Society

An elaborate and beautiful dinner was given at the Topeka club last night by Mr. and Mrs. David W. Mulvane in compliment to Mr. and Mrs. Hiram Price Dillon who have recently returned from travels in Europe. The table and dining room were exquisitely decorated in yellow and green. The table flowers were yellow roses used with smilax and roses and daisies were arranged in vases on the buffet and serving table. The room was lighted by yellow candles under yellow shades in glass candelabra. Name cards decorated with water color sketches in the prevailing shades indicated places for the following guests: Mr. and Mrs. Dillon, Mr. and Mrs. Bennett R. Wheeler, Mr. and Mrs. Charles Blood Smith, Colonel W. H. Rosington, Miss Roseington, Mr. Justice Sias R. and Mrs. Porter, Mr. and Mrs. Frederick W. Freeman, Mr. and Mrs. W. A. L. Thompson.

Snyder, Mrs. Don Mulvane, Mrs. Arthur McClintock of Lincoln, Nebraska, Mrs. Gil Updegraff, Mrs. Dor Morton of Kansas City, Mrs. Charles L. Mitchell, Mrs. J. In Paris the women who might be said to belong to the decadent school of fashion get themselves up in fearful and wonderful ways. For a long time they have had a vogue for making up their faces to simulate a deadly pallor of skin with vividly red lips and now this fad has reached this country and been taken up by some of the eastern women. But Parisienne have discovered a new color scheme and are seen, it is said, in numbers on the boulevards with their faces painted a pale mauve, their lips purple and their hats swathed in drooping chiffon veils of lavender or pale red. Luckily the west is still too whole omely literal to understand or appreciate the subtleties (as Paris would express it) or idiosyncrasy (as Topeka would say) of such beauty types and there is no danger of the impressionist school of dermatological painting becoming popular on Kansas avenue where the faces are still seen painted, if painted at all, in the good, old-fashioned, obvious reds and whites.

Miss Ethel Hadley gave a Kensington today for her sister, Miss Winifred Hadley, whose marriage to Mr. Walter Edwards Davis, son of Mr. and Mrs. John Davis, 1104 West Eighth street, will take place Thursday, June 27, Mrs. W. E. McVey, Mrs. William F. Bowen and Miss Nell Allen assisted the hostess. About forty guests were asked and a similar number, including the members of the Saturday Afternoon club, will be entertained at cards tomorrow.

Misses Ruth and Helen Walker will give a party at their house on Buchanan street Tuesday afternoon for Miss Hadley and Mrs. Thomas Corwin will entertain in her honor Wednesday.

Mrs. J. W. Bailey and Mrs. W. M. Gregory gave an informal afternoon party today at the home of the former, 1300 Harrison street, for Mrs. E. W. Polndexter who leaves soon for a permanent residence in Kansas City.

and Mrs. William Y. Morgan of Hutchinson. There will be a round of parties for the house party guests during the week. Commencing with an automobile ride and luncheon at the Country club by the hostess, there will be luncheon by Mrs. Chas. Smyth, a breakfast by Mrs. Frank Oliver, a breakfast by Mrs. Leonard C. Jackson and a luncheon and musicale the same day by Mrs. M. C. Campbell. Mrs. A. S. Parks will entertain and there will probably be other parties during the week.

The Hellenanthus club will give a subscription dance at Vinewood tonight. A private car will leave Eighth and Jackson streets at 8 o'clock.

Miss Mabel Chambers left this morning for Los Angeles, Cal., where her wedding to Mr. Frank Bartel will take place next Wednesday. It had been arranged to have the wedding in Topeka at the home of her mother, Mrs. J. S. Devery, 1215 West Fifth street, but Tuesday but Mr. Bartel was unable to leave California on account of business cares and sent for his bride to join him in California. Miss Chambers had been a teacher in the Topeka schools.

A business man offered a young girl relative a position down town, but although she admitted that she needed the money she refused because, she said, she would "lose her social position" if she accepted. Her reply was interesting as heretofore nobody had ever suspected her of having a social position.

Hearing that a girl whom he had taken for a drive had told another girl that he was "awfully slow and didn't know how to treat a girl," a Topeka chap sent back word that he would treat a girl all right if she made a hit with him. Guess that was a sassy come-back. In other words it was not a question of speed or morals but of inclination.

Miss Gertrude Barnes will give a dinner at the Vinewood cafe this evening in compliment to Mrs. W. E. Culver and her mother, Mrs. Sabin, who leave the last of June for their future home in Erie, Pa. The members of the Clio club have been asked.

Usually the people who whisper around until a great deal of secrecy have nothing important to say.

There was great excitement in a Topeka family the other day, the occasion being a party which the oldest daughters, seventeen and nineteen, respectively, were to give for a visiting girl in their set. A party in that family is something to be proud of, for they have not yet reached the age when the whole household is subservient to their social duties and obligations, so the younger children manifested a great deal of interest in the preparations and their concern was made use of by the young hostesses who had them running errands and helping in other ways all morning. After luncheon, however, the two big girls called the young ones together and issued a manifesto: They were to have baths and their best clothes on and were to "assist" while the guests were arriving. Tommy and Billy were to stand at the front door and let the arrivals in and ask them to go up stairs; Jane was to stand at the top of the stairs and show the guests to the room where they were to take off their hats. Phyllis was to stay in the dressing room and not under any circumstances to be caught trying on the hats. But after the company had arrived and the card tables were filled the children were all to retire to the back yard and stay there all afternoon. The hostesses didn't want them nosing around the card tables either during the game or while the serving was going on. They were to stay absolutely in the background and be little ladies and gentlemen all afternoon and then when the guests were gone they could come in and have their ice cream and cake. At this there was naturally great indignation, and the children promptly set up a howl. Phyllis said if she couldn't be at the party she was going to help. Jane demanded to know if she hadn't gone clear up to Aunt Amy's to borrow spoons and lunch cloths and thought it was a nice way to treat her after she had worked all morning getting ready for company not to let her have a bit of fun. She didn't care anything about standing at the top of the stairs and telling them where to go. If she could punch the score cards or something like that so she could be around and hear what the big girls talked about or what on the table she wouldn't mind. Tommy gave it out flat that if he couldn't be in on the party he wouldn't dress up and stand at the door but would keep on his old jumper suit and get his face and hands just as dirty as he could and hang around the front porch and disgrace the hostesses for life. He wanted to know what fun there was in being dressed up and sent to the back yard. If they had to stay in the back yard and couldn't even peek at the guests what was the use of being dressed up? He had picked daisies for the party and run errands because he supposed, of course, he would be allowed to stick around. If he wasn't going to be in on the party he didn't want to be in on anything. He knew how it was about the eats when you had to wait until the company was finished. Ice cream and cake, indeed! He wanted some of the fried chicken and he bade them recall how much of the fried chicken was left when the company got through at that party mamma gave. "The company got all the wish-bones—all us kids got was the gizzards and necks." At these signs of rebellion the big girls scolded and cried and called their mother to quell this insurrection, which she did only after arguments, pleadings, threats, punishment and promises. The children were finally dressed up in their white shoes and stockings and their best frocks and suits and compelled to perform their unwilling offices of assistance until the guests had all arrived, when they were traveling suit of dark blue with hat and gloves in the leather shades and carried bride's roses. There were no attendants. The wedding music was played by Miss Harriet Nightingale. Top of the house decorations were of daisies and green. Mr. and Mrs. Elliott left last night for Denver.

The marriage of Miss Lillian Leeds and Mr. Harry Peters Davidson, both of Topeka, took place quietly yesterday afternoon at St. John's church, near Wakarusa, Kan. The ceremony was performed by Bishop Millsaugh. Mrs. Davidson is the daughter of the late Archdeacon Leeds and formerly lived at Wakefield. At home after July 1 at 826 Topeka avenue.

The teachers of the primary department of the Central Congregational Sunday school will give a lawn party Saturday afternoon at the home of Mrs. Ralph Gaw in honor of Miss Norma Holman, whose marriage is to take place this month.

Mrs. C. H. Gaunt gave an afternoon today for Mrs. Wilson and Miss Dolly Wilson of Los Angeles, Cal., who are the guests of Mrs. Rousseau A. Burch. Miss Maggie Bucher of Las Vegas, who is spending a month with her sister, Mrs. James E. Burch, and Mrs. W. K. Etter of Albuquerque, who is the guest of Mrs. George Heyden.

Miss Ethel Pankey and Miss Daisy Lee Pankey are issuing invitations for a thimble party Wednesday, June 12, in compliment to Miss Lola Pankey, who has recently returned from an extended visit in the City of Mexico.

At a wedding supper in Atchison recently, the bride's health was drunk in water. And this in Atchison!

Superior Pianos

Above the lines and limits of ordinary piano construction, having more elaborate finish in both the interior and exterior, are well worth the additional investment needed to cover the extra cost of their manufacture. We carry at all times such pianos in our regular stock and mention here some exceptionally fine styles.

Wissner Piano $550

The tone of this piano must be heard in order to appreciate its pure resonant, sympathetic quality. We wish to speak now of its wonderful construction. Of all pianos in the market, without exception, it is the most elaborately finished in every detail. It is difficult to describe fully here. The case is the richest San Domingo mahogany, the pedals, hinges and trimmings of finest metal. The method of stringing is entirely new, the strings passing under a raised heavy iron bar, so that they are struck by the hammer heads exactly the same as in a concert grand piano, and the full iron plate is finished in pure white enamel gilt traced.

Story & Clark Piano Style 7, $475

For a perfect elaboration of the late French style of case this new style certainly takes the lead. Its symmetrical imposing appearance is highly creditable to the skill of these well-known manufacturers.

Hardman Piano $450

Their largest size concert scale piano has its peculiar individual merits, recognized and appreciated by musicians and pianists everywhere.

Kranich & Bach Piano Style C, $425

These pianos contain more valuable improvements in construction, insuring permanency of tone, action and general durability than any other make. They use imported fancy veneers for the cases, in English Pollard Oak and figured Circassian Walnut, seldom equalled, never surpassed.

The Autopiano $650

Is easily the leader among the interior player pianos. It expresses most faithfully every class of piano music. It is substantially built in most elegant finished case; will outlast any other make of this class, its rich tone equal any of the highest grades of piano, and as a piano indestructible in its self-playing mechanism is perfection in action as well as tone.
