SAINT PAUL, FRIDAY MORNING, MARCH 18, 1881.

THE OBSERVANCE OF THE BIRTH-DAY OF IRELAND'S PATRON SAINT.

A Call Upon Bishop Grace at His Residence-Bishop Grace's Address, Wherein He Deprecates the Formation of Ladies' Land Leagues-Evening Entertainments at the Opera House and Pfeifer's Hall-The Day Elsewhere.

The seventeenth day of March is a red letter epoch in the struggles and triumphs of Irish history. Dedicated to the memory of St. Patrick, the muse has twined her choicest laurels about the illustrious deeds of Ireland's patron saint. Tradition has ascribed to this worthy the performance of acts which could only spring from motives of the purest heroism, spring from motives of the purest heroism, conjoined to which were powers that were little short of supernatural.

The great mass of mankind are given to hero-worship; human nature in its yearnings for the ideal has got to have something to adore beyond the level of the things that are of the earth earthy, and the Alpha and Omega of which are, after all, only clay.

Ireland has 1,000 saints in her calendar, but in the list of the canonized the memory of none is so fragant and dear to the hearts of the people as St. Patrick.

none is so fragant and dear to the hearts of the people as St. Patrick.

So it has come to pass that the tradition about this strange man has crystalized into a settled belief, and the wonderful feats of St. Patrick are worshiped with a zeal that surpasses every other species of devotion.

Nowhere does the anniversary of St. Patrick meet with a heartier response than in St. Paul Yesterday witnessed a spontaneous and great outflowing of the people.

The day dawned bright and beautiful, in strange contrast to the proverbial uncanny weather of the day. The walking was bad, to be sure, but overhead there shone a bright sun and the clearest of skies.

and the clearest of skies.

At an early hour the streets were filled with people adorned with the unfailing symbol of the shamrock, making their way to the various places of worship.

AT THE CATHEDRAL. The Cathedral was the great Mecca to which all footsteps were turned, and at 10 o'clock the vast auditorium and galleries were filled to repletion. High mass was said, the Rev. B. J. McMul-

High mass was said, the Rev. B. J. McMullen celebrant, Rev. John Shanley deacon, and Rev. Father Reilly sub-deacon.

The sermon was preached by Rev. Father Shanley, who gave a graphic review of the life of St. Patrick. He eloquently pictured the sufferings and triumphs of the saint, and the entertaining sketch was heard with markdelintered. After the sermon the Great Western band filed into the organ loft and discoursed a num-ber of patriotic airs, to the music of which ber of patriotic airs, to the music of which the congregation passed out.

The Irish societies, consisting of the Father Matthew society, commanded by James Dil-lon; the Cathedral guards, commanded by Mr. W. R. O'Keefe, and the Cathedral cadets, commanded by Master M. McCarthy, formed in procession on Sixth street and headed by the band they marched around the block.

Returning they stopped in front of the band they marched around the block.

Returning they stopped in front of the bishop's house, the street and approaches to which were densely packed with people.

Bishop Grace appeared at the door of the pastorate, when Mr. Timothy Reardon stepped to the front and delivered the following address:

T. REARDON'S ADDRESS. T. REARDON'S ADDRESS.

Rt. Rev. Bishop: I have the honor of presenting to you to-day the Irishmen of St. Paul, who from motives of veneration for your sacred office, and of the highest love and respect for you personally, we have assembled to pay you this honor on this festival of St. Patrick's day comes around in its regular order but I am sure that for more than a guarorder, but I am sure that for more than a quarter of a century there has been no celebration of it like the present, when the hearts of the sons and daughters of Ireland have been filled with prayers so earnest, and with hope so sanguine for the dear old land, dearer for the darkness of her woe and for the manly for the darkness of her woe and for the manly spirit of her people at home in battling for her rights. Ireland is to-day the center upon which the world's eyes are turned and to the struggle for her liberation from a cruel and barbarious foreign yokes the world has given its heartfelt godspeed. Given it with no mean grudging spirit, and if the Irish people keep and maintain the stand which in the land leagues they have taken, they will prove themselves worthy the sympathy extended to them, and in the end free themselves from the them, and in the end free themselves from the odious misrule of Great Britain. The cause of the land league is just; 'tis holy; religion has blessed its banners, and patriotism has sanctified them. It has united the people of Ireland as never before. Catholics and Protestants and even that most violent of anti-Catholic bodies, the Orange men, have banded together in this endeavorite win for him who tills the soil the right which God gave him and which English law denies him.--the right at least to live out of the fruits of the soil. God made the earth for all men;
British law dedicates the soil of Ireland forever to the landlords, only this the land league proposes to change, and all Irishmen, all Christian men, all human men, all just men will extend to it their earnest co-operation.
In conclusion, I wish to refer more especially to the total abstainence men here assembled. They have shown, Right Reverend Su, that they

They have shown, Right Reverend Sir, that they can conquer themselves; and, under God, that is the first step towards conquering their enemies. Irishmen have taken that step, and the rest will follow in God's good time. Asking your blessing, Right Reverend Bishop, and wishing you yet many years of health and happiness to govern and lead your people.

Master M. McCarthy, commander of the cadets, then made a very neat speech, which did dets, then made a very neat speech, which did himself a great deal of credit.

BISHOP GRACE. Following this Bishop Grace stepped forward and made the following address of wel-

It is very gratifying to me, my friends, to meet you again on the return of Patrick's Day. There are many reasons for congratulation since you assembled on this anniversary last year. The condition of Ireland at that time was sad indeed, but the threatened famine was tasted by the governsity of sympathizing. stayed by the generosity of sympathizing friends the world over. But more than this, the world's gaze for the first time fixed firmly and steadily on the wrongs which were done to Ireland, and which were the immediate cause of the calamities that had effected its record for senturies. The verdict mediate cause of the calamities that had afflicted its people for centuries. The verdict of the civilized world was pronounced, and the oppressing government was for the first time brought face to face with the injustices and iniquities of its policy toward Ireland. The results of this point resired exports the over-cetimated. But it was ward Ireland. The results of this point gained cannot be over-estimated. But it was not accomplished without the action of the Irish people themselves, and they have borne themselves nobly in the attitude of resistance they have taken to the injustice of the legislation by which their country has been governed. they have taken to the injustice of the legisla-tion by which their country has been governed. All parties, all factions, all creeds, clergy and people, have been as one, united in the determi-nation that these crying wrongs to Ireland shall cease. And they have proceeded in accordance with the strict principles of right, of justice and of law. For this have they gained the vantage ground they now hold, and if they continue to adhere to these principles their success in the attainment of their object must precessify follow.

I have said if they continue adhere to these principles, for if unfortunately they should forsake the principles of right, justice and law, and place themselves in the wrong before the world, they cannot longer expect sympathy of the world, nor expect success. But I have every hope that this will not be the case; I have all confidence in the wisdom, prudence and statesman like qualities of the leaders in this movement. This confidence, whatever has occurred, has not been shaken. Among ourselves, who are co-operating with those in Ireland, I feel sure there are none who would leind their sanction to anything that would be in violation of those principles.

There is one thing, however, here in St. Paul, of which I beg you will allow me to withhold my approval. It is the forming of ladies' leagues. There is something about the calling out of mothers and daughters from their homes at night to form leagues and hold meetings that does not seem right. The movement I know did not originate with the women themselves. It is in opposition to all their womanly instincts. It is an infringment upon sacredness of home life. It gives a rude shock to those domestic virtues which we should ever be careful to cherish. If you desire the co-operation of woman in this movement, leave her to co-operate in her own way. You need not to be assured of her sympathies with her suffering country and suffering sisters at home. These sympathies are as strong as yours—more deeply felt according to her more impressible nature. Leave her to express those feelings by word and act in ways of her own, which she knows full well, and constrain her not to adopt the rough, unfamiliar ways of men, by holding public meetings for discussions.

I thank you, my friends, for the honor you

I thank you, my friends, for the honor you have done me, and for your kind attention.
Calls were then made for Rev. Father Shanley, who came forward and made a brief address, in his usual eloquent and felicitous style. After this the band played and the crowddispersed

The Opera House Entertainment.

The Opera House was crowded to its utmost capacity in the evening by an audience of both old and young, to enjoy the entertainment given in honor of the day. All were in a merry mood and willing to be pleased, while those whose duty it was to entertain were de. those whose duty it was to entertain were determined to do all in their power to satisfy. Father Shanley opened the exercises with a brief and eloquent address appropriate to the occasion. This was followed by musical selections by the orchestra, Mr. Buckelew, Miss Mamie King and a quartette consisting of Messrs. Draper, Lofski, Manner and Buckelew. Miss King, who has a sweet, well-trained voice and much self-possession for one so young, received a hearty encore. The farce "Turn Him Out," was excellently acted, the young ladies especially, Miss Rose O'Hara and Miss Annie M. Kelly acquitting themselves with grace, and displaying excellent dramatic ability. More enjoyable musical selections followed, Miss Grace Haggerty and the gentlemen named contributing greatly to the entertainment of the audience. Miss Haggerty's cultivated voice and graceful manner captivated all present, and she received a deserved encore. The evening's entertainment closed with the rendition of the roaring farce, "That Rascal Pat," Messrs. O'Brien, Forbes and Fogarty, and Misses King and O'Hara sustaining the characters excellently. The ladies were vivacious and charming, and well up in their roles.

As a whole the entertainment was far superior to the average of amateur performances. termined to do all in their power to satisfy.

their roles.

As a whole the entertainment was far superior to the average of amateur performances, and gave unalloyed pleasure to the thousand or more who were present. The young gentlemen and ladies who contributed so ably to its success deserae the highest commendation, and received it at the hands of those who enjoyed so pleasant an evening.

The Pfeifer's Hall Entertainment.

The entertainment at Pfeifer's hall under the auspices of St. Joseph's parish, was of a varied and very pleasing character. To begin with, a bounteous supper was served by the ladies of the parish, lasting from 7 until 9 o'clock, and it is estimated that fully 500 people partook of the spread. The supper was in charge of Mrs. Rumohr, Mrs. James Dowlan, Mrs. Conlan and Miss Ella Sherbrook. The entertainment proper commenced about 9 o'clock. The programme consisted of songs, character acting, addresses and a very laughable farce.

The Rev. Father Neilis delivered a short but very pleasing address, and remarks were also made by Hon. J. J. Egan and City Attorney Murray. The former delivered a culogy on St. Patrick, the day we celebrate, and the lessons to be drawn from the life of the soint. sons to be drawn from the life of the saint. Mr. Murray's speech was characteristically funny and the audience were kept in a roar.

PROGRAMME. The programme was as follows, and the different parts were executed in a manner as to reflect credit on the performers:

The Day Abroad.

Chicago, March 17 .- Yellow and green ribbons in the buttonholes indicates that to-day is an Irish holiday, but beyond this token and the celebration in St. Patrick's church of high mass by Archbishop Fehan, there is no evi-dence that the usually lively and hilarious St. Patrick's day has arrived. The societies are larred from parading by the abominable con-dition of the streets and also by their inclination to use the money, which would be so expended, in ameliorating the sufferings and strengthening the hands of their fellow country men across the Atlantic in obtaining what they consider their rights as against the oppression of the landlords. Our Irish citizens have sent considerable sums of money and it is understood governs ready to go forward row.

LONDON, March 17 .- At midnight a police man on duty at the Mansion House observed a fire on the ground near the rear wall of the Lord Mayor's official residence, and found a wooden box with a fuse connected with some Lord Mayor's official residence, and found a wooden box with a fuse connected with some lighted paper. The officer extinguished the fire and took the box to the police station, where it was found to contain about forty pounds of gunpowder with a fuse in the midst of it. There has been no arrests nor any clue to the perpetrators. The Lord Mayor says an explosion would probably not have injured the Mansion House but would have damaged Egyptian hall and adjacent private houses, and entailed serious loss of life. He himself, he said, was not at home at the time. One account says an Irish newspaper was found amongst the packings of the powder.

Great precautions are taken for the safety of the houses of parliament since the Idiscovery of the plot to blow up the mansion house. The police in and around the building have been reinforced and the cellars examined.

There was a disturbance among the Irish soldiers in camp at Aldershot St. Patrick's day. Many arrests were made.

The Standard says two American newspapers were found with the powder box discovered near the mansion house. The corporation of London offered £100 reward for discovery of the perpetrators of the crime. An additional police force has been stationed at the Mansion house, Bank of England, and other important buildings.

Who Will Inaugurate a First Class Hotel

While every other pleasure resort within easy access of St. Paul is being rapidly developed and drawing an increasing number of patrons, both among our citizens and tourists from abroad, our beautiful White Bear lake, now brought within a brief half hour's ride of the city, is falling to the rear for the want of sufficient hotel accommodations. Since want of sufficient hotel accommodations. Since the old South Shore house was burned there are only three moderate sized hotels, besides a boarding house or two, wholly insufficient to afford shelter and meals to the throng of people who seek the lake during the summer months. As a natural result people flock to lakes twice or three times the distance from St. Paul, and a large proposition of the tour-ists and pleasure seekers who seek our State during the summer months, follow their ex-ample.

white Bear is no longer the wilderness lake of a few years ago. By the growth of St. Paul, and the increase of railroad facilities, it has become a suburb of our city. Not only the residents of the little village, but every property owner and business man of St. Paul, will henefit by the presenting of our own home reenefit by the prosperity of our own home rebenefit by the prosperity of our own home resort.

More than one project for building a large hotel at the lake, has been discussed, and abandoned. Every winter, of late, something of the kind has been on foot, and every summer following brings the general comments, upon everyone's lips, on the insufficiency of the existing houses. Cannot something be done this season? There is but little time to spare; all agree that a first-class hotel would be well patronized, and there is no doubt that property owners at the lake, as well as the railroad company, would derive great benefit. Why cannot some of our business men move in this matter? Who will take the lead?

Last mislingh the men were captured near Seven Corners by Detective O'Connor and Officer Baer. The watch was recovered from the soldier, who gave the name of Wm. Spellman. Gen. Grant Resigns.

New York, March 17.—The Commercial says: It is stated by persons very close in the confidence of Gen. Grant that in consequence of his Mexican engagements he will have nothing more to do with the world's fair of 1888. It is not positively known whether he has sent in his resignation, but as he leaves Monday next for Mexico it is more than probable he will present a formal document to the commissioners before leaving. It is understood Grant wishes the enterprise every success, but for reasons best krown to himself does not feel inclined to be connected personally with it.

the respective governments to which they are ac credited, the sense of this government that injustice is shown toward the citizens and food products of this country by the attitude which is being assumed in Europe on this question. Positive instructions have been sent Lowell at London to meet Crump s statements and expose their erromeousness. Noyes, at Parls, has been telegraphed in the following terms directing him to lay the facts before the French government:

WASKINGTON, March 16.—To Noyes, minister, Paris Your course respecting the pork decree of the French government, approved. The statements of Crump, acting British consul at Philadelphis, occasioned excitement and wide-spread comment here, leading to corcorrespondence with the British legation and boards of trade. Hog cholers is confoundedwith trichinasis, which is entirely a distinct disease but the representations regarding hog cholers are very greatly exaggerated. The most searching investigation falls to show the basis for the published statements. Mortality among very young swine from cholers has been less this year than for several years past and the condition of full grown hogs, which are alone used for packing and export, is this year exceptionally good. British representatives at Philadelphis have apparently been mialed by designing speculators to the great injury of legitimate trade. Deny in the strongest terms the report of the British consul, should French ministers appeal to it as justifying them in interdicting or restricting the American pork trade. Instructions follow.
