HOW PEARL HARBOR ITEM FAILED

Navy Went Too Far In Increasing Fund For Dock

Editor Evening Bulletin: Senator Hale has blocked the special estimate for increasing the limit of cost on the Pearl Harbor dry dock.

When the opening of the dry dock bids a week ago showed that upwards of a million dollars' increase would be required in the authorization before the contract could be let, one of the Navy officials asked Mr. McClellan and myself to go to Senator Perkins and get him to move an amendment to the Naval Bill, which had already been reported to the Senate. This we did, and Senator Perkins promised to look after it.

Unfortunately, the Navy Department concluded, from the unanimous action of Congress last year, that they could get almost anything they wanted for Pearl Harbor merely by asking for it. Accordingly, instead of sending an estimate for the additional million dollars needed, they sent a request for an increase of $1,500,000. The result was that Chairman Hale refused to accept such an amendment to the bill, and Senator Perkins refused to offer it.

Realizing the importance of securing this increase if possible, we appealed in turn to Senators Flint, Gallinger, and Lodge to offer the amendment; they all declined to undertake it, for Senator Hale's word is law on the Naval Bill in the Senate; and in the face of the strong attack being made on his bill, he feared to advance so large an increase as to nearly double the price of the dock.

Senator Lodge took me to Chairman Hale and we discussed the matter at some length. When we found that we could not secure any encouragement from him, we determined to make an appeal direct to the President.

We went accordingly to the President on Wednesday morning and stated the situation. He expressed immediate interest in the matter, summoned the Secretary of the Navy to come at once to his office, and asked us to go to one of the most prominent Senators, whom he designated, and say to him that it was the President's request that he endeavor to persuade Senator Hale to accept this amendment. The President also indulged in some very personal comment on the California Senator who had refused to offer the amendment.

We at once conferred with the other Senator as requested by the President; he was, however, unable to secure favorable action, and the Naval Bill was passed with no increase whatever for the dry dock cost limit.

The suggestion has since been made to the Navy Department that a contract be let for a 600-foot dock, with a provision obligating the contractor to construct the 1180-foot dock at the bid price in case the cost limit increase is secured in next year's Naval Bill. The Secretary has not yet passed on this proposition, and he may leave the decision to his successor after March 4th.

THE POLLARD'S AND THEIR EDUCATION

Pollard's Lilliputian Opera troupe, which will begin its farewell engagement next Monday night at the Opera House, consists of more than forty talented children, recruited from cities throughout Australia. It is perhaps the most unique aggregation that has ever appeared on the stage.

These children have all been trained since infancy in the art of the stage, their schooling being of the most complete character. A school teacher accompanies them on their tours, that their education may not be neglected.

The first opera to be given will be "The Belle of New York," which was one of the most popular while the troupe was here last year. It will run the first three nights, and "Florodora" the next three and the Saturday matinees. New songs and specialties will be introduced into all the operas.

Tickets are selling at Bergstrom's at popular prices—25c, 50c and 75c for evening performances, and for matinees, 25c for children and 50c for adults.

IT IS CHILDISH

"Kidney Trouble" is a term seldom used in Medical Works. The technical term they use is from the Greek and means "inflammation of the kidneys," which is the real difficulty with kidney troubled people.

It is childish to attempt to treat inflamed kidneys with kidney irritants. And yet thousands do it every day, and kidney disease that does not get well early takes a chronic form that was incurable, the deaths now reaching 170 per day.

The ordinary diuretics are kidney irritants and drive the kidneys for a short time. This does not allay inflammation in them—rather the reverse. Can you see why the old kidney medicines were not only futile but at times harmful and why physicians have abandoned them?

It was the life work of the late John J. Fulton to reverse the old method of irritation and replace it with a new action upon the kidneys that absorbs and allays kidney inflammation, and for the first time in the world kidneys disease, both in the acute and chronic stages, is now yielding to treatment.

And the means of doing it was an actual discovery, for up to the appearance of Fulton's Renal Compound, physicians and pharmacists knew nothing that would reduce inflammation in the kidney tissues.
