There will be a palm service at 3 o'clock tomorrow. Mrs. Glenora Lewis will have charge of the program, which promises to be one of the best we have had for some time and is in part as follows: Instrumental, "The Palms," Miss Bertha Lewis; solo, "Gloria," Mrs. J. H. Sherrill; solo, "How Sweet the Name of Jesus Sounds," Mrs. Glenora Lewis and Miss Carrie Monjoy; solo, "The Palms," Mr. A. J. White; solo, selected, Mrs. R. C. Minor.

The choir will give a recital in the chapel at Fort Snelling April 8. The army officers and soldier boys promise a magnificent time.

In this rally there is no "can't." It is a time when we MUST.

One hundred years hence there will be few if any of us to tell the story of these days, but those who will be here will look upon the silver plate which will be placed in the pipe organ and see just who the musicians and singers were in this day. On the unique roll of honor there will be a part set off for the musicians and singers of St. Paul. Prof. W. A. Weir, the well-known pianist, heads the list, followed by about twenty others of the artists. It is said that the names of the chorists who sang the Messiah for the first time with Geo. H. Handel in Dublin, are written on a tablet that hangs in the great music hall to this day.

The choir, the stewards, the deacons, the trustees and stewards will be in separate groups in proper order; then will follow the names of every one who raises $10 or more. There are nearly 300 cards in the hands of the people and fully 200 should be returned with $10 on them at least.

"COUNSEL FOR THE DEFENSE."

The Next Attraction at the Grand Theater.

A new play called "The Counsel for the Defense" and produced Christmas week has been added to the list of various dramatic successes enacted by that distinguished actor, Thomas E. Shea.

Messrs. Cohan and Harris, who are directing the tour of Mr. Shea, have spared no expense in mounting the production and selecting a capable cast to support Mr. Shea in his three great plays: "The Counsel for the Defense," "The Bells," and "Dr. Jekyll and Mr. Hyde."

"The Counsel for the Defense" is from the pen of Henry Irving Dodge, the popular magazine and novel author. It is his first tribute to the stage and it has proven a success from the opening performance. So strongly are the characters drawn that during the course of three acts the auditors are gripped with intense interest from the rise to the fall of the final curtain.

Mr. George M. Cohan personally staged the play and while it was his first dramatic effort, it proved an instantaneous success.

Mr. Shea will be heard in "The Bells" and "Dr. Jekyll and Mr. Hyde" during his engagement here, which commences Monday matinee, April 4.
