THE EMPEROR OF JAPAN'S BIRTHDAY.

The Government and Consular flags have been flying throughout the day in commemoration of the 34th birthday anniversary of His Imperial Majesty, Musto Ito, Emperor of Japan. The Royal Hawaiian Band played an excellent programme this morning at the Japanese Consulate-General, Nuuanu Avenue, in celebration of the event. Hawaiian Government officials, foreign representatives, and many private citizens have shown their respect for the Emperor of Japan and the Japanese nation and people, by calling at the Consulate-General during the day, and proffering their congratulations. They were received by Mr. Taro Ando, Diplomatic Agent and Consul-General, and staff with the natural and unaffected courtesy and entertained with the genuine hospitality characteristic of the Japanese Consulate-General at Honolulu.

SIDE ISSUES.

Really, the BULLETIN was not aware that it had been "trifling" with its readers by "advancing side issues and puerile objections" relative to the harbor question. The "side issues," so called by the Herald, have been mild and brief corrections of an erring contemporary, intended solely for his benefit. It appears, however, that he is not in a condition of feeling to profit by our humble efforts to lead him in the right path; for he comes back to the subject again this morning, and refers to our statement of the United States survey of Pearl Harbor as having been advanced "with an air of transcendental wisdom and an assumption of thorough information" which we did not possess. The "transcendental wisdom" and "assumption of thorough information" are passed as mere fanciful creations of the Herald, but the request for us "to publish the result of the American naval investigation" merits brief notice. We confess we are unable to state the precise result. If we could, we would. Not for the sake of conferring "a great favor on the Hawaiian Government," for we cannot believe that that Government is so uninformed in the matter as our contemporary represents. But we are able to state as one of the general results of the investigation, that it was estimated that the deepening of the entrance to Pearl Harbor, so as to admit large vessels, would cost a comparatively large sum of money—large for a small country like Hawaii, but comparatively small for a great country like the United States—amounting to millions of dollars. This is no secret information. Those who conducted the survey spoke freely at the time to residents here who interviewed them.

RUNAWAY STATISTICS.

It has been calculated that there is about three "runaways" of carriage horses per week in Honolulu. Generally there is not much damage done, though in probably every instance either the horse, carriage or harness is injured. There is, perhaps, three hundred carriages used daily in Honolulu. Three of these are found to be damaged per week; then for once in two years, say, those who ride to and from business in their carriages may expect to have them injured.

If it is the shafts which generally suffer the most, then comes the wheels, and lastly the body. The harness is always giving way here and there, and in two years is—practically—renewed throughout.

The cause of these runaways is generally sheer carelessness on the part of the drivers. It should be borne in mind that the average carriage horse that is harnessed in the stable, with "blinders" on the bridle, does not really know what it is that he is hauling around. He jogs along contentedly enough with about so much of a load, and as long as he is not left to his own devices, behaves very well. But "some day" he is left standing in front of—a dry goods store, say—and gets restless. His fair mistress is in the store immersed in laces, frills and trimmings. Time is nothing to her, while the horse gets hungry, nervous from fly bites, indignant at the long delay, and finally starts off, quietly it may be, but uncontrolled.

Then rushes out some well-meaning but altogether too blundering person who yells "Whoa!" and frantically plunges at the horse's head. Of course the animal bolts and the result is a broken carriage, a disrupted harness, perhaps an injured horse.

To repair all these is expensive. The average cost of each runaway cannot be less than $50, the aggregate amount paid yearly for repairs attendant upon them amounting to about $7,000. No close estimate can be made of the money cost of repairing damages to persons involved in runaways, but it is considerable, and much of the whole expense might be saved by always bearing in mind the caution, "Secure your carriage horse, when you leave him standing alone."

"HI BIT."

EDITOR BULLETIN:—An article in yesterday's issue of your paper in which someone, assuming the name of "Jiminy Cricket," stated wrongly the origin of the phrase "hi bit," generally used by the boys, when swimming about the steamer prior to their departure. The phrase did not originate from "the beat," but the word "hi" is only the corruption of the English word "heave." Hence the phrase "hi bit" signifies the throwing of coins into the water for swimmers to dive after. I desire to make this correction as I do not wish the foreign community to be led astray, in the usage of this phrase, by pretending scholars of Hawaii.

HAWAII POST.
Honolulu, October 30, 1886.

LOU MORRIS, THE BILLIARDIST.

Alonzo H. Morris was born in Boston, U. S., and first came to the notice of the public as a first-class billiardist in 1879 in the preliminary tournament for the championship of the United States, in which he carried off the first prize, defeating Eugene Carter, the champion of Ohio; Thos. J. Gallagher, champion of Missouri; and Thos. Wallace, champion of Maryland. This preliminary tournament was for the purpose of deciding who should play in the main tournament, which was limited to ten players. In the main tournament Joseph Dion won first prize, Jacob Schaeffer second, and Morris and Geo. F. Slosson tied for third. In the play off Slosson won, although Morris defeated him in the tournament game. This gave Morris fourth prize. He finished ahead of Wm. Sexton, Maurice Daly, Rudolph Heiser, Wallace and Carter. In the same year he won the championship of the United States at fifteen ball pool by defeating the champion, Saml. F. Knight. As a man cannot hold his own at billiards and pool at the same time, Morris concluded to continue on as a billiardist, and forfeited the emblem to G. E. Wahlstrom, who was the first challenger. In 1883 he played in the 8-inch ball line preliminary tournament in Chicago, and again won first prize, defeating Carter, Heiser, Wallace, Gallagher and Maggioni, champion of Louisiana, and secured fifth place in the main tourney, which was won by Jacob Schaeffer, Vigneaux, champion of Europe, 2nd; Daly, 3rd; Sexton, 4th; Dion, 6th; Wallace, 7th. Morris was in bad health throughout this tournament. He is notorious in the States as an all round billiardist—that is he plays all styles of billiards without having a favorite game. He has been in California for the past three years, and has played several games there with Benj. F. Saylor and J. F. B. McCleery. He was handicapped in all of them, but won them all except when he attempted to discount Saylor. He played Harvey McKenna, of Detroit, in San Francisco last February 6,000 points straight billiards, and defeated him. McKenna only making 3,300. Morris has played J. F. B. McCleery four pin pool matches even up, and won two and lost two. A match has been arranged between them for Thursday evening at the Commercial Billiard Room.—[P. C. Advertiser.]

A NOBLE WARRIOR 300 YEARS AGO.

It was during a battle before Zutphen that the episode occurred which made the name of Sir Philip Sidney so remarkable in history. He had signalized himself one day by prodigies of valor, for he was a warlike enthusiast of the highest order. Two horses had been killed under him and he was in the act of mounting a third when an arquebuse, shot from the trenches, broke one of his thigh-bones. He was unable to manage his horse, but the faithful animal bore him out of the field to the camp, a mile and a half distant. He was in great agony and faint from loss of blood, and when passing the rest of the army he called for water. It was brought to him, but as he was putting the bottle to his mouth, he saw a poor English soldier borne past who was more severely wounded than himself and who gazed at the bottle longingly, and with laggard eyes. "Thy necessity is yet greater than mine," said the gentle and heroic Sidney; nor would he drink until the soldier had been satisfied. He was then borne to Arnhem, where the principal surgeons were stationed. Hopes were entertained of his recovery for some days, but as they were unable to extract the ball, and mortification ensued, he prepared to meet death with a resignation, piety and fortitude that corresponded to his past life, and he expired in the arms of his brother-in-law, Col. John Braithwaite, on the 17th day of October, 1586, in the thirty-second year of his age. The United Provinces wished to have the care of his interment, but this was declined by Queen Elizabeth, by whose orders his body was embarked for England by Gen. McNaughton with the military honors of the time. It was received at the Tower of London in the same manner; and, after lying in state for some days, was solemnly interred in old St. Paul's.—[Extract from "British Battles on Land and Sea."]

THE PANAMA CANAL.

According to Senor Santiago Torrico of the Peruvian Navy, who for four and a half years previous to last February was in charge of the "surveillance des mandats de paiement" of the Panama Canal Company, the company is conducted in much the same manner as was the New York Board of Aldermen in 1884. "Boodle is what every employee looks for and what the generally gets," so Senor Torrico says, "and personal gain is the ruling motive of every man, no matter how low his position, who is in the employ of the company at Panama." Senor Torrico further says: "Unless a different set of men take hold of the works the Panama Canal will never be completed. The manner in which these gentlemen live is simply princely. Gorgeously furnished houses, horses, carriages and palace cars are what are considered to be essentially necessary to the company's chiefs in order that they may carry on the work to a successful close, and the company's money pays the bill. One man, who dealt in furniture, etc., made in two years $500,000 out of the job, and that is a sample of the corruption existing in the ranks."

AMATEUR MECHANICS.

Do amateur mechanics make skillful workmen? A machinist in the Mechanical Engineer thinks they do not. He says a failing common to all amateurs or non-professional workers is too great haste. It matters not whether they are amateur machinists, or carvers, or painters, or amateurs in any handicraft, the same weakness affects them all. The amateur wishes to see how his work will look when it is done, and he slights the preliminary process and hastens to the final one, with the result of making a botch of the business in hand. The work shows to the practical eye that it has been done hastily (carelessly is a better word), and it is inferior for that reason. The amateur himself sees it, and after a time, after the first joy of completion is over, he hates the sight of his hurried job, and very often destroys it out of hand. The better way would have been to stifle all impulses to get the work finished before it was fairly entered upon, and go through the process which all work must go through before it can be properly completed. If I were asked what were the most necessary qualifications for a successful amateur I would say patience and perseverance. Rarely do amateurs make good workmen, and it is most frequently for want of these virtues.

The United States Postmaster-General has decided that all photographs come under the designation of printed matter, and are therefore to be rated as third-class matter, instead of being in the fourth class and rated as merchandise, as heretofore. Under this ruling photographs can be sent through the mails on the payment of one cent for two ounces instead of one cent an ounce.—[Pacific Printer.]

Germany has decided to supply her whole army with repeating rifles and all the Government manufactories and arsenals are to be run continuously day and night on the work of converting the Mauser rifles.

There promises to be a war of reprisals on the part of Spain, owing to the proclamation of President Cleveland placing 10 percent additional duty on Cuban products imported under the Spanish flag.
