THIS EVENING'S MEETING.

[COMMUNICATED.]

Mr. John W. Kalua, who addresses the natives this evening at the Skating Rink on Queen street, is undoubtedly the ablest Hawaiian speaker in the country. His opposition to Chinese immigration dates back many years, and ever since the public meeting called by him in Honolulu last year in support of restrictive Chinese legislation then under consideration by the Legislature, he has been completely boycotted by the Chinese. His conduct in this respect is in striking contrast with the position taken by most of the native lawyers and politicians, who are holding on more or less openly to the old anti-haole platform and what is more offensive still supplementing it now with avowed pro-Chinese sentiments.

Mr. Kalua, while unquestionably a true Hawaiian, has the sense to see what his compatriots are not intelligent enough as yet to comprehend, i. e., that the issues before the country are class and not race issues. The natives unquestionably are being urged to boycott to-night's meeting by the sore-headed irreconcilable native politicians of the Bush stamp, who having done more than all others to mislead the native people under the old order of things, and by their excesses to bring native rule into disrepute, are now making desperate efforts to keep the natives together by frantic use of the old anti-haole chestnut and to prevent the natives from taking up any new issue for their own individual good.

It seems likely that many natives may thus be kept away, but be there few or many at the meeting to-night this voluntary move on Mr. Kalua's part will be the beginning of a movement that will surely gain ground among the common natives.

An anti-haole, pro-Chinese organ such as Mr. Bush's paper now is must rouse the indignation of the whites and cool off the support of the natives, for whatever the native's feelings may be against the whites, when the day comes that he must actually choose between his white brethren of the poorer classes and the Chinese, there is no more doubt that he will go against the Chinese than that the sun will rise to-morrow. Bush politicians and Queen street are nearing each other through the Chinese question and the inevitable sequence will be that the poorer natives and the poorer whites will be drawn together.

THE WHALING FLEET.

Capt. E. Kelly of the whaling bark Eliza, writes to Mr. E. O. White from the Arctic Ocean, under date of July 12th, as follows: All on board the Eliza are well, but have caught no whales so far. There have been 26 caught to date, viz., Reinder 3, Rosario 1, Helen Mar 1, Lucrétia 2, Belvidere 2, Orca 1, Narwhal 4, Beluga 2, Balena 1, Jesse H. Freeman 1, Northern Light 2, James Allen 1, Hunter 1, Lagoda 1, J. H. Howard 1, Wm. Lewis 1, Thrasher 1. The spring catch is small. The whalers have all gone through the straits, so there will probably be no whaling for some weeks. The bark Ohio, Capt. Giffard, was stove by the ice and lost, all hands saved. The natives report that the bark Ohio, Capt. Allen, went ashore at Point Hope and all hands were lost. All the whaling men speak in the highest terms of their treatment by E. O. Hall & Son.

HONORABLE RECORDS.

[From Shoe & Leather Reporter, by request.]

In the chronicles of mercantile disaster which we have published for thirty years past there have been bright illustrations of commercial rectitude which will bear repetition. Although a settlement at a fraction of a dollar relieves debtors from all legal consequences, there are instances where they have held views in close attune with the spirit of the Golden Rule—"Therefore all things whatsoever ye would that men should do to you, do ye even so to them." The matter has weighed upon their minds, and being prospered, they have discharged what they felt to be a moral, if not a legal obligation. We give a few notable instances which have occurred in our trade, as we recall them:

The late Chas. B. Baeder, founder of the firm of Baeder, Adamson & Co. Previous to that time, when a young man, he failed in business, and after experiencing many difficulties, settled with his creditors at 50 per cent. Fourteen years afterward he called his creditors and their representatives together at a dinner at the Continental Hotel in Philadelphia. A check was presented to each person, covering the amount of the additional 50 per cent., and interest for the time which had elapsed. He paid at that time about $30,000. Some of the original creditors were dead, and in more than one case the money relieved the necessities of families which had been left nearly destitute.

In the office of Wm. Claffin, Co. burn & Co., in Boston, hangs a portrait of Geo. B. Ginnell, a shoe dealer of bygone days, and under it is the following autograph letter, framed:

NEW YORK, May 1, 1873.

LEE CLAFFIN, ESQ.,
Dear Sir:—In 1861 my firm of Geo. B. Ginnell & Co. failed and compromised with you. The amount lost by you on the compromise was $4,181.87. I now inclose my check for $7,739.68, being the full amount, and interest at the rate of 7 per cent. Yours truly,

GEORGE B. GINNELL.

The year 1861 witnessed great commercial disaster. Shoe and leather merchants were cut off from their most profitable trade, which lay in the South. The firm of T. & E. Batcheller & Co. was at the head of the shoe manufacturing business. Their sales had been something over $1,000,000 a year. The impossibility of making collections south of Mason & Dixon's line forced them to suspend. They settled their large indebtedness at 50 per cent, and assigned their Southern assets to a body of trustees, of whom Alfred H. Batcheller was one. The senior partner, Tyler Batcheller, withdrew, and died soon after. The house was reorganized as F. & A. H. Batcheller. As soon as it was practicable to go South, Alfred H. Batcheller went thither, made collections from old customers, opened accounts with new ones, and paid the creditors in full, with interest.

L. K. Stone & Co., of Quincy, Ill., failed about the commencement of the war. They afterward settled in full.

S. O'Brien, a shoe manufacturer of Randolph, Mass., went into bankruptcy in 1874, and settled at 30 per cent. He died, and his widow paid the remaining 70 per cent. April 25, 1889.

Henry Horman, of Chicago, failed in the retail shoe business in 1874, owing about $75,000. He compromised at 50 per cent. In May, 1885, he visited Boston and paid the remainder of the obligation in full.

Patrick Cox failed in 1868, and settled with his creditors at 40 per cent. He was then doing business in Brooklyn. Afterward he moved to Rochester, N. Y., and commenced making children's shoes. He prospered, and ten years later called his old creditors together, at a dinner at Mataran's, in Beekman street, New York, and paid them 60 per cent, additional, thus discharging his indebtedness in full. There were sixteen firms who participated in this payment of a debt of honor.

The case of Miss E. E. Hogan, of Newark, N. J., is fresh in the minds of the trade. We published the facts in the Reporter of May 30th. Her father, Patrick Hogan, failed in 1881, with $52,497.68 liabilities. He settled at 20 per cent. The business was continued by his daughter, who prospered exceedingly. She was assisted by her father and two brothers. It had always been the desire of Patrick Hogan to pay the balance of the indebtedness he had incurred; he had about completed arrangements to do so, when he died suddenly last March. The daughter assumed the sacred trust, and the past summer she discharged the old debts in full, discharging among 51 creditors the sum of $42,002.32.

Such noble acts, like oases in the desert, brighten the rugged pathways of trade, and show human nature in its best phase.

A TRIP TO PEARL HARBOR.

Through the kindness of Mr. B. F. Dillingham we met with quite a large party of very pleasant ladies and gentlemen on board the little steamer Ewa at 8 o'clock on the morning of Sept. 18th, for a trip to the place where the iron horse will make his first halt on his journey around the island. We went on shore but once, at Aki's landing near the rice mill, but were interested during the short time we were on shore, as it gave us an opportunity of seeing the process of cleaning rice which was entirely new to some of us at least.

We cruised around the shores of east, middle and west lochs; and from the deck of our little craft got excellent views of the shore and the large areas of gently undulating slopes stretching away for miles toward the interior, in one place unbroken by any mountain barrier as far as the eye can reach.

Some of the shore scenery is really beautiful and the mountain scenery in the cloudy distance, with its wonderful variety of form and coloring, is an alluring subject for a painter's brush. Strong and others have already transferred many of these scenes to canvas. But there is yet a large field for the display of the artist's skill.

The greater part of the large areas of comparatively level land referred to, are now unused like the dormant energies of a sleeping giant. But with the iron horse will go the civil engineer with his troop of laborers, whose irrigating ditches will bestow abundant fertility upon the now arid soil, and the present unfruitful field will in the near future be clothed with a rich carpet of luxuriant vegetation. In our mind's eye we can see it now as it will be when the plans already laid have been carried out, and please excuse our enthusiasm, for we feel like shouting: "Hurrah for the iron horse! Hurrah for the engineers! Three cheers for Dillingham!" the projector of, and the chief mover in the enterprise. We arrived at Brewer's wharf at 4:30 p. m., and after passing unanimously a vote of thanks to Mr. Dillingham for the pleasures his kindness had afforded us, we disembarked with the feeling that we had learned something; carrying with us the memories of a day of genuine pleasure not soon to be obliterated. C. W. SHEPHERD.

Its insurance business was $482,125,184 and the computed Reserve Fund which with future premiums and interest is required to pay the same, at the maturity of the policies or the death of the assured, was $117,607,078, thus leaving a great surplus for future dividends to policy holders of $7,887,639.

This Company has no capital stock. It is purely Mutual. To illustrate the point pertaining to the investment of funds and the return to the policy holder, the following illustration is given:

This is a statement of a single premium life policy issued by this company in 1863:
