THE New York stalwarts offered to hold a caucus immediately on the beginning of the canvass for the Senatorship, and pledged themselves to abide by its decision. PLATT had the good sense to withdraw from the Senatorial canvass the moment his name was associated with a scandal although that scandal did not affect his official integrity. Depew waited for over a month after his name had been tainted with the charge of bribery. Platt pursued much the more honorable course of the two.

It is to be regretted that even if captured the desperadoes cannot receive their deserts under the laws of Wisconsin. The only hope is that their captors will take the law into their own hands and execute summary justice, without waiting for the courts to interpose.

THE Republican organs are just now exercising their capacity for ingratitude in abusing the vast army of lunatics that infest the country, an element that is successfully utilized by the dominent party in creating their majorities. If it were not for the lunatics the money contributed by government thieves to contributed by government thieves to elect Republican candidates would avail nothing. The lunatics, however, can bide their time, as the fall elections are near at hand, when their party managers will again greet them at the polls with smiles and promises of office.

LET IT BE NATIONAL.

The GLOBE reproduces with its cordial approval an article relative to the Mrs. Garfield fund, which appeared a few days since in the N. Y. World. The proposition therein is to make the fund proposed to be raised a national one, instead of the gift of the New York chamber of

One paper even goes goes so far as to claim that the raising of this fund as it now stands is in the nature of a bribe in case the President survives, and proposes that all action be postponed until the question of life and death is determined, and if the latter, make a popular fund of a million dollars for the afflicted family. Mr. Vanderbilt is thus far the only one of the subscribers who has manifested this tenderness, and his donation of $5,000 to the fund is conditional and to be withdrawu if the President sur-

The reception of gifts by the President of the United States, either directly or indirectly, is undoubtedly objectionable, and this public sentiment was fully ventilated in the case of Gen. Grant. The presentation of a purse to Mrs. Garfield by a few wealthy gentlemen of New York will be objectionable to the President, if he survives, and the fund should be secured without making any such embarrassment. The inception of the movement was to manifest practical sympathy with the stricken family, and give voice to the abhorrence of the crime has been committed, not only against them but against the country. This sympathy and abhorrence combined pervades the entire country and it is eminently proper that it should have expression in a popular, national contribution to the fund in question. This makes a provision for the family without attaching any objectionable features and enables the country to practically manifest its sympathy.

The suggestion of the World that subscriptions be opened by the newspapers can be improved upon by the selection of committees to receive the offerings of the people, and that Minnesota may join in making this a popular and practical movement the Globe takes the liberty of requesting General R. W. Johnson, Robert A. Smith, Esq., and Gen. John T. Averill to act as a comcan be improved upon by the selection of

By placing the amount as Gathered by the Special Reporters of the low as one dollar it gives opportunity for all to contribute, and those may desire to make it a who larger sum will be accorded # the privilege. This committee can forward Minnesota contributions to what is properly termed the parent fund of the New York chamber of commerce, and the money will thus be safely invested for the purpose desired. It is to be hoped these gentlemen will accept the trust, and that Minnesota will join in this practical manner in manifesting her sympathy and her utter repudiation of the great crime committed. The property of the ground, when another fifteen minutes was consumed in arranging the details. When it is understood the diamond was improvised for the occasion, small stones forming the bases, that the ground was rough and covered with grass and weeds, and that both nines were out of practice, the Silver Stars not having played half a dozen games this season, and the minstrels not having been out for more than two weeks, anything more than a muffing game could not reasonably be expected. And such it was in the mann, though every now and then there was a spurt, a flash, a scintillation of good play—enough to keep a thorough base ball enthusiast instructed in the progress of the play. The two nines were as follows:

The second inning was a repetition of the first except Haverly, dropped two easy flies. In the next three innings, neither nine succeeded in scoring, though had they minded captain Mack, the minstrels might have secured at least one if not two runs in the fifth inning. Up to this time the batting had been very light, but the work now began to tell on the pitchers and hits from this out were more frequent. In the sixth inning a clean hit and a bad throw gave the minstrels their first run, the Silver Stars following with two, on one hit and errors. In the seventh inning the minstrels scored two runs and the Stars three. This ended the run getting for the Stars, both nines being whitewashed in the eighth, while in the ninth and last the minstrels added two runs to their score. BOATING.

Arranging for the Practice of the St. Paul

Yesterday Col. Leip commenced to build a boat house in front of his famous hotel at White Bear for the use of the crew who go to Washington in September next, as already described in the GLOBE. It will be 10x50 feet in size, and will amply accommodate the crew, its boat and accompanyments. Capt. Butler feels under the greatest obligations to Col. Leip in this matter, but as everyone, including the officers of the Duluth road, have been so extremely kind and generous in this matter, it is hard to tell who most to thank.

The crew will commence going to the lake on Thursday, and will thenceforth row on one of the two surveyed courses in front of the Hotel Leip. One runs, along the south shore to a point beyond the island, while the other was under the north shore to a point far beyond the Williams house. One of these courses will un-house. One of these courses will undoubtedly be fairly smooth each night, and probably before the boys leaves for Washington, they will be in fine shape to row in either smooth or rough water.

The boat which has been ordered made by Waters & Sons, of Troy, New York, will be 19 inch neam by 40 feet bow. It will be braced and rigged the same as the famous Peoria boat, and will be delivered in Washington. August 15th at livered in Washington, August 15th, at a cost of $400. M. F. Davis, of Portland, Maine, who makes to-day the finest oars and oar-locks in the world, will provide those articles for the boat, and it is pretty sure to be as dainty and as perfect a craft as will be floated upon the fair Potomac waters on September 9th, 1881.

Bricklayers' Union. To the Editor of the Globe.

The members of the Bricklayers' union of St. Paul, met at Arion ball Monday evening, it being the first quarterly meeting of the union much business had to be transacted. The question of the Warner and scah job business was acted upon during the session. It was quickly decided, unanimously, by the members that no union men should work on Warner scab job for the remainder of the year 1881, as he, (Warner), has violated his agreement with the committee, appointed by the union, to adjust matters during the strike in June, and moreover that his work shall be known to all union men, here and elsewhere, as the scab's and bungler's shop.

District court commenced yesterday with Judge Crosby on the bench. The case of Dick Willett for the murder of Matt Leonard came up, W. W. Erwin and J. N. Castle appearing for the defense, and County Attorney Marsh for the State, assisted by Judge P. B. Smith. The jury was impanelled as follows: P. L. Goodman, Geo. Holt, Asier Clottier, George Van Alstine. James De Wolf, T. D. Fisher, William Davis, Samuel Orr, A. Wilkinson, An-drew Swenson John Buston and drew Robert Maloy. The case was opened by County Attorney Marsh, and Mr. Stolz called for the prosecution. Louis Stolz was called and testified to the facts of the Louis Stolz murder. Hence, this is to inquire of you if you wrote said paragraph for the Dailly Globe yesterday, as it appears in to-day's paper? I understood you were the correspondent for Stillwater department of the St. Paul Dailly Globe. ## NORTHFIELD.

NORTHFIELD, July 11.—Mr. H. Smith returned from Minneapolis Saturday, after four months' absence.

Cap. Ed. Dampier, formerly of the Archer house, returned from Fergus Falls last night.

Quite a severe rain and wind storn prevailed last night, lodging small grain in some low places on new ground, but we do not apprehend any ultimate damage from that.

Last night about eleven o'clock, two railroad men came tearing across, the bridge, one informed chief of police Baman that some one had shot at them near the depot. Baman prepared and hurried to the described place, where two well known boys had secreted themselves behind some old bui!dings, and as these men passed snapped some torpe-does under their feet, and scared them half to death.

Some weeks ago I prepared a correct report of the condition of the wheat in this portion of the State, and sent it to the Globe, for its many readers, but it has, for some reason, never appeared through its columns. As I stated in that article, that the the chinch bug had found its way to this part, not in such numerous quantities, but numerous to enough supply this part of the country with eggs and bugs enough to destroy the whole crop to a certain extent. This fact has kept secret by our local press for what reason, there is no telling. But it se positively true that these eggs have, and are hatching out by the millions, and for the good of the farmers we advise them to examine, when they will find this to be the state of affairs.

The New Mastodons.

Haverly's new Mastodon minstrels closed their engagement last evening before a full house. The performance in its entirety was unexceptionally good. The vocalization was unusually good, and won the heartiest apunitually good, and won the neartiest ap-plause. The second part was strong in nearly all of its features, Gilfoil and Hall carrying off the principal honors, though they were, on the whole, very evenly divided. The company plays this evening at Stillwater, where, we understand, the sale of seats has been extremempany is entitled to great credit, no only for the excellence of its performances, but for the uniform gentlemanly deportment of the members. They have comported them-selves in a thoroughly gentlemanly manner at their hotels and on the streets, and will always be welcomed back to St. Paul.

THE MRS. GARFIELD FUND A Sensible Proposition to Make it a Nation

[New York World, July 9.]

Nothing could have been more prompt and more creditable than the action taken by the chamber of commerce on Friday, at the special meeting called to take action upon the murderous assault upon the President of the United States. It is always a pity when a generous and sympathetic impulse, like that which has thrilled the people of this country for the past week, is allowed to evaporate and pass away in feelings or in words, and to "lose the name of action." In this case it would be peculiarly a pity. It has become a serious question of late what provision the country should make for its surviving Chief Magistrates in justice to their services and to its own dignity, and meth ods have been suggested which may have been the best of which the cases admitted, but which were perhaps hardly suitable to the dig-nity of a great nation providing for the most eminent of its public servants. This question, thanks to the prompt generosity of the members of the chamber of com merce, may solve itself in the case of President Garfield. At the same time it is scarcely just, and no doubt the mem-bers of the chamber of commerce would admit it to be scarcely just, that the sense which the whole nation entertains of the insult and injury done to the whole nation in the assault upon its chief magistrate should be practically expressed only by what may be described as a syndicate of rich men in the metropolis of the country. The calamity is national; let the acknowledgment of it be national also. There is scarcely an American citizen, whatever his occupation, however rich he may be or however poor, who has not during the past week wished that some way were opened to him by which he might filly express his indignation at Guiteau's crime and his sympathy with the immediate victim of that crime and with his stricken family. A way has now been suggested by the chamber of commerce, the members of which, we fee sure, would be the last men to wish that any American citizen should feel himself excluded from joining their excellent and praiseworthy work, either from want of opportunity or, what is practically as much of an obstruction, by reason of his inability to approach the large amounts of the individual subscriptions already set down. It is, perhaps, most seemly that such a proposition should proceed from the political opponents of President Garfield. The World, therefore, proposes a national subscription, in the sum of $5 and upwards, for the purposes and under the conditions set forth in the subscription list drawn up by Mr. Field and circu lated among the members of the chamber of commerce on Thursday—that is to say "Towards a fund to be deposited with the United States Trust company, in trust, to be kept invested in United States government bonds, the income thereof to be paid to Mrs. Garfield, the wife of the President, during her life, and at her death the principal to be divi-ded among the surviving children of James

No doubt our city contemoraries will undertake the same office But, as we have said, the subscription ought not to be limited to New Yorkers nor to the readers of New York newspapers. In every city and village in the country a similar subscription would be as eagerly made as in New York, and in every city and village of the country which has a daily newspaper, that newspaper will be willing to act as the local depository of the money subscribed. Of course there can be no doubt that the subcourse there can be no doubt that the subscription already begun by the chamber of commerce will be completed to the limit named by that body. But the subscription is not merely a means of raising the money. It is also and quite as much a means of giving to every American who wishes it the privilege of contributing towards a fund which shall be a practical evidence of the loyalty of the country to its government and of the sympathy of the country with its chief executive officer, in whose person the naexecutive officer, in whose person the na-tion itself has been assailed, and with his family. St. Paul, Wednesday, July 13.

There is little to be said of the wholesale trade of the city, as to general merchandise, other than it is fair to good for the season of the year, with collections good and all indications from the country favorable to anticipations of a large fall trade. Retail merchants appear to be generally prospering and will, as soon as crop prospects are assured, become liberal buyers. In some lines, while

FAST FINISHED.

Griscom Completes his Allotted Forty-Five Days of Starving at 12 Noon Yes-terday—His Object in Trying the Experiment-His First Meal and How He Managed It.

CHICAGO, July 12.-Griscom's long fast concluded at noon. In the forty-five days he has lost just fifty pounds in weight, to-day weighing 147% pounds, temperature 98, and pulse 55. About two hundred people were present to see him eat his first meal. The table was spread with the bill of fare already mentioned in these dispatches. Griscom stated to the audience he had procured everything his fancy suggested, not because he expected to eat all, but to satisfy his imagination, and have just what he might want. He thought he could eat a full meal without injury, but did not intend to do so. He believed that there was great virtue in fasting, and that he was willing to fast longer than necessary in order to show that it was a good medical agent. It had once cured him when physicians said he must die. He did not believe in indiscriminate or unnecessarily prolonged abstemiousness, but in moderate and well considered fasting. At the conclusion of his speech he took a goblet of milk, and with the same deliberation that had marked his motions all the morning, while superintending the preparation of his breakfast. He drank slowly of its contents, which seemed to tempt him as little as any of his observers. Then he cantiously dissected some milk toast, after to the audience he had procured everything as little as any of his observers. Then he cautiously dissected some milk toast, after which, pressing his head, he complained of a slight headache. This passed away and he resumed practice at the table drinking coffee, and little by little, a nibble at the contents of most of the dishes. Although hungry and possessed of a good appetite he does not seem avenous. The crowd lingered an hour or more and left the wonder to himself.

The Evening Post says: Although the news from Washington respecting the President's condition was encouraging, yet the market was steadily weak and the lowest prices for money of the week. This was because of reports of still more active hostilities between the trunk line roads and even lower rates for through freight and passenger traffic. A large majority on the Stock Exchange are bearish inclined and it is known that one or two speculative capitalists who are connected with the management of the trunk lines are also bearish.
