J. T. WATERHOUSE

An inspector of food is needed in establishments where fresh goods are not always found. No one but a dealer in inferior stuff would object to it for the reason that men who make a point of buying the best goods at figures within the reach of the average bread-winner sell them so quickly that there is no danger of their spoiling.

We are making a specialty of groceries, good groceries which we buy and sell cheap. Care in the selection of them, no job lots left on the hands of jobbers, but good clean clear-cut goods suitable for the best class of people, but which we sell at prices within the reach of every one. Our reputation for selling Dry Goods cheap extends from Niihau to Hawaii; it will be no greater than the record we intend making for selling groceries cheap. Our stock comprises: Teas, Coffees, Syrups, Honey, Jellies, Cross & Blackwell's Jams, Sago, Tapioca, Saloon Bread, Fish in tins, Salt Pork in tins for family use, and the best varieties of cheese.

Our stock is new and new goods are received by every steamer.

Health and Strength RESTORED

BY THE USE OF
Ayer's Sarsaparilla

Mrs. M. A. Cummings, of Yarraville, Victoria, Australia, Says:

"About a year ago, I had a severe attack of influenza, which left me very weak, without energy, appetite, or interest in life. Obtaining little or no relief from doctors, or from the many remedies recommended to me, I finally tried Ayer's Sarsaparilla, and from that time, began to gain health and strength. I continued the treatment until fully recovered, and now have very great pleasure in telling my friends of the merits of Ayer's Sarsaparilla, and the happy results of its use. I consider it the best blood-purifier known."

NIGHT HAVE BEEN SERIOUS.

Young Jap Flattened Under the Wheels of a Car.

A very singular and what promised to be a serious accident occurred upon the Beretania street tram line last evening. The 9:25 p. m. car was bowling along when a Japanese boy, apparently about nine years of age, boarded it. He was bound for the beach and wanted a transfer to the King street line, tendering a nickel in payment. The driver refused, claiming that there were no transfers given, and an altercation arose which terminated in the boy's falling off the car. The young lad fell under the tram and his body was run over by both wheels. The passengers of course supposed him to have been killed; one young lady fainted and several others set up a screaming that could be heard for several blocks. The car itself was thrown from the track and it required the assistance of all the male passengers to get it back on again. Mr. Norrie, editor of the Independent, was on board and immediately sprang to the assistance of the unfortunate youth, dragging him out of further danger and starting to convey him to the nearest doctor's office.

Jack Lucas drove by at this juncture and Chester Doyle, accompanied by a lady, passed in a buggy at the same time. Doyle whipped up his horses and dashed off to summon assistance, while Mr. Lucas took the body of the unfortunate victim into his brake. A physician was reached in a few moments and upon examination it transpired that the youth was the famous India rubber boy from Tokio, who, having been raised entirely on the milk from the India rubber tree, was entirely uninjured. This is a companion story to that of the mysterious lady who patrols graveyards, which appeared in the Advertiser this morning.

MURDERED FOR A STAMP

A TWO-CENT "MISSIONARY" THE CAUSE OF THE CRIME.

Valued at Two Thousand Dollars and the Only Specimen in the Great City of Paris.

A recent article in a Coast paper was devoted to an account of several murders which have taken place in the last few years, the motive of which has been proven to be solely the possession of certain rare and valuable postage stamps. Among the four murders of which an account is given, one will be of special interest from the detective skill shown in the arrest of the murderer and the fact that the sole motive of the crime was a two-cent Hawaiian stamp of the issue of 1852, known as the missionary stamps. The account of the crime is given below:

"Paris was the scene of a most startling tragedy about four years ago, and for which the inciting cause was the overwhelming desire to possess a single philatelic gem of the first water. It was enacted early in June, 1892, in the Rue de Poisson, when Gaston Leroux, a philatelist, well known in the city, was found dead in his apartments, with a great gash in his throat through which his life had flowed away. It was a crime that long puzzled the authorities.

"Leroux lived alone, was wealthy, had few callers and, as far as any one knew, interested himself in nothing except the collecting of stamps. For many years an old woman had been accustomed to look after his rooms every morning. On that June morning when she reached the apartments she went in by a rear door, as was her habit, and began to dust. It was not until she had furbished up two rooms and reached the third that she came upon the body of the murdered man and fled with a cry of terror.

"The police were puzzled by the crime from the start. There seemed no motive. Although there was a large amount of money in the rooms none seemed to have been taken. In a desk close beside where the body lay there was a small drawer partly open, showing several pieces of gold coin and a diamond-studded watch. This showed the motive could not have been robbery. Nor could the police find that the man had a single enemy.

"When the fact of the murder became known to the public one of the first persons to hurry to the house was Hector Giroux. He admitted readily enough that he had called on the dead man the night before and found him in perfect health.

"The best detectives in Paris were put on the case. It was one of these, a week after the murder, who found a possible motive for the murder. In looking over the index in the album containing the collection of stamps all were accounted for but one. That was a Hawaiian two-cent stamp of the 1852 issue, known as the missionary stamps. At that time this stamp was quoted at $2000. The detective searched every shop in the city where such a stamp would be likely to be sold.

"Finally suspicion fell on Giroux, when it was found that he, too, was an enthusiastic philatelist. Through the ordinary channels the detective secured an introduction to this man under the guise of a stamp collector. For months he watched and waited, becoming in time the close friend and companion of Giroux. One night the newly made friend of Giroux turned the conversation on the subject of Hawaiian stamps and the missionary stamps in particular. Of these there are but three denominations—2 cent, 5 cent and 13 cent, the rarest being the 2 cent. In a burst of enthusiasm Giroux exhibited one of the 2 cent denomination.

He was arrested the next day for the Leroux murder, after the proof had been obtained that there was only one specimen of the stamp mentioned in Paris. The evidence was circumstantial, but Giroux was a novice in crime, and confessed that he had killed his friend after he had refused to sell him the Hawaiian stamp, which he needed to complete the set of the issue to which it belonged.

THE GOOD COURT MARTIAL.

The Prosecution Finishes and the Defense Now Going On.

Some material progress was made in the Good court martial on Saturday evening, as the prosecution closed after A. St. M. Mackintosh, Captain Ziegler, Lieutenant Ludwig, Sergeant Weatherby and Captain McCarthy had testified.

For the defense Sergeant Taylor and Privates Scott, Barry and Winan were examined and the court then adjourned until this evening at the same hour and place.

Plaster Cracked Already.

The hard finish plaster underneath the gallery of the Opera House on both sides is cracked badly already. It is no fault of the plaster evidently, as it is perfect underneath the middle of the gallery. There is no support to the narrow extension of the gallery leading to the upper proscenium boxes, and the presumption is that this part of the structure has sagged. Either that or the side walls of the building have settled.

Extensive repairs have been made at the Reform school. A partition now separates the young boys from the older ones in the dormitory, the building has been repainted, and a new fence erected in the rear. There are forty boys in the institution, a larger number than for several years.
