ROOSEVELT AND SLAVERY

OSAWATOMIE, Aug. 31.—Declaring that the struggle for the freedom of the days of John Brown went through to abolish the slavery of the day was being duplicated now, when freemen are in a struggle to gain control of their own government, Theodore Roosevelt launched a new nationalism in his speech today, made on the occasion of the opening and the dedication of the John Brown National Park.

His address clearly aligned the former President with the progressive movement in opposition to the special interests, and was practically an open declaration of war against the present administration, with its "stand-pat" backing.

Roosevelt declared himself in favor of a wide increase in the powers of the national government, terming this "the new nationalism."

The issue of the day, he declared, is the struggle of the freemen of America against those who now hold, and who are seeking to continue their hold on the national government.

GREECE AND TURKEY IN FOR TROUBLE.

CONSTANTINOPLE, Aug. 31.—A rupture in the diplomatic relations between Turkey and Greece is threatened as a result of the boycott that has been instituted throughout Turkey on all goods of Grecian manufacture and because of the threatened expulsion of all Greeks from the province of Salonika.

The Turkish government blames the resident Greeks for the trouble which has been occurring in Salonika for the past several months.

S. S. MANCHURIA IN QUARANTINE.

TOKIO, Aug. 31.—The Pacific Mail liner Manchuria is held in port by the quarantine officials, a suspected case of bubonic plague having been discovered aboard.

The Manchuria is scheduled to arrive here on September 9. The quarantine at the Japanese port will naturally delay her.

DELAY ACTION ON CECATE.

CHATTANOOGA, Tenn., Aug. 31.—After considering a petition presented, asking for the expulsion of Joseph H. Choate, the former ambassador to Great Britain, on allegations of unprofessional conduct, the American Bar Association has decided to take no action in the matter, for this year at least.

TAFT PLACES CORNERSTONE.

BEVERLY, Mass., Aug. 31.—President Taft laid the cornerstone of the local Y. M. C. A. building today, the ceremony being a largely attended one. His speech at the event contained nothing of political significance.

MORAN WINS.

SAN FRANCISCO, Aug. 31.—Moran bested Burns in their ten-round go today, although no decision, according to the terms of the match and according to the law, was given.

COPPER KING MARRIED.

NEW YORK, Aug. 31.—F. Augustus Heinze, the copper king, was today married to Mrs. Bernice Henderson, an actress.

SHORT STORIES FOR EVENING HOURS

HER STATE OF MIND.

"Did you get any mail?" asked the hostess of the young woman who was visiting her.

"No," said the young woman shortly. She had just returned after answering the postman's ring. "I have four envelopes addressed to me, but none of them is from him! Therefore I got no mail that amounts to anything!"

"Oh, well," said the hostess, comfortingly, reaching for her own letters "maybe something happened! He'll write later!"

"Later!" exploded the young woman, dropping her scorned assortment of letters on the floor and opening her eyes wide. "I don't care if he never writes now! That isn't the point! The fact remains that Samuel Plathra McIntyre, after being in town a whole week and simply devoting himself to me, hasn't written when he said he would! He said—'he said,' stammered the young woman in her wrath, 'that he'd write the minute he reached New York. If he had I should have the letter now! That's all the faith you can put in a man!'"

"Now, my dear!" expostulated the hostess, awakening to the fact that she had a situation on her hands, "don't be so hasty in your judgment! Maybe—"

"Oh, maybe!" echoed the young woman, disgustedly. "I know all about you interfered. Maybe he's sick. Maybe he's all the inkwells in New York suddenly dried up and all the pens were confiscated by the police! It isn't as though I was 10 years old and believed those things! And it isn't the old letter—it's the fact that I can't depend on anything Sam says! Don't you suppose if he were the right sort of man he'd have written that letter if he had had to sit up all night to do it? It just shows—"

"Now, Eleanor!" protested her hostess. "Sam is a splendid fellow and I'm sure—"

"Splendid!" scoffed the young woman. "I'm tired of splendid men! I'd like the everyday kind for a change—you can depend on them! Nobody pays any attention to them and they just plod on doing as they should, while these good-looking creatures who fancy every girl is crazy about them do precisely as they please and never put themselves out for any one! Sam McIntyre thinks he is a heart-breaker and privileged to have his own way, but I'll show him—"

"I can't understand you, Eleanor," interrupted the hostess, plaintively. "And I wish you wouldn't walk up and down over the rug like a caged lioness just because of a missing letter! Why, only the other day you were telling me you liked Sam so much because he was thoughtful and self-sacrificing and not a bit conceited!"

"You must be mistaken!" insisted the young woman. "I am sure I never spoke such foolish words, because from the very first I have realized all his faults. I am a keen observer, and I saw when I first knew him just how selfish and careless he was under all that pleasant manner he puts on! I knew he was not the sort of man one could rely on. I think handsome men invariably are that way and that's why I prefer homely ones. I—"

"Yet you never would pay any attention to Alfred because you said he was so ugly!" said her hostess. "It sounds a little inconsistent—"

"I'm not in the least inconsistent!" declared the young woman. "I am merely telling you what is in my mind. It isn't that I care a rap about Sam McIntyre—he doesn't appeal to me in the least, and I couldn't grow fond of him in a thousand years—but it is just the rudeness of his neglect. I don't have to stand being slighted by any man! He might write me a dozen letters tomorrow and it wouldn't have the remotest effect on me, because I now know him for what he is. I have found out the defects in his character, and I'm glad of it. Mercy! Think of the life a girl would lead married to a man like Sam! I don't see, really, how a girl with a scrap of sense could be in the least attracted to him, but I suppose there are plenty of silly little idiots—"

"There's the bell again," said the hostess.

The girl who was visiting went to the door and when she came back she bore in her hand a thick letter with a special delivery stamp and the New York postmark on it.

"I knew he'd write as he said he would," she remarked beamingly to her amazed hostess. "And a special delivery letter, too, so it would reach me quicker. If Sam isn't the dearest, most thoughtful—"

"Eleanor," said her exasperated hostess, "please remove yourself and your letter to another room—I need space to adjust my mind to the lightning changes of a young person who is madly in love!"

NEGROES PLEDGE THEIR SUPPORT TO COLONEL

Colored Men Indorse Roosevelt After He Points Out Their Opportunties.

NEW YORK, August 19.—The support of the negro electorate of the United States for a possible third term Roosevelt today by the 1100 delegates of the National Negro Business Men's League here in convention. The indorsement of the former President was voted after he had addressed the delegates on the opportunities for advancement open to the colored race in this country.

Colonel Roosevelt said: "The white man of the South is the vital man to have sympathy with the negro. When your neighbor respects you you have won your battle. The white man of the North does his worst work in interfering between the two people of the South and his best work when he improves their relations."

"I would not slur over the injustice with which good colored men are treated, but I feel that the really substantial way to conquer injustice is to train your people so that the white man will willingly recognize in his colored neighbor a desirable neighbor. Every down-at-the-heel, ramshackle negro cabin is not only bad for the people who live in it, but is a reflection on the race. A man who lives a 'ne'er do well' life of idleness is not only doing ill to himself, but to his people."

"As I wrote five years ago, when I was President, I believe in this league. You stimulate among your people principles of business and politics. You also stimulate among your people principles of business and enterprise. That is all right, too. You should build a firm foundation before you can erect the superstructure."
