

CHARACTER MAY BE DETERMINED BY STUDY OF HANDS AND FEET

(By The Associated Press.)
CHICAGO, Apr. 24.—In the hands, feet, eyes and ears lies the secret of character, according to Prof. Deiton F. Howard, of the psychology department of Northwestern University, in announcing a new system of character study here today.

The mind is not in the cranium, as many people suppose, Prof. Howard asserts, but at the tips of one's fingers, in the palmar extremities, in the retina of the eyes and the drums of the ears.

In making his announcement Prof. Howard says he has perfected a machine that he believes will determine a worker's characteristics and so prevent, as he puts it, "a square peg from being placed in a round hole."

"It is possible with this machine to determine a person's characteristics," said Prof. Howard. "Of course there are variations, but in the main there are four types of people: the bluff fellow who knows all about it, the 'leaner' who, when something goes wrong, at once turns to you for advice, the nervous chap who gets all mixed up, and the individual who goes at his task deliberately and works steadily."

In appearance the machine resembles the console of an organ. There are two pedals. At arms length from the seats and on a level with the elbows are five levers, and just above these and on a board about 18 inches behind the levers is an aperture at which the signals appear.

NAVY ATHLETES IN FINE SHAPE FOR BIG CARDS

ing of Navy's season. The undefeated lacrosse team will stack up against University of Pennsylvania. On the tennis courts, the Middies will pit their skill against Swarthmore College racqueters, while on the water Varsity and Freshmen eight-oared crews will row against like eights of Massachusetts Institute of Technology.

Ball Tossers Coming Along

While indications point to Navy having stronger representation on the diamond this year than last, the team is moving with more or less uncertainty just now. The Middies were counted to win from Harvard Wednesday after the Crimson had been smothered by William and Mary College; hence there was disappointment that the game went against them by a count of 7 to 4. Still more surprising were the heavy slugs which the Cambridge lads got of Kelly, recognized as the best hurler in the Navy outfit, and who twirled the winning game against the rival West Point Cadets last year. Still Kelly, like all other men of the mound, may have experienced a real "off day."

In the field the team is about up to the scratch compared to former Navy nines; at the bat, they look better, and with the careful manner in which the coaches are bringing their charges along, it is felt they will hit in top notch form and again take the Army into camp in the clash of June 2.

Crews About Up To Scratch

Last Saturday's races furnished a fine test for Glendon's pupils. The oarsmen performed in fine shape. The Varsity especially, has a big season ahead of it, including the triangular race on Lake Carnegie, with Princeton and Harvard as the other contenders and which should prove one of the best regattas of the year.

It looks as though George Findlay son's lacrosse team will hang up another Intercollegiate championship Mount Washington and Maryland University, which appeared to be the strongest bidders, have both been dispossessed. The Navy boys are holding their own on the tennis courts.

WORLD COURT IS AGAIN INDORSOR BY PRESIDENT

President Harding reviewed the Republican party platforms since 1904, all of which he pointed out spoke for a world court of arbitral justice and added:

"I believe in keeping the faith. If political parties do not mean what they say and candidates do not mean what they say, then our form of popular government is based on fraud and cannot hope to endure."

But the President left no doubt that he has no intention of moving toward the League of Nations by his support of the world court.

"In compliance with its pledges," he said, "the administration definitely and decisively put aside all thought of the United States entering the League of Nations. It doesn't propose to enter now by the side door, the back door, or the cellar door. I have no unseemly comment to offer on the League. If it is serving the Old World helpfully, more power to it. But it is not for us. The Senate has so declared, the Executive has so declared, the people have so declared. Nothing could be more decisively stamped with finality."

Not Paramount, Though

Mr. Harding made it plain that he did not consider the world court question paramount to all other national problems, and added that neither did he hold it a menace to party unity, evidently having in mind the warning issued by some Republican leaders within the last few weeks.

"It ought to be classed as a party question," he continued, "but if any party, repeatedly advocating a world court, is to be rebuffed by the suggestion of an effort to perform in accordance with its pledges, it needs a new appraisal of its assets."

Sensing one of the principal arguments to be used by opponents of the administration proposal, the claim that the United States would be placed at a disadvantage in the election of judges to the court through the disparity in the national voting power in the League assembly, the President said he frankly recognized this as a "political bugbear," but added that inasmuch as no nation could have more than one judge it was less of an objection than when applied to the League itself.

Although the question of the world court formed the burden of the President's address, he also bespoke a word for the establishment of a merchant marine, deplored lack of party loyalty and the organization of groups or blocs to serve group interests, and urged that the primary be made an agent of indisputable party expression rather than a means of party confusion or destruction.

Placed At Last

"I can't do a thing with Jones," said the manager. "I've had him in three departments, and he doeses all day long."

"Put him at the pajama counter," suggested the proprietor, "and fasten his card on him."

"Our night clothes are of such superior quality that even the men who sell them cannot keep awake."

An Artful Ruse

"I never knew you two to quarrel so much. It's positively dreadful the way you have been talking to each other of late." "I'll tell you about that. The servant girl is thinking of getting married and we're trying to get her to change her mind."—Detroit Free Press.

Eight Bridesmaids At Royal Wedding To Ignore Tradition

(By The Associated Press.)

LONDON, Apr. 24.—The younger generation's tack from the straight and narrow lane of orthodox and convention will be followed a bit in the wedding dresses of the bridesmaids to Lady Elizabeth Bowes-Lyon when she becomes the Duchess of York. And tradition will be tossed away somewhat by the bride herself in her wedding gown, for the sleeves will be of manufactured Nottingham lace. No one who worries over such things can remember when a royal bride ever wore lace other than handmade, upon her wedding day.

The unorthodox touch in the apparel of the eight bridesmaids will be a trail of lily leaf green tulle upon their cream chiffon dresses. Heretofore aristocracy has seemed to imagine that green was all very well in its place, but that a wedding was no place for it. However, green is one of Lady Elizabeth's pet colors and she ordained that her bridesmaids should wear it. Her favorite color, like that of Mrs. Harding, is blue.

The wedding dress of Lady Elizabeth, as described by the officially appointed personage whose business it is to depict such articles, is "a beautiful chiffon moire dress of old ivory color and of a simple mediaeval style, embroidered with silver thread and pearls, with lace sleeves reaching to the ground of specially made Nottingham lace. The train is composed of beautiful old lace mounted on tulle, the lace graciously lent by Her Majesty, the Queen. The bride will wear a tulle veil with a wreath of orange blossoms."

The bridesmaids will be gowned in cream chiffon dresses, embroidered with silver leaves with a trail of lily leaf green tulle caught at the waist with a white rose and silver thistle. They will wear head dresses of silver leaves with silver roses. The thistles are in honor of Scotland, homeland of the bride.

The going away outfit is a very simple but lovely dress of dove grey crepe remain, embroidered in self color. Where the newlyweds are going away to has not been announced.

NATION'S SOFT DRINK BILL UP FIFTY-SEVEN BILLION SINCE 1914

(By The Associated Press.)

WASHINGTON, Apr. 24.—If there are industries that have suffered since 1914, from the country's attack of prohibition, there is at least one that has doubled since that year. Consumers of mineral and soda water boosted the value of products in that field from $58,400,000 in 1914 to $115,577,000 in 1921, according to figures compiled by the census bureau, an increase of 98 per cent. during the period. The year 1919, however, was the banner period for soft drink manufacturers, for the trade during that year was valued at more than $135,340,000.

This classification covers all kinds of carbonated and fruit beverages, root beer, ginger ale, and other so-called soft drinks, but does not include natural spring waters. In addition to the value of products shown for the classified industry, establishments under other classifications added to the figures by reporting the manufacture of carbonated and fruit beverages worth $8,600,000 in 1921, as against $2,000,000 in 1914.

Proposed Federal Grading Of Eggs

Tentative grades for eggs are proposed by the United States Department of Agriculture. The grades are based upon quality factors indicated by condition of the shell, air cell, albumen and yolk, and by development of the germ. Size, color and weight are pointed out as not indicative of the edible quality of the eggs, but since they may have considerable influence upon the market value they should be considered in sorting and packing, the department says.

The grades as tentatively drawn up include five grades for eggs of sound clean shells as follows: U. S. Specials, U. S. Extras, N. S. No. 1, U. S. No. 2, and U. S. Culls. Two grades are provided for eggs of sound dirty shells, namely, U. S. Dirties No. 1 and U. S. Dirties No. 2. Eggs with cracked shells are graded as U. S. Checks. Full description of the grades may be obtained upon request to the Bureau of Agricultural Economics, United States Department of Agriculture, Washington, D. C.

Efficiency and economy in marketing will result from the general adoption of standard grades for eggs, in the opinion of poultry marketing officials of the department. The department has given extensive study to the question of egg standardization, and is offering the suggested grades to the egg industry for trial.
