

Tired All the Time.

THAT'S A SPRING CONDITION.

It's a sign that the blood is deficient in vitality, just as pimples and other eruptions are signs that the blood is impure. It's a warning, too, which only the hazardous fail to heed.

HOOD'S SARSAPARILLA removes it, gives new life, new courage, strength and animation.

It cleanses the blood and clears the complexion.

Accept no substitute.

"My sister and I have been in the habit of taking Hood's Sarsaparilla in the Spring, and we find it works wonders. It relieves that tired feeling, purifies the blood, clears the complexion, and makes us feel better in every way. I believe it to be a duty to speak in praise of so beneficial a remedy."
—ETHEL REMPE, 509 East Espenschild St., So. St. Louis, Mo.

"I was subject to that tired feeling, and suffered headaches and prickly heat. After taking Hood's Sarsaparilla I was completely relieved of all these troubles, and since that time I have been in the best of health. I cannot praise Hood's Sarsaparilla too highly, and I heartily endorse it."
—H. W. BLACK, 1030 N. 21st St., Omaha, Neb.

Hood's Sarsaparilla Promises to Cure and Keeps the Promise.

SPORTING NEWS.

Big Race Set For September 16 at Readville, Mass.

Cresceus, Dharlie Herr and Borloma to Contest.

FOR A $50,000 PURSE.

Best Three Heats in Five, First Horse Taking $30,000.

Boycott is Placed Against The Abbot For the Time.

Boston, March 22.—A race for a $50,000 purse, made up of $10,000 a corner and $20,000 added by Thomas W. Lawson, between Charlie Herr, Cresceus and Borloma is announced by Mr. Lawson. A statement issued by the latter says that the race will be at Readville, Mass., in the week beginning September 16, all the gate receipts to go to charity. The race will be handled by the New England Trotting Horse Breeders' association.

Mr. Lawson said that as soon as the proposed race with the The Abbott was called off he proceeded to arrange a triangular race, doing it before he knew that The Abbott's owner had changed his mind. The arrangements were completed between the owners of Cresceus, Charlie Herr and Borloma.

The race is to be best three in five heats, first horse to take $30,000; the second $20,000, each owner to deposit $2,500 and the remaining half the prize to be divided equally between the West End nursery and infants' hospital and the Industrial School for Crippled and Deformed Children, both of Boston.

A dispatch to the Chicago Record from New York says: "Shrewd turfmen who reckoned The Abbott's value at a fabulous sum only a few days ago, in view of the owner's golden opportunity to make an advantageous match with Borloma, say that the earning capacity of the champion had been greatly damaged by the unfortunate outcome of the proposed race for $100,000 in stakes."

The owners of both Borloma and Cresceus have in effect pronounced a boycott against The Abbott, and, unless they decide their minds, they will decline to consider any proposition for a special race with Mr. Scannell's horse. If this decision is adhered to The Abbott's performances may be confined to unprofitable exhibitions against time, unless those who control him enter the horse in the free-for-all class through the grand circuit.

Apart from these two trotters there is not one in sight that could be expected to make an interesting race against The Abbott. Although Mr. Scannell's horse last year won the world's record in 1:53.4, he did not earn a dollar, as few

"77"

For all kinds of

CODS

Dr. Humphrey's "Seventy-Seven" cures all kinds of Colds, be it Grip, Influenza, Catarrh, Pains and Soreness in the Head, Back or Chest, Coughs, Sore Throat, Fever and prevents Pneumonia. A Cold is usually caused by checked circulation, known by a chill or shiver. The use of "77" starts the blood coursing through the veins until it reaches the extremities, when the feet warm up and the Cold is broken, while its toxicity sustains the flagging energy.

It is a Cold, take "77".

At all Drug Stores, 25c., or mailed. Pocket Manual mailed free. Humphrey's Homeopathic Medicine Co., 601 William & John Sts., New York.

KANSAS NEWS.

A Jointist at Inman Terrorizes the Little Town.

Goes on a Crazy Drunk Firing Revolver Recklessly.

KILLED BY AN OFFICER

Marshal Harkinson Finally Compelled to Act Decisively.

Schlatter, the Dead Man, Has Had Such Spells Before.

Inman, Kan., March 22.—Joseph Schlatter, a jointist of this place, was shot by City Marshal Harkinson Friday afternoon at 2:30 o'clock. Schlatter had John Pegg at work on his building next door to his joint repairing the chimney, and became enraged at him for some cause or other, Schlatter being crazy drunk, got his gun and threatened to shoot him.

Some one sent for the marshal who came and tried to get Schlatter to go in the house and leave Pegg alone. Schlatter became enraged at the marshal and told him he would kill him. The marshal went for his gun and when he came back Schlatter again went after him and dared him to put his head out of the door. Then Schlatter started up the street threatening to shoot anyone who came near him.

He spied a man on the sidewalk whom he thought was an old enemy of his and drew his gun on him but some one told him he had the wrong man. He turned and saw Chas. Powers, the proprietor of a cafe here, and shot at him. The bullet struck the door casing in front of G. Harkinson's saloon.

From there he went through Pankrot's hardware store and out the back way where he met some men who were setting up a head. He scattered them with one shot but did not hit any of them. Then down the alley where he met the marshal and fired at him. The marshal returned the fire and Schlatter went into H. Vogt's lumber office looking for more shells for his gun, not succeeding. He would kill John Pegg, the lumber yard for the main part of town. The marshal was in the alley and commanded Schlatter to throw down his gun, but Schlatter came on toward him, revolver in hand, presumably ready for him. The marshal called again and again to him to drop his gun, but Schlatter refused. The marshal then intended to shoot him in the arm but Schlatter must have moved to one side and was shot through the heart, killing his aim.

Schlatter had had several of these spells and has time and again drunk before he started again. He turned and saw Chas. Powers, the proprietor of a cafe here, and shot at him. The bullet struck the door casing in front of G. Harkinson's saloon.

From there he went through Pankrot's hardware store and out the back way where he met some men who were setting up a head. He scattered them with one shot but did not hit any of them. Then down the alley where he met the marshal and fired at him. The marshal returned the fire and Schlatter went into H. Vogt's lumber office looking for more shells for his gun, not succeeding. He would kill John Pegg, the lumber yard for the main part of town. The marshal was in the alley and commanded Schlatter to throw down his gun, but Schlatter came on toward him, revolver in hand, presumably ready for him. The marshal called again and again to him to drop his gun, but Schlatter refused. The marshal then intended to shoot him in the arm but Schlatter must have moved to one side and was shot through the heart, killing his aim.

Schlatter had had several of these spells and has time and again drunk before he started again. He turned and saw Chas. Powers, the proprietor of a cafe here, and shot at him. The bullet struck the door casing in front of G. Harkinson's saloon.

From there he went through Pankrot's hardware store and out the back way where he met some men who were setting up a head. He scattered them with one shot but did not hit any of them. Then down the alley where he met the marshal and fired at him. The marshal returned the fire and Schlatter went into H. Vogt's lumber office looking for more shells for his gun, not succeeding. He would kill John Pegg, the lumber yard for the main part of town. The marshal was in the alley and commanded Schlatter to throw down his gun, but Schlatter came on toward him, revolver in hand, presumably ready for him. The marshal called again and again to him to drop his gun, but Schlatter refused. The marshal then intended to shoot him in the arm but Schlatter must have moved to one side and was shot through the heart, killing his aim.

Schlatter had had several of these spells and has time and again drunk before he started again. He turned and saw Chas. Powers, the proprietor of a cafe here, and shot at him. The bullet struck the door casing in front of G. Harkinson's saloon.

From there he went through Pankrot's hardware store and out the back way where he met some men who were setting up a head. He scattered them with one shot but did not hit any of them. Then down the alley where he met the marshal and fired at him. The marshal returned the fire and Schlatter went into H. Vogt's lumber office looking for more shells for his gun, not succeeding. He would kill John Pegg, the lumber yard for the main part of town. The marshal was in the alley and commanded Schlatter to throw down his gun, but Schlatter came on toward him, revolver in hand, presumably ready for him. The marshal called again and again to him to drop his gun, but Schlatter refused. The marshal then intended to shoot him in the arm but Schlatter must have moved to one side and was shot through the heart, killing his aim.

Schlatter had had several of these spells and has time and again drunk before he started again. He turned and saw Chas. Powers, the proprietor of a cafe here, and shot at him. The bullet struck the door casing in front of G. Harkinson's saloon.

From there he went through Pankrot's hardware store and out the back way where he met some men who were setting up a head. He scattered them with one shot but did not hit any of them. Then down the alley where he met the marshal and fired at him. The marshal returned the fire and Schlatter went into H. Vogt's lumber office looking for more shells for his gun, not succeeding. He would kill John Pegg, the lumber yard for the main part of town. The marshal was in the alley and commanded Schlatter to throw down his gun, but Schlatter came on toward him, revolver in hand, presumably ready for him. The marshal called again and again to him to drop his gun, but Schlatter refused. The marshal then intended to shoot him in the arm but Schlatter must have moved to one side and was shot through the heart, killing his aim.

Schlatter had had several of these spells and has time and again drunk before he started again. He turned and saw Chas. Powers, the proprietor of a cafe here, and shot at him. The bullet struck the door casing in front of G. Harkinson's saloon.

From there he went through Pankrot's hardware store and out the back way where he met some men who were setting up a head. He scattered them with one shot but did not hit any of them. Then down the alley where he met the marshal and fired at him. The marshal returned the fire and Schlatter went into H. Vogt's lumber office looking for more shells for his gun, not succeeding. He would kill John Pegg, the lumber yard for the main part of town. The marshal was in the alley and commanded Schlatter to throw down his gun, but Schlatter came on toward him, revolver in hand, presumably ready for him. The marshal called again and again to him to drop his gun, but Schlatter refused. The marshal then intended to shoot him in the arm but Schlatter must have moved to one side and was shot through the heart, killing his aim.

Schlatter had had several of these spells and has time and again drunk before he started again. He turned and saw Chas. Powers, the proprietor of a cafe here, and shot at him. The bullet struck the door casing in front of G. Harkinson's saloon.

From there he went through Pankrot's hardware store and out the back way where he met some men who were setting up a head. He scattered them with one shot but did not hit any of them. Then down the alley where he met the marshal and fired at him. The marshal returned the fire and Schlatter went into H. Vogt's lumber office looking for more shells for his gun, not succeeding. He would kill John Pegg, the lumber yard for the main part of town. The marshal was in the alley and commanded Schlatter to throw down his gun, but Schlatter came on toward him, revolver in hand, presumably ready for him. The marshal called again and again to him to drop his gun, but Schlatter refused. The marshal then intended to shoot him in the arm but Schlatter must have moved to one side and was shot through the heart, killing his aim.

Schlatter had had several of these spells and has time and again drunk before he started again. He turned and saw Chas. Powers, the proprietor of a cafe here, and shot at him. The bullet struck the door casing in front of G. Harkinson's saloon.

From there he went through Pankrot's hardware store and out the back way where he met some men who were setting up a head. He scattered them with one shot but did not hit any of them. Then down the alley where he met the marshal and fired at him. The marshal returned the fire and Schlatter went into H. Vogt's lumber office looking for more shells for his gun, not succeeding. He would kill John Pegg, the lumber yard for the main part of town. The marshal was in the alley and commanded Schlatter to throw down his gun, but Schlatter came on toward him, revolver in hand, presumably ready for him. The marshal called again and again to him to drop his gun, but Schlatter refused. The marshal then intended to shoot him in the arm but Schlatter must have moved to one side and was shot through the heart, killing his aim.

Schlatter had had several of these spells and has time and again drunk before he started again. He turned and saw Chas. Powers, the proprietor of a cafe here, and shot at him. The bullet struck the door casing in front of G. Harkinson's saloon.

From there he went through Pankrot's hardware store and out the back way where he met some men who were setting up a head. He scattered them with one shot but did not hit any of them. Then down the alley where he met the marshal and fired at him. The marshal returned the fire and Schlatter went into H. Vogt's lumber office looking for more shells for his gun, not succeeding. He would kill John Pegg, the lumber yard for the main part of town. The marshal was in the alley and commanded Schlatter to throw down his gun, but Schlatter came on toward him, revolver in hand, presumably ready for him. The marshal called again and again to him to drop his gun, but Schlatter refused. The marshal then intended to shoot him in the arm but Schlatter must have moved to one side and was shot through the heart, killing his aim.

Schlatter had had several of these spells and has time and again drunk before he started again. He turned and saw Chas. Powers, the proprietor of a cafe here, and shot at him. The bullet struck the door casing in front of G. Harkinson's saloon.

From there he went through Pankrot's hardware store and out the back way where he met some men who were setting up a head. He scattered them with one shot but did not hit any of them. Then down the alley where he met the marshal and fired at him. The marshal returned the fire and Schlatter went into H. Vogt's lumber office looking for more shells for his gun, not succeeding. He would kill John Pegg, the lumber yard for the main part of town. The marshal was in the alley and commanded Schlatter to throw down his gun, but Schlatter came on toward him, revolver in hand, presumably ready for him. The marshal called again and again to him to drop his gun, but Schlatter refused. The marshal then intended to shoot him in the arm but Schlatter must have moved to one side and was shot through the heart, killing his aim.

Schlatter had had several of these spells and has time and again drunk before he started again. He turned and saw Chas. Powers, the proprietor of a cafe here, and shot at him. The bullet struck the door casing in front of G. Harkinson's saloon.

From there he went through Pankrot's hardware store and out the back way where he met some men who were setting up a head. He scattered them with one shot but did not hit any of them. Then down the alley where he met the marshal and fired at him. The marshal returned the fire and Schlatter went into H. Vogt's lumber office looking for more shells for his gun, not succeeding. He would kill John Pegg, the lumber yard for the main part of town. The marshal was in the alley and commanded Schlatter to throw down his gun, but Schlatter came on toward him, revolver in hand, presumably ready for him. The marshal called again and again to him to drop his gun, but Schlatter refused. The marshal then intended to shoot him in the arm but Schlatter must have moved to one side and was shot through the heart, killing his aim.

Schlatter had had several of these spells and has time and again drunk before he started again. He turned and saw Chas. Powers, the proprietor of a cafe here, and shot at him. The bullet struck the door casing in front of G. Harkinson's saloon.

From there he went through Pankrot's hardware store and out the back way where he met some men who were setting up a head. He scattered them with one shot but did not hit any of them. Then down the alley where he met the marshal and fired at him. The marshal returned the fire and Schlatter went into H. Vogt's lumber office looking for more shells for his gun, not succeeding. He would kill John Pegg, the lumber yard for the main part of town. The marshal was in the alley and commanded Schlatter to throw down his gun, but Schlatter came on toward him, revolver in hand, presumably ready for him. The marshal called again and again to him to drop his gun, but Schlatter refused. The marshal then intended to shoot him in the arm but Schlatter must have moved to one side and was shot through the heart, killing his aim.

Schlatter had had several of these spells and has time and again drunk before he started again. He turned and saw Chas. Powers, the proprietor of a cafe here, and shot at him. The bullet struck the door casing in front of G. Harkinson's saloon.

From there he went through Pankrot's hardware store and out the back way where he met some men who were setting up a head. He scattered them with one shot but did not hit any of them. Then down the alley where he met the marshal and fired at him. The marshal returned the fire and Schlatter went into H. Vogt's lumber office looking for more shells for his gun, not succeeding. He would kill John Pegg, the lumber yard for the main part of town. The marshal was in the alley and commanded Schlatter to throw down his gun, but Schlatter came on toward him, revolver in hand, presumably ready for him. The marshal called again and again to him to drop his gun, but Schlatter refused. The marshal then intended to shoot him in the arm but Schlatter must have moved to one side and was shot through the heart, killing his aim.

Schlatter had had several of these spells and has time and again drunk before he started again. He turned and saw Chas. Powers, the proprietor of a cafe here, and shot at him. The bullet struck the door casing in front of G. Harkinson's saloon.

From there he went through Pankrot's hardware store and out the back way where he met some men who were setting up a head. He scattered them with one shot but did not hit any of them. Then down the alley where he met the marshal and fired at him. The marshal returned the fire and Schlatter went into H. Vogt's lumber office looking for more shells for his gun, not succeeding. He would kill John Pegg, the lumber yard for the main part of town. The marshal was in the alley and commanded Schlatter to throw down his gun, but Schlatter came on toward him, revolver in hand, presumably ready for him. The marshal called again and again to him to drop his gun, but Schlatter refused. The marshal then intended to shoot him in the arm but Schlatter must have moved to one side and was shot through the heart, killing his aim.

Schlatter had had several of these spells and has time and again drunk before he started again. He turned and saw Chas. Powers, the proprietor of a cafe here, and shot at him. The bullet struck the door casing in front of G. Harkinson's saloon.

From there he went through Pankrot's hardware store and out the back way where he met some men who were setting up a head. He scattered them with one shot but did not hit any of them. Then down the alley where he met the marshal and fired at him. The marshal returned the fire and Schlatter went into H. Vogt's lumber office looking for more shells for his gun, not succeeding. He would kill John Pegg, the lumber yard for the main part of town. The marshal was in the alley and commanded Schlatter to throw down his gun, but Schlatter came on toward him, revolver in hand, presumably ready for him. The marshal called again and again to him to drop his gun, but Schlatter refused. The marshal then intended to shoot him in the arm but Schlatter must have moved to one side and was shot through the heart, killing his aim.

village postoffice, had been blown open and robbed. The whole rear end of the building was blown out. The robbers secured $100 in money and a quantity of postage stamps and valuable papers. There is no clue to their identity.

WILL DRILL FOR GAS.

Arkansas City to Sink a Well For the Precious Material.

Arkansas City, March 22.—The work of drilling for gas, oil, or anything else that would prove of value, in the vicinity of Arkansas City, will be commenced within a few weeks. The reporter talked with a director of the National Gas company and it is his opinion that the work will commence within thirty days from the present time. The contract for drilling the well has been let to William Savings of Humboldt, a well digger of much experience.

According to the terms of the contract the work must be commenced within at least sixty days from the time of the acceptance of the contract. However, Mr. Savings is of the opinion that the actual work would be commenced much sooner than that. The contract for drilling the well has been let to William Savings of Humboldt, a well digger of much experience.

FINANCES OF SALINA.

$42,000 Was Spent Last Year With Income of Only $34,000.

Salina, Kan., March 22.—The annual report of City Clerk Godfrey, just issued, shows that Salina during the past year spent $42,000 in conducting the affairs of the city, besides $2,000 worth of sewer bonds redeemed, $7,420.90 paid on interest on outstanding city bonds, and $1,020.00 library warrents. Mr. Godfrey's other items, bringing the total amount spent by the city fathers last year up to $42,017.23.

The income from all sources amounted to $34,122.95. The largest amount, $23,300, came from the county treasurer as the city tax levy; the city clerk collected $1,885.50 from licenses and the city judge turned over $7,047.55, most of which was collected from joint licenses. The bonded indebtedness of the city is $194,600.

A TICKET FOR WOMEN.

Candidates For Municipal Offices Out at Cimarron.

Cimarron, Kas., March 22.—A woman's ticket for the municipal offices has been placed in the field here with a good chance of being elected. The following candidates were placed in nomination: For mayor, Mrs. Fannie Pickle; police judge, Mrs. Fannie E. Leary; clerk, Meadames Nellie Webb, L. O. Zellers, Camilla Luther, Laura Tabb. A strong effort will be made to elect the ticket.

A HANDSOME MAUSOLEUM.

Plans Completed For New Rohrbach Vault in Ottawa Cemetery.

Ottawa, March 22.—Work will commence within a few days upon the new mausoleum to be erected by S. B. Rohrbach in Hope cemetery upon a resting place for the remains of the Rohrbach family. The new vault will be an attractive structure of granite, and will be located at a cost of $4,000. The plans contemplate a structure 20 feet long, 5 feet wide and 11 inches high. Number 1 burr Bedford Indiana stone will be used on the outside, and a white marble on the inside. The vault will be a stone figure representing a woman. A large bronze door of handsome design will be the entrance to the tomb. The rear will be a stained glass memorial window. There will be ten crypts in the vault, all finished in bronze.

POLITICS AT NORTON.

Wet and Dry Tickets in the Field—Smallpox All Gone.

Norton, Kan., March 22.—At a citizens' caucus held here another ticket was named for city officers. The ticket named was: Mayor, C. J. Shinnick; councilmen, A. J. Styler, P. E. Kennedy, L. O. Zellers, Camilla Luther, Laura Tabb. The ticket was named for the purpose of being nominated in opposition to the temperance ticket named some days ago. Norton is free from smallpox. All cases are fully recovered and discharged.

Items From Manhattan.

Manhattan, March 22.—The board of regents of the State Agricultural college has elected Prof. Herbert Roberts of St. Louis, Mo., to the chair of botany in the college. Prof. Roberts will begin his new work next Tuesday.

F. D. Coburn, secretary of the state board of agriculture, delivered a very able address to the students and many of the patrons of the college here last night. The address was on the subject of better farming and was interesting and helpful to the dairy course students. Mr. W. F. Jensen, vice president of the Continental Creamery company, and T. A. Bann, editor of the Daily Age, spoke in the afternoon.

Mr. Herbert Springer of this place shot and killed a beautiful swan yesterday evening near here. The bird measured seven feet from tip to tip and weighed fourteen pounds. It will be mounted for the college museum.

Pennons For Kansas.

Washington, D. C., March 22.—Pennons have been granted to Kansas as follows:

Original—Nicholas Hobbs, St. Peter, 26; W. E. Miller, Atchison, 26; John W. Burris, Colbert, 26; Clarence Smith, Junction City, 26; George W. Hallcock, 26.

Increase—Special act, March 9, Michael Dignon, Topeka, 230.

Original—Ward, etc.—Lucinda Alexander, 230; special act, March 11, Merilla Harbison, Burton, 23.

Baseball Gossip.

Tommy Connelly has been appointed an American league umpire.

The Interstate league season will begin about April 25. Each team will play 140 games.

Wheeling has agreed to pay a guarantee of $50 to all visiting teams in the Interstate league.

Manager Frank Selee, of the Boston National league team, expects to land Outfielder Jimmy Bannon.

Bill Hill may play in the Southern league. He was in his arm yesterday and found it in better shape than for several years.

Richmond, Ind., has secured the services of Charles Doolin, the crack catcher, over whom both St. Joe and Toronto were fighting.

The Yale college team will play a series of games with the Boston National league team before the opening of the championship season.

The Cincinnati club needs another outfielder. Tom McCreery, of the Pittsburghs, has been suggested. He would make a good man.

A DELICATE CHILD

Let a delicate child take a little Scott's emulsion of cod-liver oil after breakfast or dinner—not too much—too much will upset the stomach. Better too little than too much.

The effect will be slow; it ought to be slow. In a week, you will see it began the first day. Don't be in a hurry.

W. L. Scott & Sons, 409 Pearl Street, New York.

WITHTH KIDNEY DISEASE

WARNER'S SAFE CURE.

172 Bedford St., Brooklyn, N. Y. Dec. 27, 1900.

Warner's Safe Cure Co., Rochester, N. Y. GENTLEMEN:—The Woman's Relief Corps in the different parts of the country is well acquainted with the curative merits of Warner's Safe Cure, especially for kidney and bladder troubles. It has saved the lives of many of our soldiers who were stricken down by this dread disease. We have procured many bottles and given to those in need of it with the very best results. I have also used it personally when I felt run down from overwork or from the effects of a cold, and I have good reason to have perfect faith in it as a medicine. Yours sincerely, Mrs. E. L. Mendenhall.

FREE WARNER'S SAFE CURE

To all who suffer with Kidney, Liver, Heart, Bladder or Blood diseases, a sample bottle of Warner's Safe Cure (the pioneer Kidney and Liver Remedy) will be sent absolutely free of cost by addressing postal card to WARNER'S SAFE CURE CO., Rochester, N. Y., and enclosing this paper.

East President Barbara Fritchell No. 227, Woman's Relief Corps.

A SURE THING

Snow's

Pine Expectorant

FOR THAT COLD.

F. A. SNOW & CO.

FOR SALE BY ALL DRUGGISTS.

DUN'S REPORT.

Markets Generally Good and Business Satisfactory.

New York, March 22.—R. G. Dun & Co.'s Weekly Review of Trade says: "The position of general business is satisfactory, being marked by a steady and increased activity of retail operations throughout the west and in some Atlantic seaboard cities, which is considerably in excess of a generally good spring trade. New enterprise is reflected in the largest demand in many months for builders' hardware and general materials and contracts for prompt delivery of all structural goods are very difficult to place. Collections are prompt and railway tonnage is well maintained. Earnings of all railroads for the month of March to date show a gain of 10.8 per cent. over last year and 38 per cent. over 1899. The gains extend to practically every branch of the business. The textile industry alone does not improve. Short time has been adopted by Fall River cotton mills and there are reports that some of the southern textile mills are about to curtail production but this has been without special effect upon demand for either print cloths or heavy brown cottons."

Quotations of pig iron and finished steel tend toward a higher level. There is still the wholesome element of conservatism in the market. The steel industry alone does not improve. Short time has been adopted by Fall River cotton mills and there are reports that some of the southern textile mills are about to curtail production but this has been without special effect upon demand for either print cloths or heavy brown cottons."

A Guaranteed Cure for Piles. Itching, Blind, Bleeding or Protruding Piles. No cure, no pay. All druggists are authorized by the manufacturers of Pazo Pile Ointment to refund the money where it fails to cure any case of piles no matter of how long standing. Cures ordinary cases in six days; the worst cases in four or five days. One application gives ease and rest. Relieves itching instantly. This is a new discovery and is the only pile remedy sold on a positive guarantee, no cure, no pay. Price 50c. If your druggist don't keep it in stock send us 50c in postage stamps and we will forward same same day. One application by Pazo Medicine Co., St. Louis, Mo., Manufacturers of Laxative Bromo-Quinine and Grove's Tasteless Chill Tonic.

Hide at Chicago have declined steadily for two months, the net fall in the average of ten grades amounting to 7.5 per cent. Despite the weakness of the wool lines, foreign hides are tending upward.

Special reports telegraphed this week indicate that the winter wheat crop is in good condition and an unusually heavy average was planted at the southwest, while ravages by Hessian fly have been exaggerated.

Failures for the week numbered 224 in the United States, against 123 last year, and 33 in Canada, against 27 last year.

Six Cases of Scarlet Fever. Fort Scott, Mo., 22.—There are six cases of scarlet fever at the Epworth home on South Scott avenue and one home has been ordered under quarantine by the health authorities. The victims are all the children of poor people who have left them at the home temporarily until they could arrange to provide for them, or who have left them there, expecting to pay a nominal sum for their keeping. The managers of the home are considerably distressed over the unfortunate condition.

A Guaranteed Cure for Piles. Itching, Blind, Bleeding or Protruding Piles. No cure, no pay. All druggists are authorized by the manufacturers of Pazo Pile Ointment to refund the money where it fails to cure any case of piles no matter of how long standing. Cures ordinary cases in six days; the worst cases in four or five days. One application gives ease and rest. Relieves itching instantly. This is a new discovery and is the only pile remedy sold on a positive guarantee, no cure, no pay. Price 50c. If your druggist don't keep it in stock send us 50c in postage stamps and we will forward same same day. One application by Pazo Medicine Co., St. Louis, Mo., Manufacturers of Laxative Bromo-Quinine and Grove's Tasteless Chill Tonic.