Minneapolis was the scene of one of those appalling and heart sickening child murders yesterday morning. Two small boys, who had for several months,

HAD FREQUENT QUARRELS, and at times fights, came in contact at about 9 o'clock yesterday morning at the corner of Third street and Fifteenth avenue sontheast. Albert Weller Terwilliger, a boy aged ten years, and Swen Torfsten, aged eleven, were the parties. Swen proposed to Albert to fight, and in a moment they were at it. The younger boy, and somewhat the smaller, by some means got the better of his antagonist, who drew a pocket knife and

The officers finally found a small boy who said he had been told that Swen Torfsten had been fighting with the dead boy, and went with the officers to a house diagonally opposite that of the parents of the deceased, and

POINTED OUT THE GUILTY BOY.

The officers took him to the coroner who asked him if he struck the boy with a knife. He said he did not, although he frankly acknowledged the fight. He said he had left his knife the fight. He said he had left his knife at home. But upon closer questioning said he had his knife in his pocket and it Mary Dreis, (except w'ly

Take It Away. Judge Lochren filed his decision yesterday afternoon, in the case of the Minneapolis Mill company against J. B. Bassett. The action was commenced in November last, and was on account of an amount of earth, stones and debris removed from the excavation for the new Bassett mill, which was deposited in the river. The mill company claimed that the heap of refuse was a damage to the mill pond, and asked that it be removed. The judge decided in their favor and gives Mr. Bassett until the 1st to complete the
