

THE Daily Bulletin

Pledged to neither Sect nor Party, But established for the benefit of all.

SATURDAY, FEB. 15, 1890.

The BULLETIN would thank both telephone companies' central offices for their assistance in getting a report of the steamer disaster Friday.

Captain Rothery who put his back back four hundred miles to Newcastle, Australia, recently, in order that an injured apprentice boy might have efficient surgical assistance, deserves if anybody does the Humane Society's medal. His action redeems materially the reputation of shipmasters and mates, sadly marred of late by several tales of brutality to the men before the mast.

Mr. E. C. Macfarlane suggested a wise departure in national policy when he said a skilled engineer ought to be employed to lay out public works. It is a shameful commentary on our boasted progress that tens of thousands of dollars should have been expended on our principal streets within the past two years, only to have much of the results disappear and those streets be made impassable in places by the first considerable rainstorm—all because a skilled engineer did not precede the road supervisor in the work.

The disaster to the steamer Ewa off port is an episode liable to occur any day. It raises the question whether Honolulu—and for that matter Hilo, Kahului, and other resorts of shipping—ought not to have a life-saving service. Following the practice with regard to protection against fire on land—which is to have a volunteer organization where a paid one is unattainable—a volunteer marine life-saving corps, with public rewards for work accomplished and equipments furnished by the state, ought to be available out of the sturdy boatmen and hardy fishermen of our ports. Here is a chance for any of the newly-elected legislators to distinguish themselves as benefactors of humanity.

Some Plimsollian disciple in the new Hawaiian Legislature might attract a halo of lustre about his intellectual brow by pressing through a measure to compel all sea-going vessels to pass an inspection for seaworthiness before leaving port. It is fearful to think of the number of valuable lives lost out of this port within a few years past, in large part undoubtedly due to the rotten or crazy hulks allowed to go to sea. With the inspection of hulls and lading of vessels should be an official oversight of the credentials of skippers and the efficiency of their mates and crews. The shipwreck of a Hawaiian vessel, occurred not very long ago, with a loss of life never publicly reported, which was beyond question caused by gross bungling on the part of a mate and perhaps some of the hands.

RESCUE THE RACE.

Mr. Dillon did not carelessly fall in with the common belief that the Hawaiian race is diminishing. He was strongly impressed with it; however, by the evidence of his own trained observation. He remarked, after having been here several days, upon the small proportion of native children to be seen about town. This he regarded as absolute proof—the parallel of what he saw in lands where other aboriginal races are further down the decline—that past censuses have not measured the rate of present decrease. It was a painful conclusion for this champion of another noble race struggling to recover lost ground on its native soil. As he said, the decay of the Hawaiian race is much more to be regretted than the corresponding process now hastening the few last native Australians out of existence, because—as the whole world knows—the Hawaiian is superior to any cognate race modernly discovered.

It was the opinion of the late Judge Fernandez—it is probably the opinion of some living to-day—that the lane has been turned and that the Hawaiian is on an upward path. Be this as it may, all right minds should give their best thought to the problem of how to prolong and brighten the life tenure of this phenomenally kind-hearted, docile, and intelligent people. General Marshall and others recommend industrial training as a prime means of race rejuvenation. These are undoubtedly right, but there are other desirable movements imminently demanding organized promotion. Home and personal hygiene, habits of all-round temperance and self-control, the emulation of other races in activity and knowledge and handicraft, the proper nurture and care of children, the most approved nursing of the sick of any age—these and kindred things making for health, happiness and longevity the natives ought to be sedulously taught, trained and practised in, both through the agency of liberally sustained institutes and systematic household visitation. So many native children, as even the incomplete form of the mortuary report shows, ought not to be allowed to perish, if, what is generally believed, they could be saved by timely medical skill and kindly but firm insistence on the prescribed treatment being followed.

There is a world of philanthropic activity and devotion waiting development in this national problem. The trusting of the poor but industrious native with a larger share than he holds of voting privileges should increase his moral stamina and self-respect, thus fortifying him against evils from within and without. Yet many a more important boon may be waiting to be conferred upon the Hawaiians than the vote for the upper legislative chamber, especially if they are not threatened with any oppression that would not be as quickly felt and more promptly resented by foreign workmen. A vast amount of other potent assistance to Hawaiians might be rendered them by their stronger brethren, and without the concomitant of pauperizing influences that upon any people are always deplorable.

A SECRET BALLOT.

EDITOR BULLETIN:—Every man who desires "fair and square" elections will endorse the sentiments expressed by "Voter" in your issue of the 14th, in regard to amending our election law so as to secure the fullest secrecy in voting. Conditions here in Honolulu are, in many respects, different from those of the country districts, and but little, if any, complaint can be made concerning the way in which the election was conducted here in the city on the 5th instant. Voters went to the various polling places and balloted as they pleased. If there is any truth in well-authenticated reports the same cannot be said of every district on the other islands. In some places voters are said to have been marched to the polls with the ballots thrust upon them by their employers or employers' agents and closely watched until those ballots were dropped in the box. The law should make this kind of thing impossible, and should be amended to that end at the coming session.

ANOTHER VOTER.

PRACTICABILITY OF THE PANAMA CANAL.

That the Panama Canal is a practicable scheme is the decided opinion of a well-known Boston business man in whose practical common sense all who know him have entire confidence. This gentleman has recently returned from a visit to the Central American States, where he availed himself of an opportunity to see portions of de Lesseps' great work on the Isthmus of Panama. While he does not feel confident that the present company or the present generation will witness its completion, nor say that it is advisable at this time to subscribe for stock or bonds, he declares stoutly that he saw enough to satisfy him that the plan is highly practicable, and that at some time in the future it will be put through. Too much had already been done with the most stupendous and efficient dredging and rock-curling machinery in the world, operating in the trench and on the mountain tops and sides, to warrant total abandonment. It could not be. Steam-launch commenced was already availed of to the interior from the easterly side of the isthmus for fourteen miles, as he could observe with his own eyes, and he was credibly informed by the Panama Railroad officials that equally good progress had also been made from the westerly side. There could be no question, in his view, that the prospect would some time be carried out by somebody, if not by private corporations, which he hardly thought could ever get adequate returns for their expenditure. But by some united effort of the great naval and commercial Powers to whom it could not fail to be of immense aid in their circumlocution of the earth, the Panama Canal will eventually be finished.—[Boston Transcript.]

Mrs. Pongee—Isn't that Mr. Doliver near the chairman? Pongee—Yes, my dear. How utterly miserable he looks! Has he been ill? Oh, no, he's all right. The poor fellow is hooked for a funny speech to-night.

California: Lands

FOR SALE!

THE undersigned wishes to inform the public that he has opened a Branch California Land Office, at No. 42 Merchant street, Honolulu.

To persons wishing to invest in Choice Timber, Agriculture, Fruit or Grazing Lands in the fine State of California, or in Desirable Building Lots in the beautiful City and Suburbs of Oakland, with its unrivaled climate and opportunities, I am prepared to offer every inducement in the way of bar-gain.

The Lands which I here offer have all been most carefully inspected by a thoroughly reliable surveyor, employed specially for that purpose, and I am therefore enabled to give satisfactory guarantee that every piece offered will strictly correspond with the description given by me.

The Titles to these Lands are perfect, being in the main state school lands. The previous personal inspection thereof at great expense, offers absolute security to purchasers and is an inducement offered by no other dealer in state school lands in California.

The price ranges from $3.50 per acre upward according to quality and location, and there is no doubt, by taking into account the rapid growth and progression of that State, that these lands offered at these low figures must within a few years command a much higher price and so secure to every investor a profit not easily equaled in any other line of speculation.

This opportunity will be open for a limited time only, and I therefore extend an invitation to all who wish to secure good and cheap homes in that magnificent State and Country, and also to those who desire to invest a little money to so great advantage and profit, to call upon me soon and obtain full particulars.

Information will be cheerfully given. Office room with J. A. Magoon, attorney, No. 42 Merchant street, 460 11

These Filters are easily cleaned, and NEVER become CRACKED or CRAZED by change of temperature of the water.

The Filtering Medium is a NATURAL STONE, mined from the earth. It is unlike any other stone.

It Does Not Absorb and Become Foul!

IMPURITIES never PENETRATE it, but lie on the surface, and internally the stone remains as pure and white after years of use as when taken from the mine.

The Gate City Stone Filter is a perfect success. It is the only real filter I have ever seen. I would not be without one for any consideration. It converts our lake water into the best drinking water in the world.
