The Province of Public Sentiment. Public sentiment does not make laws, but i moulds the men who do make them. It does not execute the laws, but it inspires executives, and nerves even judicial tribunals for the performance of their stern and often disagreeable duties.

Public sentiment can make oppression odious or intolerable; it can by its moral force protect the poor or it may leave them to perish: it can kill or make alive; it can exalt a man to heaven or sink him to almost hopeles

Such being its power how important that i should be properly enlightened, and made t bear in the right direction; that its aid should always be given to the oppressed and defence less, and that those who give direction to it should be men of firm purpose and with princi ples true to humanity.

We are led to these remarks by an article in the Worcester Spy, entitled "Mr. Beecher" Philosophy." The writer objects to the late strange sermon of this popular preacher, and says:-"Mr. Beecher, with Plymouth pulpi "for a rostrum, and all the high conservativ "journals of the metropolis to repeat his words preached a conciliation sermon, of which "this was apparently the key note:- 'The law. "and intents of the government and ourselves "will prove of no avail if they are hostile and "unpleasant to the while people of the South." "It would have been like the Mr. Beecher who "preached sound doctrine in Plymouth church "years ago to have said, 'The laws and intent. "of the government will prove of no avail i "they are hostile and unpleasant to the loyal 'people of the South.' "

The Spy makes the following judicious remarks touching the power of public opinion and the duty of true men in relation to it:

The country is in that situation now when the most that men can do, who desire that equal and just laws should prevail, is to re-inforce public opinion with their own personal energy. Neither individuals nor public bodies can have any direct agency in making bodies can have any direct agency in making the laws; but they can make public opinion that will demand them, and which the law-making power will not dare to disobey. Who believes that if the representatives and leader of that public sentiment which placed this administration in power, were united in asking that some guarantees shall be given for the rights of colored citizens before the states in which they are now outlawed return to the Union, and recover complete and irresponsi-Union, and recover complete and irrespons bie power over the whole subject,—who be lieves that Congress or the President himse would hesitate for a single hour? Yet the will hesitate, and the success of the principle we all profess to hold will be postponed,—no deleasted it is not in man's power to account defeated, it is not in man's power to accomplish that—if men whom we have been accus tomed to trust turn their faces away from the imperilled cause of equal rights, and, like the priest and the Levite, pass by on the other

"The White Man's Government."

This, the new motto of the party in hostile array against the Administration, is a harmless looking phrase. There is nothing in the sound that seems like a battle cry, but under the smooth surface lies hidden a bitter hatred. that bitterest of all, the hate of one race against another. There is also a storn and savage determination to preserve, or rather to win back the power so Aong wielded by "the party," and no means are too low or too wick ed for the purpose. There is a speciousnes. about the assertions that will find acceptance with many. To causual oberservation, ours has been apparently a white man's Government for slavery has held sway at the South and prejudice in the North. The vast amount of unskilled labor crowding to our shores from Europe has been frequent ly put in direct and immediate competition with that of colored freemen, consequently a deadly feeling has been evoked and has occasionally found terrible expression; and it is this feeling that the party is now willingly, wilfully and knowingly stimulating and exciting into renewed vigor. All political, and nearly all social rights and privileges, have been menonolized by the whites, and only inferior or semi-menial occupations have been open to the blacks; and it is here that they have come into conflict with the illiterate and prejudiced portions of our community-the people who naturally oppose all invocations, and whom it is impossible to convince that any future good will arise out of a present apparent evil; the very persons who, in their native country have wreaked terrible vengance on the mill owners and destruction upon the machinery which was, perhaps, or only threatened, to be an injury of the day, while assuring immediate future benefit. It is on such a class, and to such a blind and inevitable prejudice, that the appeal is directly made, and those who make it must bear all the present odium and future responsibility of all the dreadful acts that must necessarily spring from the fostering of such a demon-like bitterness towards a long proscribed and now manumitted race.- Philadel-

A Maine Man Garrotted in Boston.

The Boston Harald says that a gentleman by the name of Goin Wilson, who belongs in this state, and who frequently visits Boston on business, putting up at Wilde's Hotel, while passing Wright's oyster saloon on Sunday evening was accosted by a young man with the question of "Where are you going?" Mr. Wilson replied that he was "going to the kingdom." This answer was followed by a second interrogatory by the stranger, if he knew "anything about the Fenians?" but Mr. W. passed on without replying. Before he had proceeded as far as the Quincy House he was grabbed at the throat by some one coming up behind him, and immediately bent back by thrown to the ground. Before he had time to cry out for help, he was gagged and surrounded by half a dozen others who rifled his pock- tion of small insects, velgarly called vermin. ets. COTTON, AND GERMAN FREE TABOR. German free labor in Texas has again, the south being witness, raised a cotton crop superior to any grown by slaves. The farmers who have achieved this success were in constant jeopardy under the old regime, for the very reason that they furnished an irrefragable argument against the system by which they were surrounded, one of whose fundamental falsehoods was that the climate was fatat to white labor in the fields. The undeniable aversion of the freedment now that combine are likely as firmly as I believe, as firmly as I believe there is a God, that the democratic party, which now applicable and villifying him, as it did a year ago.—He, perhaps, is pursuing the proper course to restore the Lucion. Why We should wear Beards.

On this subject bearded philosophers have culated with loose rein, giving tree exercise o both whip and spur. Some people wear peards to beautify their countenances, and hence all the fantastic shapes into which they are trimmed to suit the individual's idea of beauty. The hair-lipped man is sure to shave only under the chin or the sides of the face.-The man with a tumor on his neck will perhaps shave his upper lip; the man of inordinately wide mouth always goes it big on moustaches. A few only allow nature full sway, and suffer the full beard to grow without clip or clearing. The latest argument for a full beard, and particularly for moustaches, that we have seen, is done up after this style:

The hair of the moustache not only absorbs The hair of the moustache not only absorbs the moisture and miasma of the logs, but it strains the air from the dust and soot of our great smoky cities. It acts also in the most scientific manner, by taking heat from the warm breath as it leaves the chest, and supplying it to the cold air taken in. It is not only a respirator, but with the beard entire we are provided with a comforter as well; and these are never left at home, like umbrellas and all sach appliances, whenever they are wanted. The remarkable thing is, too, that the beard, like the hair of the head, protects wanted. The remarkable thing is, too, that the beard, like the hair of the head, protects against the heat of the sun; it acts as a thatch does to an ice-house; but, more than this, it becomes moist with the perspiration, and then, by evaporation, cools the skin. A man who accepts this protection of nature may face the rulest storm and the hardest winter. He may go from the hottest room just the coldect may go from the hottest room into the coldes air without any dread; and we verily believ he might sleep in a morass with impunity—at least his chance of escaping the terrible fever would be better than his beardless compan-

We have purup and sold this article for over thirty years, and can say in confidence and TRUTH of it what we have never been able to say of any other medicine—Never has it fields in a single instance to effect a cure, when timely used. Never did we know as instance of dissatisfaction by any one who used it. On the contrary, all are delighted with its operations, and speak in terms of commendation of its magical effects and medical virtues. We speak in this matter "what we do know," after thirty years experience; and pledge our reputation for the fulfillment of what we here declare. In almost every instance where the Infant is suffering from pain and exhaustion, reliet will be found in fliteen minutes after the Syrup is administered.
