MORE OF THE EVENTS CONNECTED WITH SATTLER'S DEPARTURE.

The Vigorous Search for His Body--Specu-lations Relative to His Fall From the and heard what the GLOBE related. This Morning.

Speculation over Sattier's suicide has resolved itself into the question, "Will the body be recovered?" Yesterday the search for the missing man was continued. Work began at an early hour, and was vigorously pushed along until nightfall. Again every effort was unsuccessful. More system was displayed, and a more thorough dragging of the river took place yesterday than on the previous days. The boats hauled and dragged the river from the bridge to the bend at Dayton's bluff. Over and over the same area the boats were propelled and the drags pulled along after them. Each catch gave hopes that the body was found; a vigorous pull on the grapple followed, but the water did not, would not give up its dead. If the workmen showed more interest and systemetic zeal yesterday, so did the spectators on the shore. Quite a crowd lined the banks, and the bridge, too, from which the fatal leap was taken, was filled with groups speculating upon the chances of recovering the body. One group would take a boat and follow its every movement with intense interest. The cold did not deter the crowd from eagerly and persistently watching the search. On the bridge the manner of the deed, was the topic of constant conversation. Each man had his own incontrovertibly explanation how it was done, As many men from so many points was the fatal drop made. Fingers pointed and minds traced on the fast flowing water the exact course which the victim took in his struggles to save himself from the death into which he had rashly thrown himself.

shake his head and with sagacious self assumption would declare: "He never did it." Quote all the positive evidence to him, and a shake of his head would be the answer. THE DISTANCE OF THE FALL.

Could a man fall that distance, ninety feet, and live to cry for assistance?

The one similar instance at this same place, when Gray plunged off, was attended with instant death. After all, the circumstances of a fall must be considered, the same distance would kill one, yet not another. A GLOBE man had a talk yesterday with two or three physicians on the subject. They were of one accord, there was nothing impossi le, or improbable in a person falling the distance of ninety feet into water of sufficient depth and being bimself able to swim out. All would depend feet foremost it would not necessarly be attended with danger; even head first might not result fatally; were the body to turn and strike full force or at an angle, then the companion of the state of Col. of dives from high altitudes, done on a wager; numerous accidents from ship rigging are reported, and the rescue of the sailor without injury is mentioned.

Considerable talk of this kind took place yesterday. Several cases were given where dogs had been thrown from the span, fairly hurled over, yet they swam ashore wholly unhurt. It was related in a party talking about this subject that on one occasion a dog, who had subject that on one occasion a dog, who had 320.00 19 41 31 had his leg broken, was thrown over the 520,00 25 41 31 was he swam ashore, and subsequently whined himself to death over the grave of the master, who had tried to drown him. SATTLER'S DEATH STRUGGLE. Sattler fell feet foremost into the water: he hung by his hands to the flooring of the bridge, and, relaxing his grasp, dropped downwards. Plunging into the cold waters. 640.00 29 127 29 downwards. downwards. Plunging into the cold waters, he arose to the surface, and then, for the first time, realized his great mistake. He cried | 120.00 19 129 29 aloud for help; he repeated the cry; and. when two ngures (Officer Babe and the GLOBE reporter) looked down upon him from the height of the bridge, he again lifted against the encroaching waters. Dressed in heavy clothes, muffled and impeded by an Dressed in overcoat, he fought a good fight against the odds, but succumbed, and gave up the fight with a last dispairing effort just off the St Paul & Sioux City freight house. The two spectators, powerless to aid, who witnessed his first struggle saw the last ripple, which died away into placid calmness above his head, where he went down. Along about 6 o'clock last night the rumor was current on the streets that the body had been recovered. Inquiry at the proper sources failed to confirm it.

ADDITIONAL PARTICULARS.

The GLOBE has made it a duty to thorourghly investigate the suicide, and rob it of all mystery in which it was or may have been enveloped. Each theory of the supposed cause and the proof in detail have been offered in evidence. All presented without comment, leaving any and every one to select and form his own idea why David C. Sattler went to a voluntary death. Reliable sources upon every theory advanced were consulted. What was said, what done, and every shadow of evidence in the case have been succinctly given the read-

KITTY FRANCE'S LETTER.

Such verbal proofs were supplemented by the postal cards sent to his friends. In its d sire to give an exact and full account of all that might be connected with the tragedy, the GLOBE learned of the existence of a letter to Kitty France, the woman of whom deceased was enamored. In the face of a positive denial of its existence by the sisters and the mother, the GLOBE persisted in the effort to obtain the letter. It was traced to the door of the residence of Mrs. France, the hour of the delivery was ascertained, and it was learned that the letter had been placed in the hands of Lottie France and by her taken to her sick and sorrowing sister up stairs. The message from the dead aggravated her grief.

The GLOBE wanted that letter and got it. It was published yesterday. Friends of the dead man deny that any such letter was sent. Mrs. France and daughters recognized it as published, and knew that it was exact, word for word. They will not deny it. Its publication was doubtless a great surprise to them, but of its truth they have no doubt. The description of the letter was equally accurate. Mrs. I rance and daughters, at any rate Kitty, feel that "the cause" of the suicide is partly attributable to her. Their efforts to conceal the letter can readily be understood, even to the extent of a wholesale denial. Now that it is published, and wholly by no assistance from them, they see it is the best policy to acknowledge its receipt, and hastening Sattler's suicide, but the GLOBE gave in its evidence an accurate account of "the scene" which occurred between Kitty and Sattler, Sunday night. The mother's part in the affair was related. Friends of Sattler, for reasons best known to them-If others present at the time having convenient memo:ies, fail to recollect these occurrences, it is attributable to a de sire to shield themselves, coupled with a friendly wish to hide the shortcomings or failings of the dead. "Facts, facts," says Mr. Gadgrind, cannot be denied. In this unfortunate affair, the GLOBE has been a veritable Gadgrind.

THE MESSAGE TO HENRY SATTLER. Supplemental to the whole sad affair, the GLOBE publishes for the first time the last message to Henry T. Sattler, as follows: Brother Henry: Collect of I. Heiman eleven dol'ars, cash loaned. Take care of all the business. Pay dollar for dollar we owe to respect me. I shall have a duel and may get killed, should I, find my body in the Missispipi river.

Your brother, DAVID C. SATTLER.

This completes the story of a suicide re markable in all its accompaniments, and for which no adequate cause can be assigned.

50,000 ACRES.

The First Day of the Auction Sale of Land on the Brainerd Branch.

The sale at public auction of the 50,000 acres of railroad lands advertised by the executive for some days past, commenced yesterday at 12 o'clock, in the governor's office in the capital. Just as the auctioneer was about to offer the first lot, Gen. Sanborn, on behalf of the Minnesota Western Railroad company, rose and read the following pro-

"GENTLEMEN: For and behalf of the West-Railroad company of Minnesota, and as its attorney and agent in its behalf, and by its direction, I give notice that all the lands of fered or to be exposed for sale at this time and place are claimed by the Western Railroad com-pany of Minnesota, as equitably belonging to said corporation, and to be subject to a lien and charge to said corpora ion for their full value for the completion and equipment of said line of road from Watab to Brainerd, and said line of road from Watab to Brainerd, and that the Western Railroad company of Minnesota has brought suit in court to restrain this sale, and to have its title and interest in said lands adjudged and decreed to be free and clear from all liens, and that said suit is undetermined and will be prosecuted to final judgment, and that notices of lispendens have been filed and recorded in the offices of the registers of dead of the respective counties where these of deed of the respective counties where these lands lie, to save to the company any rights that may be adjudged to belong to it in said lands in said action or any action connected

As soon as the gentleman had concluded Gov. Pillsbury ordered the auctioneer to commence the sale. There were not more than a dozen persons present and bidding was slow. Out of the 112 parcels for sal sixty-six were disposed of, either being withdrawn because in actual possession of settlers or sold. The principal bidder was D. B. Capt. J. H. Reaney, in the goodness of his heart, has determined that the people who go down and up the St. Croix in ships shall have better facilities next season than ever before. In pursuance of this determination, he is having a fine new boat built for that trade at the La Crosse yards of the Keokuk-Northern line company. The new boat is to take the place of company. The new boat is to take the place of the Nellie Kent, and will be 141 feet long by 21 feet wide, and draw only some 12 inches, with a carrying capacity of about 125 tons. The new boat will be supplied with the most im-proved muchinery, and finished and furnished in a style that will make her the pride of the St. Croix. At the same time, and at the same place, the Maggie Reaney is being lengthened forty feet, to lighten her up, and when she comes out in the spring she will be little, if any, inferior to her new companion boat.

Yesterday John H. Ramsey was released from the matrimonial boudage imposed upon him and Anna N. Commings, Sept. 18, 1874. The parties were united on the above date at Rochester, in this State. They lived together, as man and wife should, until the 15th day of March, 1875. Just about this time, or two weeks previous, the husband was called away from home on business. Returning at the conclusion of his business to his home, he learned that his wife Anna had been doing a business wholly at variance with her vows to him, made one year before. In her business she had partners, Philip Austin, then John Cleugh. Ramsey hearing of these arrangements withdrew from the company. Augels took our baby darling
Over on the other side,
And I'm waiting, oh, i m waiting,
For the gates to open wide,
For in loueliness I'm dreaming,
Of the brighter home above,
Where all is peace and glory.
Happluess and perfect love. Happluess and perfect love.
Soft and sweet there came an answer,
Your Baby's safe in Jesus' arms;
Never fear for Angel Baby;
She no more will suffer harm!

Who will love my blue-eyed darling, In her brighter home above?
Wil the Angels care for Baby,
Who is worthy of their love?
Yes, I know they'll bear her gently
Through the pearly gate- above,
Angels there will watch our lov'd one,
With a sweet and heav'nly love.

We will meet our baby darling,
Over on the other side;
And though storms do o'er us hover,
Though the clouds may sunlight hide;
If it bring our Saviour nearer If it bring our Saviour nearer,
We will hasten to his side,
So when death shul close our vision,
We'll be there, whate'er betide.
