FEVER and AGUE.—Just received Rowand's Tonic Mixture, never fails to cure this most distressing of all diseases, Intermitant Fever or Fever and Ague. This medicine is univesally admitted to have eclipsed the pretensions of every other mode of treatment, and therefore supersedes the employment of any other remedy, wherever the Fever and Ague exists. The superior merits of the Tonic Mixture rests upon several important qualities. It is entirely of a vegetable composition, prevents relapses of the disease, establishes a sound and permanent appetite, obviates costiveness of the bowels, and invigorates and fortifies the entire system.
