POKER WAS RULED OUT.

SO THE CLUBMEN TOOK TO TIDDLEDY-WINKS AND TIN WHISTLES.

A Highly Absurd Scene in the Card-Room of a Well-Known Club the Night After the Board of Governors Forbid Playing for Money.

One of the West End clubs now limits card-playing in its club-house to whist, cribbage, and old maid. This was done because of the quiet gambling that was going on among members, contrary to club rules. Although it was not absolutely known that money was the bone of contention, yet the board of governors became fairly convinced that such was the fact, and they immediately proceeded to enforce the rules of the club, and card-playing had to be confined to the aforesaid innocuous limits.

When the frequenters of the card-room began to come into the club and go to their accustomed tables for a "nice quiet game" they were informed of the new ruling of the board of governors. Of course they felt very much piqued, and thought it an outrage and an invasion of their rights as members of the club. It did not take long, however, to subdue them, and they, knowing the folly of kicking against the pricks, (the prize being, as they call it, the "club ring") bowed to the ultimatum of these dignitaries.

This decision of the board of governors seemed to bring out the wit and jollity of the bulls and bears on the card exchange. They go straightway to a novelty store on the Avenue and purchase a lot of toys and games played by children of tender age, such as tin whistles, pigs in clover, rattles, tiddledywinks, hollow rubber balls, and all sorts of games for innocent amusement. The next night there could be seen at the card tables some of the largest men in the club playing tiddledywinks, throwing a ring over a little post, playing parchesi, etc.

Of course this was great fun for the members who saw it and for the board of governors individually; but as a body the board felt grossly insulted, and may take such action as will change the relation now existing between the club and the perpetrators of this huge practical joke.

AQUA CREEK QUARRIES.

A Syndicate Purchases Them and Will Re-open Them Soon.

A syndicate of capitalists early last week visited the quarries situated on Aqua Creek, Va., and after inspecting them closed a bargain for their purchase, as well as the land adjacent thereto. These quarries, previous to the War of the Rebellion, furnished all the stone used for building purposes hereabout. Portions of the Capitol building are constructed of stone from these quarries. The stone is what is known as Virginia freestone and is regarded as one of the best materials for buildings. The Treasury, Patent Office, White House, and Post Office Department were also constructed in part out of this same stone. Plans for the erection of buildings at the quarries are now in course of construction and by May 1 it is expected that 1,200 hands will be at work in the quarries. When the war came the quarries closed. The stone in the old times was brought to this city on scows, towed up by steam tugs, but now, with railroad facilities, it is possible to deliver the stone in this city at a very reasonable rate.

The Ministering Children's League.

The Ministering Children's League, formed in England a few years ago by the Countess of Meath, and composed of boys and girls whose mission is inspired by those sentiments of love, "I came not to be ministered unto, but to minister," is now a miniature army, with branches extending into the British possessions, India, and the United States. Its motto is, "No day without a deed to crown it." The second chapter of this organization, having already eighteen members, meet every Thursday evening at the residence of its Warden, with the following members: Vice Warden, Albert Gaines; Secretary, Frederick Rhodes; Assistant Secretary, Walter Falconer; and Treasurer, Edward Herrick, with fourteen other boys, all imbuing the spirit of the League, and already engaged in ministering to the needy. They will visit at Easter the Children's Hospital, with gifts of cards and colored eggs.

Fads in Exclamations.

The Continent.

Every season women utter new exclamations of delight. Nothing is perfectly lovely or perfectly splendid any more. "Julie Gordon," in her "Successful Man," makes a guest refer to a stone pavilion as "a dear." Men like Barrymore, Kealey, and Andres Dipple are called by their several classes of admirers "a love." Effie Shannon "is just sweet." Dorothy Tennant Stanley is called "so violetty." Bernhard "is adorable the way she walks." Things like Miss Leary's Lenten sewing classes are mentioned among the "very extraordinary," and the successful artists are "quite clever," and if their new books and pictures are "not bad" they are altogether admirable.

Old Watch Chains for Bracelets.

Evening World.

Ladies who love odd things are hunting up the old-fashioned but elaborate watch chains worn by the gentlemen of other days and converting them into bracelets. An ordinary link vest chain will make two bracelets, a heart of gold, a padlock, or some such pendant being attached for the clasp. The lady wears one and the other goes to her sister, friend, or protégé.

A New Song.

Among the recent works of local song writers is a pleasing little song of sentiment, entitled "Aline, My Darling," the joint production of DeWitt C. Sprague and Edward Holst. Both words and music are worthy of commendation, and the piece promises to find many admirers among the music lovers of the city. The song is published by John F. Ellis & Co.
