TO-NIGHT'S LECTURE.

It is a chronic cause of complaint that the Honolulu people will spend money generously for almost anything but their intellectual improvement. It seems to be more carefulness of their purses than carelessness of their mental necessities that is at the bottom of this reproach, for whenever no admission fee is charged there are thronging audiences. Yet the last thing in the world one who knows them would lay to the charge of the residents of Honolulu is stinginess. Therefore, we dismiss the idea of offering any such explanation of the difficulty of getting a large audience to pay its way in to an entertainment of a solid nature. It is not our intention, however, to further discuss previous derelictions, but to give two or three reasons why there should be a full attendance accorded the lecture on Japan in the Y. M. C. A. Hall this evening. In the first place a rare intellectual treat is promised. Those who know attribute to Gen. Van Buren rare powers as a platform speaker. That he will do justice to his talents on this occasion may be expected, from the familiarity with his subject he must possess. His prominent position, as Consul of the United States, in the chief commercial city of Japan, cannot but have afforded him the best facilities a foreigner could have for correct observation of the people and their peculiarities. Then the subject itself is of intense interest to the people of this country, of every class, at the present time, when the arrival of nearly a thousand Japanese, and the promise of more, makes it important that we should understand this new element of our population, and so act as to make the accession beneficial, in the highest attainable degree, to all concerned. Lastly, the Library and Reading Room Association, to whom the credit is due of procuring the promised treat, is the creditor of Honolulu for a heavier debt of usefulness, infinitely, than the sum of to-night's admission fees could liquidate, even if it was presented without the assurance that each contributor would get full value for his pittance on the spot. The reputation of the community is at stake in a multifold degree. Save it by going to hear Gen. Van Buren on Japan this evening.

EDITORIAL NOTES.

Vast frauds upon the United States revenue are threatened to be disclosed, in the shape of undervaluation of silks in European invoices. That is one of the fruits of a protective tariff.

According to Mr. F. L. Clarke's abstract of the census, the population of the Hawaiian Islands is eighty thousand five hundred and seventy-eight, not counting the last immigration of Portuguese and the nine hundred and odd Japanese just arrived. This is a larger population than previous estimates allowed. A decline is shown to be still operating in the native race, but the decrease is in smaller ratio than that of the previous period, so that an upward turn is not beyond hope.

Abandoning debtors may shake the dust of Honolulu off their feet, but they must carry away loads of it in their clothes, eyes, ears, nostrils and lungs. For so much consolation let their mourning creditors be thankful.

MEMORIAL SERVICE.

Yesterday morning the services in the Bethel Union Church were dedicated to the memory of the late Rev. Samuel Chenery Damon, D. D., for over forty years pastor of that congregation. An audience of about 230 filled the ground floor pews and overflowed into the galleries. Decorations were few and simple, but in excellent taste. At the back of the pulpit, in white megonias, was the device—

The desk was covered with crape, with a wreath of white roses running along the margin. A large bouquet of calla lilies set in ferns adorned the front panelling of the pulpit. After appropriate preliminary devotions, the Rev. Mr. Oggel, pastor, preached the memorial sermon, from Gen. 5:24,—"He walked with God; and he was not; for God took him." Enoch had several children, showing that the cares of a family are in no way incompatible with a high spirituality and a life of pre-eminent consecration to God. A few words apostrophizing such friendship with God as Enoch enjoyed, and the preacher entered upon a succinct biography of the subject of memorial. Of Dr. Damon it might also be said, "He walked with God." Born in Holden, Mass., Feb. 15th, 1815, he had professed faith in the Redeemer at the age of fourteen, an example the preacher urged all the young to follow, for a life entrusted to the Lord Jesus, and by him directed, must in the highest sense be a success. Dr. Damon was educated at Amherst College, Mass., and Princeton Seminary, New Jersey. Among his fellows in those institutions were Gov. Bullock, Judge Doolittle, Dr. Hitchcock, Dr. Stuart Robinson of Kentucky, Dr. B. M. Palmer of New Orleans, Dr. R. S. Storrs and Rev. Henry Ward Beecher of Brooklyn. Dr. Damon had a definite aim in life, and like Augustine and Milton, Galileo and Luther, called to their respective tasks, was directed to preach the gospel of Jesus. His father had designed him for business, but he on his knees consecrated himself to the missionary work, and later called this his second conversion. He was ordained a minister Sept. 15, 1841; married Oct. 6, 1841, to Julia Sherman Mills, his faithful and loving companion to the last. His first intention, to go a missionary to India, was relinquished upon being asked to take the place of Rev. John Diell, the first chaplain at this port of the American Seamen's Friend Society, that gentleman having died at sea. Arriving here with his wife on Oct. 19, 1842, this had thenceforth been his home and field of labor. This chaplaincy was the great work of his life. From his lamented predecessor's jubilee sermon, the preacher gave facts to show the magnitude of the labors of such a position in the first and larger part of Dr. Damon's incumbency. Between 1842 and 1867, at the lowest estimate 6,000 seamen annually entered this port. During those years, he had testified, his labors were abundant and sometimes beyond his strength. Mere statistics, however, could not measure the value of his work, owing to the multiplying and expanding power of the gospel. Those receiving a Bible, a tract, a Friend, or even a word to awaken good memories, would communicate, in many instances, the beneficent influences to others on the white waters. Dr. Damon's labors as editor of the Friend from its starting in 1845 to nearly the end of his life, his pastoral work in the Bethel Union, his writings upon Micronesian missions—the noted "Morning Star Papers"—and his numberless public-spirited services to the community, were all in turn alluded to, also his recent visit to the Orient. The degree of Doctor of Divinity was conferred upon him by Princeton University in 1868. In his later years the Doctor manifested a deep interest in the Chinese. Resigning his pastorate a year ago, he intended it should have taken effect that very day, the seventieth anniversary of his birth; but his intention was to have continued in fellowship with the congregation, as helpful as he could be after discharging the duties of the chaplaincy to the sailors. Mr. Oggel closed by an appeal to the young to examine the life and emulate the example of the departed minister.
