

LABOR LEADERS' COUNSEL ATTACK INDICTMENTS WHEN PRISONERS ARE ARRAIGNED

Claim Bills Are Not Specific and
That Statute of Limitations
Nullifies Them

46 DEFENDANTS IN COURT

Court Overrules Motion To
Quash Proceedings Against Chicago Men

INDIANAPOLIS, Ind., March 12.—The federal government scored in the arraignment of the 46 defendants in the alleged dynamiting conspiracy here today when Federal Judge Anderson overruled a motion to quash the proceedings against the five Chicago labor leaders involved and J. W. Irwin, of Peoria, Ill.

Arguments were then commenced on demurrers which were filed against all of the 46 indictments in the cases. The demurrers allege: That the act of 1886, under which the indictments were returned, was repealed in 1905.

That the indictments do not allege that the acts were continued during the time specified in the indictments. That the statute of limitations has expired against the alleged offenses. That the indictments do not allege that the transportation of explosives was unlawful or that the explosives were to be used for an unlawful purpose.

That the indictments are not sufficiently specific to permit the defendants to make a defense.

That the indictments do not show any attempt on the part of the defendants to deceive the railroad companies.

That it is not unlawful to carry explosives on passenger trains.

That the defendants are not guilty. The Chicago labor leaders in whose behalf the motion to quash was filed are: James Conney, Richard H. Houghlan, William Shupe, James Coughlin and Patrick Ryan.

A conspiracy to violate the federal laws by the illegal transportation of explosives and direct implication in the unlawful carrying of the same are the two charges against the men. From three to seven counts are included in the 46 indictments. Two years' imprisonment on each count may be levied by the court in case of conviction.

Nine of the 46 men indicted were not arraigned today. They are John J. and James B. McNamara, Eugene A. Clancy, Olaf A. Tveitmo, J. J. McCray, Edward E. Phillips, John R. Carroll, Orville E. McManis and Andrew J. Kavanaugh.

The McNamaras are already serving prison sentences for dynamiting in California. Clancy and Tveitmo, both of San Francisco, are under indictment for dynamiting in the California federal courts; McCray, whose home is at Wheeling, W. Va., thus far has evaded arrest; Phillips and Carroll are fighting extradition to this federal district from Syracuse, N. Y.; McManis, a confessed dynamiter, is now being used by the government in Los Angeles, and Kavanaugh is at his Springfield, Ill., home.

Federal District Attorney Charles W. Miller, in charge of the cases for the government, indicated to Federal Judge A. B. Anderson, that he would like to have the trials set for May. The district attorney estimates that the trials will consume at least two months.

DEATH COMES SUDDENLY TO MISS JENNIE M. CLARK

Miss Jennie M. Clark, while at work in the store of J. A. Burns Co., Monday afternoon, was suddenly stricken with apoplexy and died shortly after being taken to Grace hospital.

Miss Clark was head of the lace and embroidery department in the Burns store and was widely known to the shopping public. For years she occupied a similar position with the J. L. Hudson company, and was considered one of the most competent lace and embroidery buyers and managers in the city. Of pleasing manner, Miss Clark was very popular with all her customers, and her sudden death will be a shock and grief not only to her friends and associates but to many business acquaintances. Miss Clark was 45 years old and is survived by two brothers, George W. Clark and Henry L. Clark.

MONEY IS ASKED FOR BRANCH LIBRARIES

A supplemental estimate of $35,000 will be submitted to the council tonight by the public library board for the building of a branch library at Mack and Seymour-aves. An additional $5,000 is requested for the site. The board also submits a supplemental estimate of $20,000 for a branch library on the site of the old Houghton school, Sixth and Abbott-sts. The sum of $7,000 is asked for the purchase of a lot adjoining the Field-ave. branch.

Clara Barton, Seriously Ill, Asks Alpena Man, Aide In Cuban War, to Visit Her

ALPENA, Mich., March 12.—George J. Hassett, assistant light-keeper on Middle Island, has been called to Glen Echo, Md., to see Miss Clara Barton, former head of the Red Cross society, and in charge of the work of this organization during the Cuban war.

Mr. Hassett was a member of Company B, Thirty-third Michigan volunteer infantry, during the war, was detailed on special Red Cross duty and assisted Miss Barton in distributing relief to the soldiers. The two have been close friends since.

Miss Barton is seriously ill and wants to see her friend. She is over 90 years old. She paid the expenses of the trip.

VICTIMS OF MORPHINE END LIVES WITH POISON

Well-Groomed New York Couple
Swallow Poison in Their
Cottage at Augres

BAY CITY, Mich., March 12.—From Augres, 60 miles north on the shore of Saginaw Bay, comes a story of a suicide pact, which was completed this morning in the death of Mrs. F. H. Hopkins. Her husband died Sunday night. When Hopkins died, his wife lay in an unconscious condition in which state she continued until she died this morning, both cases the result of taking poison.

A little less than a year ago, Mr. and Mrs. Hopkins reached Augres, a small town on the shore of Saginaw Bay. Groomed in city style they at once became the cynosure of the eyes of the public. Mr. Hopkins accepted a position as accountant for the Cole-Grimore Mercantile Co., the largest mercantile concern here.

During the winter, Mr. and Mrs. Hopkins had apartments at one of the hotels. In the spring they leased a pretty cottage on Main-st., and moved it exclusively. They neither received callers nor made calls. With the new home in order, Mr. Hopkins, about a month ago, resigned his position, stating he desired a rest. Two weeks ago they summoned Dr. J. R. Petty, a prominent physician. To him they unfolded a story to the effect that they had been addicted to the morphine habit, that his father was a wealthy New York business man and that prearranged by his family the couple was to seek an isolated spot and take treatment with the object of breaking the chains of their bondage.

MAYOR WOULD SECURE MAINE MEMORIAL

Mayor Thompson will send to the council tonight the following communication, outlining a plan for Detroit to obtain relics from the battleship Maine.

"An effort has been made for some time to secure for our city one of the cannon of the ill-fated battleship 'Maine.' However, Congressman Doremus has announced that the cannon have already been assigned, but that the government has preserved other parts of the ship entirely suitable for memorial purposes.

"The active part of our citizen soldiers and sailors took in the Spanish-American war is still fresh in our minds, and many of our patriotic societies would like to see our city acquire a relic acting as a reminder of the direct cause of this war. I think that it would be perfectly appropriate if you honorable body would adopt a resolution requesting Messrs Doremus and Smith to make every effort to obtain such a relic, and assuring them of Detroit's entire willingness to provide a suitable site, either in one of our public parks or squares, or in one of our public buildings."

CHARGES LITIGANT BRIBED WITNESSES

Mrs. Matilda Papke, who recently lost a damage suit in Justice Command's court, brought against Thomas Skupny, a saloonkeeper, asked for a new trial, Tuesday morning, and presented to the court an affidavit in which it is charged that Skupny bribed two of his witnesses. It is claimed that he promised two of his witnesses $10 each to testify in his behalf. Skupny was in court and denied the charge, claiming that he paid them regular witness fees and the amount of money they would have earned had they worked.

The case was postponed until the person making the affidavit can be brought in for examination.

SIX LOAN SHARKS ARE CONVICTED OF USURY; TO BE SENTENCED THIS AFTERNOON

Pair Guilty on Two Counts,
Which Carries Optional Jail
Term of 60 Days

FINES IN OTHER CASES

Defendants Prepare To Carry
Fight To Higher Court—
Victims Tell Tales of Woe

Six loan agents were convicted by Justice Stein, Tuesday morning, on charges of violating the law governing loan agencies by charging an interest greater than seven per cent, and they will be sentenced during the afternoon. Justice Stein planned to mete out punishment to them at the close of the morning session, but Ormond F. Hunt, for the defense, asked for a stay until the afternoon, so that he could make arrangements to furnish bonds pending an appeal. The court told him the bail would be $300, one surety in each case. The maximum sentence for the violation is a fine of $100 for the first offense and the same maximum fine or 60 days in prison for more than one conviction. Two of the defendants, John J. Murphy, of the Fidelity Loan Co., and Gordon W. Quider, of the American Loan Co., were convicted in two cases.

Those convicted are: John J. Murphy, of the Fidelity Loan Co., two counts; Gordon W. Quider, of the American Loan Co., two counts; Joseph A. Noelke, of the State Loan Co.; Ralph Frazier, of the State Loan Co.; William Eubank, of the Reliance Loan Co.; and Herman G. Schlanske, of the Globe Loan Co.

Florence Phipps, of the Union Credit Co., was also tried, but the court, after hearing part of the testimony, put the case over for a week, to hear from another witness.

At the close of each case, Mr. Hunt made a motion for dismissal on the grounds stated before the same court, a few days ago, namely, that the warrants were defective. The court overruled the motion.

The first case taken up was that of Farallo Lyburtus, carpenter, living at No. 519 St. Antoine-st., against John J. Murphy, of the Fidelity Loan Co. He said he borrowed $40, for which he was to pay $62 at the rate of $6.20 a month for 10 months. He signed papers presented by Murphy, but didn't know what they were for.

Cross-examined by Mr. Hunt, he said he made the loan of his own free will; that he could read and write and knew how to figure percentages. He said he went to consult Prosecutor Shepherd on seeing the "loan sharks" in the newspapers, and added that he was grateful to the press for taking up the matter. "Isn't it so," asked Mr. Hunt, "that you simply went to see the prosecutor because he said, in effect, in the newspapers, that he was the good shepherd and would take care of the lambs that were strayed?"

Mr. Lyburtus said that he saw no statement of the kind in the papers. Charles Rothstein, license clerk for the police department, testified that the Detroit Mortgage Loan Co. and the Michigan Mortgage Loan Co.

GRAND RAPIDS FETES DETROIT BOOSTERS

Tour of City and Banquet by Association of Commerce
Feature Visit

From a Staff Correspondent.

GRAND RAPIDS, Mich., March 12.—The Detroit boosters on a tour of five cities arrived here at 7:30.

The Saginaw club tendered a luncheon at their handsome club-house at which President J. A. Climmer, of the board of trade, delivered a cordial address of welcome asserting that Detroit was not only the finest and most prosperous city in the United States, but in the entire world. To this W. H. McBryan and Charles B. Sawyer responded in behalf of the visitors.

A. H. Zenner, chairman of the trade promotion committee of the Detroit Board of Commerce, suggested a Michigan board of commerce, the official head to be located in the board of commerce building in Detroit and to look after matters with the railroads in Washington and Lansing.

An assessment of one dollar a year to every board of trade member in Michigan would be levied which would provide a fund of $25,000 or $30,000 to advertise the advantage of Michigan as an agricultural state.

The suggestion met with great favor and a state organization will no doubt result.

This afternoon the Detroit party was shown the marvelous automatic switch board at the plant of the Citizens' Telephone building. Grand Rapids has enjoyed automatic telephone service for years, and it has proven successful and satisfactory.

MAN WHO LEAVES WIFE AND KIDDIES FOR YOUNG GIRL BLAMES HALLEY'S COMET

St. Louis Slipper Salesman Meets

ARE ARRESTED IN DETROIT

Harry B. Quigley Must Answer
Charge of Abduction Made
By Girl's Father

The stars in their courses, say the wise men, guide our destinies, and Halley's comet, which approaches within a few millions of miles of the earth only once in 75 years, is blamed by Harry B. Quigley, slipper salesman, for his desertion of a wife and two little boy babes, to elope from St. Louis, Mo., with Hazel M. Barrett, 16 years old, very blonde, rather pretty of face and figure, and apparently as heartless as The Woman, as portrayed in a local theater, this week, in a dramatization of Kipling's immortal poem beginning, "A fool there was."

Little Miss Barrett, who lived in the apartment just below the Quigleys and was, according to her own admission and the statement of her lover, a daily visitor in the Quigley home, remarks, in a very bored way, that Mrs. Quigley is "really a fine little woman," and adds that she, Hazel, is quite willing to assume the duties of mothering Mrs. Quigley's two children, on account of her deep love for their father. She has lived with Quigley since Feb. 28, at No. 62 Abbott-st., where the couple were arrested, Monday afternoon.

Quigley, a blond young man with curly hair, 24 years old, and heir to considerable money left to him by his grandfather, says that he contemplates throwing himself from the Eads bridge when he is taken back to St. Louis, where he is charged of abduction, sworn out by Hazel's father, Guy Barrett, of No. 1447 Blair-ave., St. Louis.

The blond Mr. Quigley wears a nonchalant air, and refers to his contemplated dive from the high bridge as "doing the Dutch," an overworked phrase in police parlance, as "doing the Dutch" really consists of attaching a rope to one's neck in the form of a necktie, mounting a soap box, and then kicking the soap box from under one's feet. But when effects are striven for little things make no difference.

"Hold up your head, kid, we're in Michigan now," said the blond Mr. Quigley, as his adored one sauntered into Chief of Detectives Palmer's office. "When we get back to Missouri they will hang us both, side by side."

"I've got my head up, ain't I?" asked the other half of the tragedy, as she passed a melting glance to Harry.

"She nursed me when my wife didn't pay much attention to me," said Quigley. "I was hurt in a street car accident, and this little lady took good care of me."

BENEFIT TO PUBLIC NO EXCUSE, WATSON SAYS

Agreement Made By Bathub
Men Illegal, Government
Attorney Tells Jury

The government opened its arguments in the proceedings against the members of the bathub trust, Tuesday morning, former District Attorney Frank H. Watson making the first address to the jury.

Attorney Watson took up the history of the alleged conspiracy as developed by the testimony previous to the signing of the re-sale agreement. "These men had made up their minds to do this illegal thing, they had agreed to restrain the trade in enameled iron ware throughout the whole country in their first meeting in Chicago, early in March," he said.

"All that was left to do was to arrange the details and fix the actual re-sale prices. This was done by the committee which met in Mt. Clemens, April 14, 1910. Now it makes no difference what the object of these men might have been when they entered into this agreement to restrain trade and fix prices, it makes no difference what benefit the public may have derived as a result of the agreement, if they committed an illegal act they are liable for prosecution."

Attorney Watson concluded at 11:30, and District Attorney Tuttle took up the argument, opening with a description of the changes in the industrial and commercial conditions of the country which led up to the necessity for the enactment of the Sherman law.

SUFFRAGETTES TAKE ALBANY BY STORM

ALBANY, N. Y., March 12.—Suffragettes invaded the state capital today. More than 200 women led by Mrs. Edward Townsend and Mrs. Harriet Blatch entered the capitol building. They were just as determined as our London sisters," said Mrs. Blatch, "but we are hurling arguments rather than bricks." The women will appear tomorrow before the assembly judiciary committee.

TRENTON, N. J., March 12.—Waving yellow flags and walking through slushy streets, more than 100 suffragettes marched to the state capitol building today and crowded into the public hearing room of the senate and house joint judiciary committee. The women hissed foes of the bill which permits them to vote, during the arguments, and in the assembly chamber when two women met—one an anti-suffragist and the other a pro-suffragist, they exchanged words with such heat that a real fight was narrowly averted.

10 INJURED WHEN TRAIN IS WRECKED

OAKWOOD, Wis., March 12.—Passenger train No. 222, on the Chicago, Milwaukee & St. Paul railroad, Milwaukee to Chicago, was wrecked a mile west of Oakwood today, the baggage, mail and two day coaches piling in the ditch. No passengers were killed, according to information here, but at least 10 persons were injured, some perhaps fatally.

The parlor car and dining car remained on the rails. The cause of the wreck is not yet known.

JUDGE ANGELL RESIGNS FROM THE FEDERAL BENCH

Finds Work Irksome and Asks
President To Relieve Him
By June 1

The announcement of the resignation of Judge Alexis C. Angell, of the United States district court, came from Washington, Tuesday. Asked to confirm the report that his resignation had been placed before the president, Judge Angell said:

"I have nothing to say about that matter." While this announcement came as something of a surprise to many friends and associates of Judge Angell, they knew he had been contemplating such a step for some time. One reason assigned for the resignation is the amount of hard work entailed. The work of the court is said to have been burdensome before the government started the prosecution of the bathub trust. When that case came to trial the court found the duties almost unbearable. The judge is said to have worked until midnight almost every night.

Neither the president, Michigan's senators nor the department of justice has any intimation of the judge's resignation until it was received. In his letter of resignation Judge Angell requests that his place be filled by June 1. He expresses gratification at the high honor bestowed on him but says he finds the work too much, referring especially to the number of criminal cases on the docket.

It is reported in Washington that Senator Townsend favors Supreme Court Justice Blair for the position.

GERMAN-AMERICAN BANK ON 8 PER CENT BASIS

The directors of the German-American bank have declared a 2 per cent dividend for the first quarter of 1912, putting the stock on an 8 per cent annual basis. Previously the stock has been paying 5 per cent annually, the quarterly dividends being 1 1/4 per cent.

The German-American bank is one of the oldest financial institutions in Detroit, and has been a very prosperous institution. The capital stock of the bank was raised to $250,000 a few years ago, and the stockholders shared in a melon at that time. It has shown a very satisfactory growth since then and the increase in the dividend is a further distribution of the prosperity to the stockholders.

FALSE-KEY BURGLAR MAKES GUILTY PLEA

Thomas J. Richards, the false-key burglar, pleaded guilty to the charge of robbing the residence of Anna Gorey, No. 730 Campbell-ave., before Judge Stein, Tuesday morning. He was held on $2,000 bail with two sureties to the recorder's court.

Richards claims that he made his confessions to the jobs that he did in Detroit with the understanding that he would not be prosecuted on the local charges but would be sent back to Joliet, Ill., to serve out an unexpired term. He has eight years to serve there. He claims that the police have given him a "raw deal" here.

CITES $25,000,000 LOSS IN PRINTING

WASHINGTON, March 12.—"The net actual loss as the result of the mismanagement of the government printing office is $25,000,000," said Senator Smoot (Rep., Utah, today, in presenting the bill prepared by the printing committee which provides for radical reforms in management. He then discussed at length the general management of the establishment characterizing it as "top heavy." A printer working at his trade, the senator said, is subject to a "superabundance of supervision by eight superiors."

From a Staff Correspondent.
LANSING, Mich., March 12.—"The only way they can change the position of those 12 who will vote against giving the primary plan immediate effect is to use dynamite," said Senator Moriarty to a friend in the capitol building this morning. There were 13 lined up against the plan yesterday and this would indicate that Senator Leidein has, as anticipated, gone over to the other side.

Commenting on Gov. Osborn's message to the legislature last night, Pliny W. Marsh, of the Michigan Anti-Saloon league, said the chances for favorable action were good providing the measures can be gotten out of the committee's hands.

The bill against bonding companies has been referred to the liquor committee of the house and the insurance committee of the senate.

From a Staff Correspondent.
LANSING, Mich., March 12.—There is trouble brewing in the legislature and in this case the word "brewing" is particularly good.

The brewers put one over-right in the center—in the house this morning when a resolution was adopted, 68 to 34, to reconsider another resolution passed at Monday evening's session, fixing Wednesday afternoon at 2, as the time for the taking up of the bill to prohibit brewery-owned saloons as a special order.

The special order program was annulled and the anti-brewery measure referred to the liquor committee. The liquor committee is said to be five to four in opposition to temporary progression along legislative lines, and is composed of Representatives Waters, Perry, Straight, Marz, Currie, Raudabaugh, Pearson and Lord.

However, the result of the vote taken on the reconsideration matter does not indicate the real relative strength of the brewery and anti-brewery forces because there was a general feeling that the workmen's compensation act was of paramount importance and entitled to first consideration. It is probable that many who voted to reconsider, did not stop to consider the consequences of allowing the anti-brewery bill to get into the hands of the liquor committee.

A proposition to fix Friday at noon as the time for closing all new business and Wednesday, March 20, at 12 o'clock, for final adjournment was carried compelling the house to resolve itself into a committee of the whole on a special order for the consideration of the workmen's compensation act in accordance with a previous resolution.

The speaker called Representative Smith, of Lapeer, to the chair and the house proceeded to read and pass or amend section by section of the measure. The committee of the whole may wrangle over this bill all of the afternoon and then some.

Senator Mapes, floor leader for the presidential primary proposition, opinionated about noon that there would be nothing doing in the tabling line today so far as the Ball bill is concerned and Senators Murtha and Miller are apparently firm in the conviction that there will never be anything doing in the line of "immediate effectiveness" so far as the pugnae pacters are concerned. Senator Miller expressed himself as cinch-sure of all the bakers' dozens excepting Senator Leidein, and the Saginaw senator was not in evidence.

Senator James, of Hancock, who is persistently on the job for all things progressive has received the following telegram.
