AMUSEMENTS.

Pacific" at the Park

"Across the Pacific," the play which began a three days' engagement at the Park Theater yesterday afternoon, is undoubtedly the best melodrama Manager Charles E. Blaney has ever sent to Indianapolis, and The son is with relatives in Clinton counthat is high praise, since a great many Blaney productions have been seen here in the past ten years. "Across the Pacific" has a plot that is interesting and stirring in the extreme, having largely to do with the movement of troops from San Francisco to the Philippines by transport and their life in those islands. The action of the piece at one time takes place in the Chinese quarter of San Francisco, and the tion is very beautiful and realistic. Two stage pictures that rouse the audience to a high pitch of enthusiasm are the loading of troops on the transport City of Peking, in the third act, and the fight at blockhouse No. 7, in the last act, in which a real Gating gun is used with tremendous effect as to noise and excitement. There is a miners' and Rough Riders' quartet, composed of Carl Newton, George Lund, Ed Pooley and Fred Preston, that furnishes some excelent vocal music. Harry Clay Blaney, the little comedian, who reminds one a great deal of Francis Wilson in some of his ludicrous antics, is at the head of the cast in the role of Willie Live, a playwright and newspaper correspondent. Besides being very funny, Mr. Blaney does some wonderful acrobatic work. R. Gaillard, as the hero, Joe Lanler, miner and captain of volunteers, and Leslie Mathews, as Bud Stanton, the villain of many aliases, are both good in their respective characters. Harry A. Fisher, as Mike Flannigan, a volunteer toutenant, and Frank Sanford, as Officer Flotz, furnish considerable comedy. Chinese John Williams impersonates two Chinese characters very cleverly and makes a hit with his fake magic. Vola Vanderhoef, as Little Yit Sing, a Chinese girl, Nevada Heffron, as Nellie Hazelton, a wronged Distributi woman, and Pearl Seward, as Elsie Escott, to the gyn the heroine, are all good. The minor characters are acceptably handled. A com-mendable feature of the production is the admirable stage direction, which gives de-lightful smoothness and consistency. "Across the Pacific" will finish the week out with daily matinees, and should have been booked for a week's engagement.

Notes of the Stage. Miss Annie Russell has been appearing

To-morrow afternoon Mrs. Murphy, billed as the only aeronaut monkey in existence, will make her first appearance in Indianapolis. She will make a balloon ascension from the lot in the rear of the Zoo and, according to the claims of the management, after a height of several hundred feet has been attained, will cut herself loose and descend in a parachute.

"The Burgomaster" having completed its run of 151 performances at the Dearborn Theater, in Chicago, is now on tour, and will be presented at English's Opera House next Friday and Saturday nights and Saturday afternoon. The piece is said to be one of the most witty and tuneful musical comedies encountered by the persistent amusement seeker in a long time.

Next week's vaudeville bill at the Grand will possess more than ordinary interest because it will afford the last opportunity for Indianapolis theater-goers to see those prime favorites, Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Sidman, in this form of entertainment. In a few weeks the Sidmans will bid farewell to vaudeville and begin a tour in their new three-act comedy, "York State Folks."

Monday night, is said to be the view of the big ballroom in the hotel at West Baden springs. The scene is claimed to have been built from designs modeled after photographs. "Lost River" will also be the Christmas attraction, and will be given in the afternoon and evening of Tuesday.

The custom of securing elaborately staged productions for the Park Theater at holiday times has become pretty firmly established. "Man's Enemy," Gus Hill's new melodrama, is said to fill this requirement perfectly. It is booked at the Park the first three days of next week, beginning Monday afternoon. It will be followed Tuesday afternoon by "Caught in the Webb," the latest play by Joseph Le Brandt, author of "On the Stroke of Twelve."

What has been called the "penultimate climax" in the dramatization of Anthony Hope's second great romance, "Rupert of Hentzau," is the unique duel at the close of the third act, with which the play might well end. Mr. Hope adds another act, however, with an equally effective and almost the dramatist are given adequate illustration in the elaborate production of "Rupert of Hentzau," which will be seen at English's Opera House next Wednesday and Thursday nights with the dashing, romantic actor, Howard Gould, in the dual role of Rudolf and the King.
