LANE'S LASSO STOPS DANGEROUS RUNAWAY

Richard Lane, the lieutenant of the mounted police, last Wednesday afternoon made a gallant stop of a unaway, in which the usefulness of he lariat now carried by the mounted officers was amply demonstrated. The runaway started from King street near the railroad station, a large, spirited horse attached to a wagon with a load of charcoal, running at a great rate down King street and up !.iliha. A little above Vineyard the runaway collided with a horse attached to a milk wagen, throwing it down. The runaway then turned and ran back towards King street.

At this point Lane came on the He was riding down Lillha when he saw the runaway in the He immediately gave distance. chase and came up with it close to Kukui street, just as the outlaw was turning into a space crowded with people. Lane, with the practice bred of many years on the ranches of Hawall, threw his rope with unerring nim, catching the runaway fair. He hrew it to the ground, and jumping to its head held it down until it could be extricated from the harness. luckily, no great damage was done
