking and will return to work at once.

WESTERN SHIPPERS DISREGARD RULES ON EXPORT BUSINESS.

Views of Traffic Manager Grammer of the Lake Shore Lines-L. E. & W. Stock Touches Par.

Freight traffic men have decided to stop revenue leak resulting from the prac tice of shippers taking advantage of a rule giving them export carload rates whether freight goes to one or more steamboat ines. The rule that has been taken advantage of is that "on carload shipments of export freight no extra charge for harbor delivery will be made when more than one delivery to steamship line is required." Shippers in the West, taking advantage of these split deliveries, put in a lot of freight for local delivery in New of lading at the carload rate and consigning to themselves, foreign freight agents of the trunk lines, or to forwarders who look after the deliveries to the steamboat lines as well as to the local consignees. As a result the trunk line freight committee has adopted a rule that when any local lots are shipped in the same car with export-freight that less-than-carload rate be charged, and if the export share of the shipment weighs less than the carload minimum the minimum carload rate be charged, in order to obtain the carload rate. If the shippers decline to pay the less-than-carload rate on the domestic and the carload rate on the export on basis of carload minimum weight, the trunk lines will refuse to make split deliveries of the export shipments, lighterage free.

Lake Erie & Western.

United States Inventor, April 7. The sensation of the week has been the reached in years. While it may confidently be asserted, a decided advance is the natural outcome of a passage of this property from the control of Brice interests to those of Vanderbilt, yet the 121/2 point SECURITY MORTGAGE LOAN jump in a single day appears to have had other influences to guide it. After the death of Calvin S. Brice, a large quantity of Lake Erie & Western stock was, it is said, bought in the name of clerks of the Guaranty Trust Company. This was interpreted as an indication that the Vanderbilts were securing control, and it developed later that this reckoning was correct. Allied, as the road now is, with Lake Shore, Big Four and other of the Vanderbilt properties, and with earnings showing handsome increases, preferred stockholders are anticipating that their shares will soon be placed on a 5 per cent. basis. The road is earning now at the rate of about 9 per cent, on both the preferred and common. For the year ending Dec. 31, 1899, the net earnings of Lake Erie & Western were

> Views of Traffic Manager Grammer. General Traffic Manager Grammer, of the Lake Shore, who was in New York on Saturday, said that there was no let up in tonnage that was offered the eastbound lines. Rates, he said, are being maintained, despite all statements to the contrary; of course, they are very low, considering what they have been, but they are being maintained. "The new rate on grain went into effect last Monday," said he, "and I am satisfied it, too, will be maintained. This talk of cutting is nonsense. Why we haven't enough cars to move our regular tonnage, owing to the blockade on the Eastern lines, and we are getting our full share for our service. The outlook for rates is decidedly good. Lake navigation will open in a week or two, but even then rates will not be disturbed by that factor. There is enormous tonnage for rail and lake lines alike. The incentive to cut on the part of the lake lines will be missing, as the demands for boats for carrying ore and for other products will keep them going all season. The all-rail situation will, I believe, remain firm.'

The work was commenced yesterday.

General Passenger Agent Lee and other officials of the Lackawanna are congratulating themselves on the great increase in their passenger business between here and New York. From reports just received at the local office it is shown that the business of March, 1900, showed an increase of 90 per cent. over that of March, 1899. This can be accounted for in the fact that several fast trains have been added to the service and Western methods of railroading introduced.

Lacakawanna switchmen and roadmen were aroused April 1 by receiving notice from Superintendent Dudgeon requesting each one to answer several questions of a civil-service character. The men were asked to state when and where they were born, how much schooling they had received, by whom, when and where they have been employed, etc. Last Sunday the local switchmen's union held a meeting and discussed this notice. Superintendent Dudgeon explained that he was anxious to become acquinted with the class of men he was employing, and that this examination was held more as a protection for the men than as a precautionary measure for the company, and a majority of the employes have complied.

Industrial Notes.

Owing to the prospective failure of the wheat crop in central Indiana seed merchants state that more oats for seeding have been sold in the last thirty days than in the last three years combined. Holders of real estate on the line of the Belt road are much elated over the numerlocate manufactories. It is stated that never before has there been so much inquiry from this direction. Work was commenced yesterday on the new warehouse on South Delaware street that the Daniel Stewart Drug Company is to erect. The building will be 200 feet long Woman Built a House on the Wrong Lot-Possession of a Child-Cases in the Courts.

Hiram Plummer, a real-estate agent brought injunction proceedings in behalf of Marcus Friedman, for whom he is agent, against Mrs. Cornella Buckner yesterday, to prevent her from moving a house at 889 Rhode Island street off of the premises. The lot belongs to Friedman brothers, who live in West Virginia, and it was supposed to have been vacant. Recently one of the Friedmans came here and hunted up the lot. He found a house on the lot and as the statutes provide that whoever pays taxes on property is considered the owner, Mrs. Buckner was asked for the rent. This was refused and she was notified to move. The notice will expire about the middle of the week, but yesterday morning Plummer learned that the house was being moved to a lot near by which belongs to the Buckners. He at once secured a restraining order in the Circuit Court, but when the injunction was served the house had been moved on to the sidewalk by James W. Poole, a house-mover. In the meantime the notice of the police had been called to the situation and Poole was arrested for mov-

Habeas Corpus Proceedings Brought by Blanche McAllister.

The habeas corpus proceedings brought by Blanche McAllister against Mrs. Addle B. Houk for the possession of her child, two years and a half old, was heard by Judge Leathers yesterday and was continued until this morning. Blanche Mc-Allister alleges that the child is being unlawfully detained by Mrs. Houk at 313 North Capitol avenue and that the child is called Alta Houk, when her real name Dorothy McAllister. She says that she is the mother of the child and that Mrs. Houk's son is its father. The child was born at Terre Haute and when it was eight or ten days old Mrs. Houk asserts that Blanche McAllister gave it to her for adoption and signed an agreement to that effect. The plaintiff contends that she was in such a condition at the time that she did not know or realize what she was do

Blanche McAllister is a cripple, using two crutches, and the father of the child is a married man. She asserts that she can provide for the child's maintenance and education, and her brother, while on the witness stand, said he works in the mines for $2.50 and $3 a day, and will contribute 50 cents a day towards its support.

Joseph Murphy Sent to the Reform

School-Henry Van Devanter's Case. The suspended sentence of Joseph Murphy, tweive years old, for stealing a sack of flour from M. J. Stewart, Sept. 12, 1899, was withdrawn by Judge Alford in the Criminal Court yesterday, and he was sentenced to the Reform School until he is wenty-one years old. The last time he was arrested was for continually jumping on cars and general incorrigibility. Henry Van Devanter, ten-years old, was 'so sentenced to the Reform School for Boys, his mother making an affidavit that he was beyond the control of herself and his stepfather.

A Police Court Case. Fred Arnold, who claims to be an actor, living at No. 142 North Delaware street, was prosecuting witness in Police Court vesterday against Mrs. Hester Merrill, with whom he had been living, and whom he accused of stealing two shirts from him. It was shown that the shirts were not his shipments over the fifteen Indianapolis property and had been paid for by the woman. She told of his having extorted money from her for some time and that the trouble was caused by his promise of marriage and her refusal Thursday to give him more money. The woman was discharged but rearrested on another charge. Arnold attempted to make an explanation of the case but was told by Judge Daly to "shut up," and he was then locked up upon orders of the court.

A Compromise Agreement. The case of Charles R. Clark, who was awarded $5,000 damages against the Indianapolis Drop Forging Company last January in Room 2, of the Superior Court, was compromised yesterday by Clark remitting $2,750 of the judgment and the company agreeing to pay $2,250 and the costs. The compromise was brought about through the defendant's motion for a new trial Clark was injured by his sleeve catching in a set screw on the machinery where he was at work and dragging him into the shafting.

He Asks for Big Damages.

A suit has been filed in the United States man, Kraus & Rosenthal, of Peru, in which he asks for $250,000 damages for an alleged infringement by the Peru firm on a patent process for manufacturing jute bagging. The complaint asks that the Peru company be required to show how much their business has amounted to since they began making jute bagging, and also that it be required to destroy all jute bagging under process of manufacture.

Justice Looked at the House.

Justice Smock yesterday took under advisement the case of William M. St. Clair against Edwin P. Fuller, the argument which was heard during the morning. The suit was for damages to a house occupied by Fuller, and Saturday the evidence was so conflicting that Justice Smock asked for the key to the place, saying he would look at the property himself, as he could not judge of the damage from the evidence.

For a Fall from the Monument. The damage suit of Michael O'Connor against the Oolite Quarry Company for $25,000 began in the Circuit Court yesterday. O'Connor was working on the peace group on the monument, which the company had the contract for setting, Dec. 20, 1897, when the stones and timber were covered with sleet, and he fell a distance of forty-five feet, breaking both arms, two ribs and his right leg in three places, besides being otherwise injured.

The Will Is Probated. The will of Adelheid Katherina Magda-

THE HANNA MEDAL

Fitting Recognition of Praiseworthy and Honorable Service.

New York Times. The gold medal which the Chamber of Commerce of the State of New York has voted to Hugh H. Hanna, of Indianapolis, is a graceful and appropriate tribute to a man who has rendered signal and unselfish service to the class represented by the chamber and to the Nation. One element in the great value of this service is that it is of the kind that a free and self-governing society at once requires and secures from its more enlightened members. In substance, what Mr. Hanna did was to devote his energies and his unusual ability to the organization of public opinion as to the currency. For this work he enjoyed no special advantage. He does not belong to any privileged class, and derives no prestige from associations such as the people of England, for instance, look up to with a persistent habit that is a second nature. He does not even belong to a class such as the members of the House of Commons are generally drawn frommen who give the greater part of their time to the study of questions of politics and finance, and derive therefrom a particular and honorable influence. Still less is e an American politician of any sort, good or bad, and owes absolutely nothing of his efficiency to native or acquired art in managing men through their interests or prejudices. He is simply an intelligent business man familiar with the needs and with the views of such business men as himself, but with a clearer and broader idea of the relations of financial legislation to affairs, and a very exceptional and extraordinary talent for securing co-operation. The situation which the business men had to face at the close of the exciting and arduous campaign of 1896 was a pe culiar and difficult one. The victory that had been won over the forces of inflation | Wm. Beck, workhouse supplies ..... and repudiation was of immense value, Indianapolis Paint and Color Co., but it was in the nature of the rep of an assault and by no means the raising of the siege of the gold standard. Not only was the triumphant party weary with its struggle and inclined to be content with its negative result, but it had other aims, relatively subordinated in the canvass, which it desired to realize. The extraordinary session of Congress called by the President immediately on his accession to office was not, as it should have been devoted to securing legislation adequate to the establishment of the gold standard on a solid and immovable basis; it was devoted to the enactment of a narrow and selfish tariff system for the advantage of the protected capitalists. In the meantime nothing whatever was done to rescue the currency of the country from the peril in which it must stand so ong as the maintenance of gold payments depended entirely on the discretion of the administration. And it must be confessed that among the business men themselves there was a good deal of idle contentmen with the negative results attained and a desire to be let alone to reap the harvest of prosperity which seemed to make the gathering ills of Bryanism in the preceding months a horrible dream that had passed. It was at this juncture that the organiza tion to which Mr. Hanna had been so ef ficiently engaged did its invaluable work. Mainly under his guidance it set on foot and continued untiringly a system of discussion, public and private, that bore directly on the minds of the members of Congress and pressed home to them the real interests of the business community. also labored with great intelligence and energy with the business community itself. especially through the officers and active men in the various business bodies. The result was finally, after great effort and much patient waiting, the arrangement by which the leaders of the majority party in each House of Congress took up the study of the way out. From that study came the currency law that is now on the statute books. It is not an ideal law, and in some respects it falls short of what the keen and practical minds of the Indianapolis movement saw was essential. But it may be said of it that it comes so near the completely safe and stable thing that whatever change is made in the future is sure to be for the better and not for the worse It is for his part in this that Mr. Hanna is honored by the Chamber of Commerce, and he deserves to be. The country is to be congratulated on the possession of such citizens as he. It may rejoice, also-as we are sure that he does-in the fact that our institutions permit the policy of the government in the long run to be shared by public opinion, informed, settled, organized and made effective by such labors as his. Therein lies not only our safety but eager of us sometimes a slow and tedious one. To those who can understand how immensely important are the standard of value, the stability of public and private credit and the rule of honesty in the finan-
