I suppose linguess to recognize the existence and old sign of "Call & Tuttle." I suppose sovereignty of the Confederate States. It you remember the story of the wag going down Washington street, Boston, and are de facto, if not de jure a Government. seeing the above sign, he turned in at The control of the Federal Union within once, walked up to the counter and said, "I want to Tuttle." "I have called" already. He was joking. When the time comes for serious action in October, I have not heard of anybody down this way, as yet, who will want "to Tuttle." Every body feels sorry for Gen. Tuttle. Before the war, he was not unfavorably known; indeed, I think I may say even more for "It is seff-evident that an attempt to him: that he was not known at all. Did he ever exhibit any evilence in civil life of possessing ability or attainments that would put it into any body's head to run him for Governor The case seems to rest here, that the Second Iowa made a charge at Donelson, that charge made Tuttle a Brigadier General, and now he wants to take this borrowed capital of reputation, lent him by his Regiment, and put it into the busincess of that bankrupt Copperhead constitution and laws of the United States."

On the Strength of this proclamation of General Harney's, Mr. S. thus charges the blood to raise the wind for such a concern as that, and the agent of their funds of glory has no right to divert them into the constitution and despots at Washington the constitution and laws of "Call and Tuttle."
