WIFE DESERTION.

Boston Charity Board Adduces Some Interesting Figures Thereon.

The Boston Board of Overseers, having charge of that city's relief for the poor and its charitable institutions, in a report published on April 21 in the Boston Globe, has the following to say under the caption "The Problem of Wife Desertion:"

"For many years we have remarked upon the deplorably large number of deserted wives whom, with their families, the city is helping in their homes. We sometimes wonder if the laws of this State/in the matter of compelling support by the husband and in punishing him for neglecting to support his family are sufficiently stringent. With the view of ascertaining facts which might throw light upon this problem of desertion we have, during the past summer, made thorough inquiries into the cases of wife deser-"Our statistics relate to 153 families.

in each instance the wife was at some time deserted by the husband. In a few cases periodical desertions appear to have

"In general it may be inferred from the ata of occupation that these families belong to the same social grade from which most of our dependents are recruited. Of the 146 men whose occupation is given, 54, or 36.98 per cent., may be classed as unskilled workmen, which is perhaps a lower percentage than might have been expected. "Of 143 women concerned (for ten cares no figures are given) 79, or more than one-half, were married at the age of twenty-two years or earlier, and 41, or 28.67 per cent., at nineteen years of age or under. Comparatively few appear to have entered matrimony after the twenty-sixth year. In 81 cases desertion took place before the wife had attained the thirty-fifth year, and in a majority of the same cases before she was thirty years old. "In five of the 152 families there were no children; the remaining 148 show a total of 507 children, or an average of less than four per fan'ly. In 58 families there were four or more children, 14 had six or more and only one had as many as ten. With a few exceptions the children were of tender age at the time of desertion.
