Active preparations are being made in Baltimore for the Oriole celebration which takes place there next month. The committee having the affair in charge appear to be active workers and are determined that the affair shall be a success.

The August sitting of the registers of voters for this county commences on Monday next, 14th inst., and will continue throughout the week .-Those Republicans who have not already done so should not fail to embrace this opportunity to have their names placed on the lists. He is a man among men, and to be relied on and depended upon. We congratulate the President on his selection, and sincerely hope Mr. Ditty may speedily regain his entire health and vigor."

There is very little being said in Baltimore ounty about the Congressional contest which takes place next fall. Interest in the Judgeship fight appears to absorb everything else in the political line. So far as we have been able to see

Mr. Talbott will have no opposition in this county for the Democratic nomination. If he is anything like as "solid" in the other three counties of the district as he seems to be here, he will have a walkover so far as the nomination is concerned.

promptly confirmed the nomination of C. Irving Ditty as Collector of Internal Revenue for the Third district of Maryland. This is especially gratifying as a few Baltimore sore heads, headed by men who should have been otherwise employed were engaged in concocting a scheme to have the nomination beaten in the Senate. Mr. Ditty will take charge of the office as soon as his bond is ready, which will likely be in a few days. There ean be no doubt but that the duties of the office under Mr. Ditty will be faithfully and efficiently administered. The bond is $200,000 and the salary of the office is $4,500. There are some sixty subordinates in the office.

We again appeal to all our Republican friends to embrace the opportunity given next week to have themselves duly registered. There has not been for a long time so bright a prospect for Republican success in the county as that immediately before us. Let no discord or faction feeling or apathy so control or influence any Republican voter as to cause him to decline regisring. The earliest opportunity afforded is always the best to embrace for discharging our duty, and while there will be another sitting of the registers in September, our motto should be "never put off until the future what can be performed at resent." Let us live up to it and not only get istered ourselves but let us labor industriously to have all the Republicans in the county, who are qualified voters, duly registered also. The fuller the registration the greater will be the harmony and the more certain our already bright prospects ome interesting statistics as to the churchly conlition of that city, showing, what has been suspected, that skepticism is increasing there, while the strength of Protestantism is on the retrograde. Out of a population of 1,300,000, investigation shows that only 90,579 belong to Pro churches. Since 1845 the population has increased 225 per cent., while the Protestant communions have only gained 76 per cent. The Episcopalian give the best showing. The Lutherans, we are arprised to learn, number but 7,500 communiants. The Jews are not so strong as one would naturally surmise, great numbers of them having ecome materialists and indifferent to their relirion. Out of an estimated Jewish population of 0,000, the total number of members of the synagogues is but 2,937. The Times estimates the atholic population of that city at half a million, but others think this is an exaggeration, as the State census of 1875 gives it but 162,808. There cems to be no doubt, however, that the Catholic opulation of New York greatly outnumbers the LETTER FROM FREDERICK COUNTY. Unionville and its Surroundings—Bag gage Smashers on the W. M.—The Scene of a Murder—A Sad Inci-dent—Country Life, etc., etc.

Unionville, Frederick County, Mo., August 8th, 1882.

Messes. Longuecker Brothers:—I have just sat down this rosy-tinted morn to surprise you by sending a letter to True Union from this delightfully pleasant village where any one so disposed can be happier than if he were at Ocean or Spring and the content of the country of the country in the mountains. Or riding resorts, or tramping in the mountains, or riding on the rail. It is a real treat to enjoy the kind hospitality of the warm friends whom we are visiting, the agreeable society of this quiet and intelligent people, and the calm retirement and dignified seclusion of the village itself. Were it not for the varied secure of the surrounding lead. for the varied scenery of the surrounding land-scape, the beautiful couplet of Goldsmith might be appropriately applied to Unionville, in all other respects the words are exceedingly applica-ble:

"Sweet Auburn, loveliest village of the plain,
Where health and plentycheer the laboring swain."
Although three eminent physicians live here still the place is proverbially healthy and the plenty that abounds both in basket and store is not surpassed anywhere I know.

A trip over the Western Maryland railroad to Union Bridge, forty-five miles from Baltimore, by rail, with six miles over a nicely shaded county road, by private conveyance added, brought us to our destination. In railroad time it takes about two hours and a half to reach Union Bridge from the beauting which is yeary story for a road that is Baltimore, which is very slow for a road that is Baltimore, which is very slow for a road that is so rapidly approaching the dimensions of a trunk line. The baggage handlers on this road must be an inoffensive set of officials, for they generously spared our two satchels from utter destruction, one being only burst wide open and the other having half the handle lopped off. These same satchels had made unmolested trips over the Baltimore & Ohio, the Pennsylvania, the Phila, and Wilmington, the Balto. & Potomac, half a dozen different roads in Penna., and twice as many dozen different roads in Penna., and twice as many away down in Dixie, but they all left the W. M. to visit its manifestations of displeasure upon them. The condition of their health, however, has them. The condition of their health, however, has been fully repaired by a young and ingenious harnessmaker of Unionville. Persons often hear and read of discrimination against or in favor of people along the line of a railroad, but the Western Maryland does this discriminating business to perfection in favor of Baltimoreans who wish to visit Pen Mar. To them it is only one dollar for the round trip, but to those who visit that delightfully nictures are treat to be the heart of the condition of lightfully picturesque resort and take the cars at Union Bridge, forty-five miles nearer than Balti-more, the fare is fifty cents each way or one dol-lar for the round trip. I write this for the bene-fit of Baltimoreas.

fit of Baltimoreans.

About half way between Union Bridge and Unionville, and in sight of the county road, but just across Sam's creek on the Carroll county side stands Lynn's mill, the owner of which, Abraham Lynn, was killed about tens years ago last spring, by the miller, Joseph L. Davis, who was hung for the crime on the 6th of Feb. 1871, the same day on which McCotter was hung at Cambridge in Dorchester county. Two weeks ago, just across the county road from the mill and not far from it, a quarrel between two farm hands named Rout and Cover ended in the latter striking the forms and Cover ended in the latter striking the former a heavy blow with a club which almost resulted fatally, when another crime would be added to the annals of that locality. The wounded man continues in a very precarious condition.

The cosy village of Unionville is located on what is here called the old Baltimore road, which extends from Liberty to Baltimore, a distance of forty miles, this place being thirty seven miles from the city: but we of Baltimore county call it the Liberty road which is so familiar to the old the Liberty road which is so familiar to the old residents of the first, second, third and fourth districts. Two quiet, meandering streams, branches of the Linganore, flow quietly along, which are fed by limpid springs by the sides of which are to be seen snow white spring houses which betoken the faultless cleanliness of the stately matrons of the commodious and substantial brick or stone farm houses everywhere around. The name Lniganore is that of a powerful Indian chief who in early times made these beautiful lands his huntearly times made these beautiful lands his hunt ing ground. The gently sloping hillocks on all sides of the village, at their rich bases on their fertile sides and cresting their summit, bear un-doubting evidences of as abundant a crop of corn as has blessed the industrious farmers for years past, and the crowded granaries, barns and barracks give equal proof of the abundance of wheat and hay the already shorn fields have yielded. The average yield of wheat will be over twenty ushels to the agre and of corn about ten barrels but several farmers say their yield this year will exceed this. The yield of fruit will not equal that of last year.

This immediate section of country extending to iberty on one side and towards Mt. Airy, New Liberty on one side and towards Mt. Airy, New Windsor and Union Bridge on the others, can scarcely be surpassed in fertility of soil, salubriousness of climate and beauty of scenery. It bears a striking resemblance to Green Spring. Worthington, Dulany's and Long Green valleys in the luxurious comforts which surround the farmers. Like these sections, Unionville and visibility acceptable, admirable place to like in cinity is certainly a desirable place to live in.

The village proper has two prospering stores, a mill, a saddle and harness maker, a boot and shoemaker and a blacksmith. It has a Masonic selves with credit to the organization and honor to the community they so ably represented. The public school of the village increased with so much rapidity that additional quarters had to be provided for the children; the school was graded by the accomplished and efficient Examiner, Mr.

I can scarcely realize the fact that I will never see him again. A warm-hearted friend and an able lawyer has passed away and not soon will his place be filled.

"Green be the turf above thee, Friend of my better days." Pilguin. Lakin, and a contract has been awarded to build an addition to the stone school house at a cost of $1,140. Properly and suitably educate the rising generation and there need be no fear for the safe ty and perpetuity of the Republic. Unionville has among its respected citizens Mr. Lugenbeet, present member of the House of Delegates from present member of the House of Delegates from Frederick county, and Rev. Mr. Winstead, chap-lain of the State Senate at the late session of the Legislature and at present minister of Linganore station, which comprises the M. E. church of this place, and a church at Union Bridge and one at Oak Orchard. There are two Methodist churches in the vi.lage. The Southern church, whose pas-tor is Rev. Mr. Balthis, had as the largest con-tributor to its erection Mr. James Pearre, an old and highly respected citizen living near here. tributor to its erection Mr. James Pearre, an old and highly respected citizen living near here, whose generous liberality has greatly assisted in the erection of several of the churches which adorn this beautiful section of country. He has been a great sufferer with rheumatism of the muscles for a long time and has the sincere sympathy of the entire community in his severe affliction. The M. E. church is a substantial brick structure, having the Sunday school room and three commodious class rooms on the first floor, the main auditorium capable of accommodating comfortably five hundred. This church has a very large Sunday school and church membership of about two hundred divided into seven classes. The old church building which this has replaced was said church building which this has replaced was said to be a century old. Bishop Ames preached dur-ing the dedicatory services of the present church in 1870, and the Rev. Dr. Poisal, who preached at the dedication of the Southern church the year before, have both been called to their everlasting reward. They were eminent as ministers and pastors and universally beloved. On Sunday last in the M. E. church the funeral sermon was preached of a young child who the previous Sunday, in charge of its parects, was riding in a buggy past the church when the horse became frightened and running down the hill upset the vehicle and threw out the whole family. The fond parents though severely bruised them-selves were delighted to find their little darling unburt. Little did they dream that their pre-cious babe would one week from that day be laid in the cold and silent grave by the side of the in the cold and silent grave by the side of the church.

Not far from this place is the site of the old log church where Strawbridge first preached. Many a chip from these logs has been carried away and preserved as relics by the Methodists of many lands and climes. A part of the logs now compose the beautiful pulpit adorning the new Strawbridge church recently erected in Baltimore. I could write of many more things connected with this lovely village and vicinity, and of the families dwelling here, but I think I have trespassed on your patience too far already.

25 The number of Jews in the United States is not so great as one is likely to infer from the prominent part they take in the active affairs of the country. According to the census of 1880, there were at that time only 230,984 Jews in this country, of whom 20,000 were in l'ennsylvania .-They are almost uniformly engaged in merchandising or financiering. They are falling off rapidly in Jewish orthodoxy, and a large majority of them are no longer in fellowship with that religious organization. It is remarkable, however, how, through all the centuries, they preserve their physical peculiarities. No other race has such a

Gentlemen :- Since I wrote my last letter w have been quietly resting and enjoying ourselves, letting each day take care of itself, and the rapidity with which time passes under these circumstances is wonderful. Our present intention is to remain here until the 18th inst., and possibly

I have attended an auction, and such is the I have attended an auction, and such is the rage here for the antique that an old secretary with brass handles brought $6, and it was so much out of repair that I suppose it will cost $10 to put it in order. Among other things put up for sale was a small feather bed for a child. The auctioneer in trying to sell it and while descanting upon its value said it had been "apprised" at $6. One of the bidders quickly said that any person who put such a value as that on it needed a "guardeen."—I believe he got the bed. Old china of all kinds, brass andirons, shovel and tongs with brass on brass andirons, shovel and tongs with brass on them, old bellows, brass warming pans are sold at high prices, and I saw an old-fashioned "grand-father's" clock for which $150 was asked, and anlather's" clock for which $150 was asked, and another for which $90 was asked. Both of these were fine clocks, however, and in good order.

The weather has been unusually warm in Nantucket this summer. It was very warm when we got here on the 28th of July, but on Monday it was pleasant again, and now another warm wave seems to have struck the Island and the thermometer to have struck the Island and the thermometer stands at $1^\circ$ to-day in a cool place out of the sun's rays at the house where we have our room. Then, too, it has been very dry and rain is badly needed. I was told there had not been a good rain for upwards of two months, and the vegetables in the gardens are drying up and everything has a parched look. The nights, however, are cool; one can sleep well and frequently a blanket is quite comfortable.

Mosquitos are numerous this year and they are the largest I ever saw. They do not give the dethe largest I ever saw. They do not give the de-iightful concerts that our Maryland mosquitos treat us to, but are in for business at once, and the first intination you have of the presence of one is by feeling the bite. But they are so greedy they do not get out of the way as our mosquitos do and hence they are easily killed. There are screens in our bed-room window and we have had but a single one in it, which was killed before it did any part of the Island have not been very successful, though from other parts, namely, South Shore and Sconset, the fishermen have put off in little dories and have caught quite a quantity. I was told that about 150 per day are sufficient to supply the wants of the town of Nantucket, including the summer visitors. The fishermen have been selling these fish until lately at 1] cts. per pound (now they get 2 cts) to persons who put them up in ice and send them to Boston where they sell readily for from 6 to 10 ets. per pound.

I sent you last year a few verses written by Peter Folger, who was Benjamin Franklin's grandfather, who came here from Martha's Vineyard by invitation to act as miller, weaver, surveyor and as interpreter of the Indian language, while his son Eleazer was to be the shoemaker for the inhabitants. I pressume Peter made better meal and cloth than he did poetry. I hope so at any rate, judging from the specimens he has left behind him. I send now some verses said to have been written about 100 years since by Mr. Phineas Fanning, who married Keziah Coffin, in which he refers to the nearlies traits which at that time distinguish traits which at that time distinguish traits which at that time distinguish. the peculiar traits which at that time distinguished certain well-known families here or to the particular occupations they pursued:

The Rays and Russells coopers are, The knowing Folgers lazy, A learned Coleman very rare, And scarce an honest Hussey. The Coffins noisy, boisterous, loud,
The silent Gardners plotting,
The Mitchells good, the Barkers proud,

The Macys eat the pudding. The Swains are swinish, clownish called. The Barnards very civil, The Starbucks they are hard to baw!,

The Pinkhams beat the devil. There is another version of only two stanzas which differs somewhat from that above and which The Rays and Russells coopers are,

The knowing Folgers lazy, A lying Coleman very rare, And scarce a learned Hussey. The Coffins noisy, fractions, loud,
The eitent Gardners plodding,
The Mitchells good, the Barkers proud,

The Macys cat the pudding. Now as Mistress Fanning, the wife of the sup-posed author of the above lines, was a Coffin, I am inclined to believe that possibly some traits exist-ed in her character which induced her husband to ed in her character which induced her husband to refer to the Coffins as "noisy, fractious, boisterous, loud." If so the poor man may have had a still worse time after he wrote those lines, and the lec-tures poor Mr. Caudle got may have been very mild compared with those that it may have been his fate to listen to.

The Marylanders here were extremely shocked to hear of the death of Mr. Richard J. Gittings. No one had heard of his sickness, and the last time I saw him, which was only a few days before I left Maryland, he seemed to be in his usual health. I can scarcely realize the fact that I will never see

Correspondence Baltimore County Union A TOUR OF "THE NECKS."

A Pleasant Drive Through Portions of the 11th and 12th Districts—A Prosper-ous Section—Fine Farms, &c.

Mesers. Editors :- On Sunday, July 27th, yo correspondent began a tour of that portion of Bal-timore county known as "The Necks," my object being to pick up what there might be to learn of that section. Having seen much to attract attenthat section. Having seen much to attract tion I thought your readers might be interested in a short description of that portion of Baltimore early Sunday morning, in company with a friend, seated behind a good horse, we started from Loch Raven, our first objective point being Stem-mer's Run, on the Phila., Wilmington and Baltimore railroad. Our course was down the Harford road until within six miles of the city, when we turned southeast towards the Philadelphia road. The country along the route presents a picture of industry and thrift rarely met with. It is mostly settled by Germans, who own nearly all the farms, and who appear to conduct them in a most neat and successful manner. Between many of these small farms there are no line fences, indicating that their owners are peaceable and neighborly. Most of them are engaged in truck farming and in time nearly all of them, by industry and economy, become independent. Another secret of their success is that they do their own work, hiring but little if any help. This portion of the county is undoubtedly the "garden spot" of Maryland, and a drive through it affords much pleasure. Howa drive through it affords much pleasure. How-ever there is one annoyance that is worth men-tioning. The drinking-houses are kept open on Sundays the same as during the week and are fre-quented by people from the city who drive out and often after becoming intoxicated become a nuis-ance to peaceful and law-abiding citizens. Why is it that the laws to preserve the peace and pre-vent the sale of liquor on Sunday cannot be en-forced?

vent the sale of liquor on Sunday cannot be enforced?

We reached Stemmer's Run about 9.30 a. m. and visited Orem's M. E. church, it being a model edifice in its way, being much larger and more handsome than country churches generally, and the interior is beautifully frescoed. Here we found a large and flourishing Sunday school, the officers and teachers all apparently being active in the cause. An able sermon on the duties of Sunday school officers and teachers proved very entertaining. The singing of the choir and school was very fine, Miss Addic Townsend, an accomplished musician, presiding at the organ. The people we found to be kind and cordial in their manners, ever ready to extend a welcome to strangers.—After church we visited Mrs. Walter's where we were very hospitably entertained.

After church we visited Mrs. Walter's where we were very hospitably entertained.

After dinner, having exchanged my companion for an interesting and intelligent young lady, we proceeded to "do" The Neeks proper. What are known as The Neeks are large bodies of land bordering upon the water, near the junction of the Gunpowder and Susquehanna with the Bay. The views obtained here are very beautiful. Looking out over the wide expanse of water white sails can be seen going to and fro; also the large excursion boats going out from the city, and the rich verdure which fringes the shores of the rivers, the whole combining to make a picture most pleasing to the eye. This is Back River Neck and the farms bear evidence of careful attention.

At Stemmer's Run is located the large iron furnace of Messrs. Fristenberg & Adler, where the best brand of charceal iron manufactured in the United States is made. The furnaces are now in ctive operation and have orders enough ahead to eep them running three years. Near the furnace the fine farm of Mr. John S. Hayes, who formeris the fine farm of Mr. John S. Hayes, who formerly owned the furnace property, and not far off are the large tracts owned by Mr. Wilzon Townsend, who supplies the cross-ties for the Phila., Wilmington and Balto. railroad. The timber that is not fit for ties is burned into charcoal, which is used at the furnace. Mr. Townsend is well known as an enterprising business man. In this locality are to be found some of the finest farms in the State and among them are those of Mr. Moses Fox, Mr. Fossett, Mr. Volmyer and others. We stopped a short time at the latter's place, and were very pleasantly entertained.

The prices of land are, as a general thing, very low, the average ranging from $10 to $20 per aere. One reason for this is the fear of chills and fevers which are sometimes prevalent in this section, but beyond all doubt the locality bears a far worse reputation in this respect than it deserves. During my whole trip I did not meet with one person who was suffering from this disease.

The land is very productive, being well adapted to the growth of corn, wheat, rye, oats and grass, and particularly well suited to the raising of garden products.

to the growth of corn, wheat, rye, oats and grass, and particularly well suited to the raising of garden products.

On Sanday following I visited Gunpowder Necks, which are situated about eight miles north of Back River and Holly Necks. This is also a beautiful and fertile country, with fine farms on every hand. The view from the handsome residence on the farm of Col. B. F. Taylor is one rarely met with. The Col.'s farm is beyond all doubt one of the finest in the State, and I think I have only seen one that may be compared to it, and that is Mr. Crossmore's, adjoining. Col. Taylor's farm is on the Gunpowder river, and from the porch can be seen the many trains crossing the railroad bridge some distance below. The farm is rented and is occupied by Mr. L. J. Pearce, who has an enormous crop of hay, wheat and oats. The crops on the farm of Mr. Crossmore are worthy of especial notice. The corn is, I think, the best I ever saw, and in every respect the place and the crops have the appearance of the most careful and intelligent cultivation.

the canning industry. Numerous canning houses are seen and many of the farmers are engaged in raising produce to supply them. Mr. Elias Corbin has a patch of 5½ acres in tomatoes, which promise an extra fine yield. The canners pay 25 cts. per bushel for them and contract for all the grower produces. Many large fields are planted in sugar corp.

There are many people from the upper portion of the county buying up land and coming here to live, among whom are Wm. Corbin, L. J. Pearce and John Sheridan. Much land is for sale and can be bought cheap. Mr. Corbin paid only $1,-600 for his farm of 60 acres, and the buildings 600 for his farm of 60 acres, and upon it are worth fully that sum.

Towards night I wended my way homeward, highly pleased with all I saw as well as with the kind treatment of which I had been the recipient.

Gorman and Mr. George Colton, Police Commis-sioner of Baltimore and President of the Board, appears to be stirring up considerable strife among the Democratic brotherhood, as both are leaders and each have their particular adherents, admirers and friends. At one period—not long ago—these (now) enemies were bosom friends and co-workers (now) enemies were bosom friends and co-workers in the same partizan and political cause. Now they are sworn enemies and at daggers points, ready to lay bare each other's faults and once (supposed) inviolate personal and political secrets. What the outcome of such a battle may be is yet beyond divining, whether, as Colton alleges, in Gorman selling out his party and position to the Republicans, or Colton—in the long run—coming out victorious, as "Little Giants" usually do at the closing of a long struggle. In whatever phase of the dilemma we view it the chances are in favor of strange divulgements being made profitable to the Republican cause. There is no question whatever that the "Little Giant"—particularly in Democratic "ins" and "outs"—knows many curious things, which, if put into print, as he threatens, will throw even more than electric light upon the will throw even more than electric light upon the dark places of Democracy in Maryland long re-quiring illumination. It is said Mayor Whyte is on Colton's side and will aid him in his endeavors on Colton's side and will aid him in his endeavors to out-general Gorman so as to put him out of the way of Whyte in his ulterior aspirations for again getting Gorman's place in the United States Senate. There are hints that Senator Gorman intends prosecuting Colton for libel on account of what he (Colton) has already published. Taking into consideration things (political) in the past. it would, however, not very materially surprise me —when policy requires it—to see Colton and Gor-man again arm-in arm as hitherto, bosom friends.

DEMOCRATIC BOSSES AT WAR.

Just now there is a big war in progress between the Democratic bosses in this State The Sunday American of July 30th, contained an interview Mr. George Colton, in which the "little giant" showed up Senator Gorman in anything but a pleasant light, charging that he had gone back on his pledges, &c. On the 3d of August the Senator wrote the following letter to the managing editor of the American :

My Dear Sir :- I have the honor to acknow!

edge the receipt of your favor of the 31st, in which you state that "General Agnus desires to treat all sides fairly, and tenders you the use of the columns of the American for any comments you nay choose to make, in an interview or other may choose to make, in an interview or otherwise. I will call on you any day you may name for that purpose. Please wire answer."

I will thank you to say to General Agnus that. I have seen one or more articles which have appeared in the American reflecting on me, some of the statements being not only slanderous, but wilfully and maliciously false. I as sume, however, that the object of the American in making these publications is for the purpose of, so far as may, disorganizing the Democratic party. Any other assumption would not be creditable to the American. It seems the American can find Democrats who, with real or imaginary wrong to revenge, are willing to aid it in that effort.

I beg to inform you that no assault on me, from such a source, could make me so far forget my party obligations as to aid the American in such an enterprise; nor do I think that there is the slightest personal reason for me noticing, at this time, the slanders referred to. Thanking you for your courteous note and requesting the publication of this reply, I am, yours very truly.

your courteous note and requesting the publication of this reply, I am, yours very truly, A. P. Gorman.

In reply to the above Mr. Colton wrote the fo lowing caustic letter, which appeared in all the eity papers :

lowing caustic letter, which appeared in all the city papers:

BALTIMORE. August 5th, 1882.

Editor American: —Will you kindly allow me a few words in reply to the letter of A. P. Gorman in this morning's Sun? Mr. Gorman says, referring, I suppose, to statements made by me in my interview in The American, that some of the statements are not only false, but wilfully and maliciously slanderous, thereby tacitly admitting that some others of them are true. Now, I want to bring this matter to the test—and dare Mr. Gorman to an investigation. Every word charged upon him by me is as true as Holy Writ; only the one-tenth part has not been told. Now, if he will test this matter before a court of Justice or any three disinterested gentlemen, two of whom he may select himself, and I don't substantiate not only my charges of falsehood and treachery, but further make him hide his head in shame and shrink from the presence of all honorable gentlemen, then I am willing to bear the odium of a false and malicious slanderer, and take the consequence. But no man can shrink from charges of this kind by quoting his love of party, when he threatened me that if he could not defeat the aspirations of Gev. Whyte any other way, he would next year turn the party over to the Republicans. Mr. Gorman must choose one horn of this dilemma. He must make the investigation and stand or fall upon its action, or he must pronounce me beneath his notice. Either one will suit me. More anon,

The Dunkers Divided A correspondent writing from Chambersburg, Pa., under date of August 2d, says: "There is now pending in the Equity Court of this county a Controversy between different factions of the sect of Dunkers, the determination of which will be of interest to this branch of the Christian Church throughout the country.
