HAMLINE UNIVERSITY,

The Meeting of the Building Committee as Bishop Foss' Residence Yesterday.

A meeting of the building committee of Hamline university, composed of Bishop Foss, J. F. Chaffee, Robt. Forbes, E. F. Markle, M. G. Norton, B. F. Nelson and C. D. Strong, was held at the residence of Bishop Foss yesterday forenoon, for the purpose of considering the plans for the new building. Upon motion B. F. Nelson, J. F. Chaffee and Robt. Forbes, were appointed as a sub-committee on building, for the purpose of holding frequent meetings for action as the work may require and to take charge of all details.

After an informal discussion it was decided to build upon the old foundation. The new college will be one story less in height, but otherwise the dimensions will be the same.

It was voted to advertise or solicit bids for the tearing down of the old walls and the removal of walls the debris at once, preparatory to beginning work upon the new structure. work will be pushed with all speed, and the building will be ready for opening at the usual time for commencing the fall

The building will cost about $50,000, it is estimated by the committee. Mr. Hayes, the architect, makes the folowing statement respecting the building: The style is of the Italian Gothic, with a central tower in front in which will be placed a beli and four-dial clock. The inerior arrangement is a decided improvement over that of the old building. chapel will occupy the rear of the two upper stories, and will have a horse shoe shaped gallery which, with the main auditorium, will seat 450. The basement will be occupied by the physical and chemical laboratories, apparatus, janitor's quarters, recitation rooms and faculty and student bath rooms. On the main floor will be the president's office and parlor, general reception room, three large recitation rooms and ladies' dressing room. The second floor will contain the university library and reading room, museum or cabinet, two large recitation rooms, chapel, two suites of rooms for faculty and the financial agent's office, suites of rooms for members of the faculty, students' rooms and the gallery floor of the chapel will occupy the third floor.

THE THOMPSON CASE.

The Case of the State Against W, F. Thomp son Commenced Yesterday.

The case against W. F. Thompson, charged with embezzlement from Farnham & Lovejoy, was called up in the district court yesterday morning and continued until 2 o'clock at which hour the trial commenced. A jury consisting of the following men was sworn in: A. D. Converse, John Pendergast, Wetmore O'Brien, Wm. Oxborough, W. M. Huges, John Murphy, J. D. Hauk, W. D. Hannigan, Chas. Maddox, Henry Wacks, John Geiber, Orrin Parkhurst.

The jury was empaneled and at three o'clock Mr. Wooley opened the case for the state with an addess to the jury.

Mr. Lovejoy was the first witness for the prosecution and his testimony was about the same as given in the preliminary examination in the municipal court. The case will probably occupy several

THE VIOLIN'S VOICE. The Pathetic Story of a Musician and Dying Child.

[Belgravia.] The dark angel of death was standing outside the musician's door, for little Anita, no tears, no prayers could avail, not even Carissima's lovely voice. Carissima's voice was hushed now; the maestro had no heart to take up his dearly loved violin and play to sooth his sorrow, as he had done many years ago, when his wife died and left this little one behind.

Heaven had given him the divine gift of genius and had bidden him call aloud to this season in oceans, in rolls and prints, the world. So Carrissima and he had played together through sickness and sorrow and success, and through all the changing scenes of life they had been faithful crowded hall; the people said that never before had the maestro played so beautifully, and that never before had the violin's voice sounded so mournful and pathetic.

Well, you see they did not know the reaon, but we do, for both were thinking of the little dying girl, and how could their thoughts be anything but sorrowful, or the outward expression of those thoughts be anything but mournful?

The father was weeping by his child's bedside. But she said: "Do not weep, sing to me-sing me to sleep, for I am so weary, dear father, and the evening has been so long without thee." Then he rose and played to her, and she closed her eyes and listened happily to Carissima's voice. It sang a song without words-the music alone told the tale-of a pure young life, too pure for earth, and therefore to be taken away to that fair land where only the good and pure and true dwell. Yet it was hard to leave the earth, harder still to leave the dear ones behind, and to know that they would be desolate; and here the violin's voice sobbed and trembled as if from sorrow, and the melody became sadder and softer, as if describin the very parting which was soon to take place; then the lingering notes died away and the maestro's hand was still. "Is that all?" murmured the child; "Oh, play again." e more he raised his bow on high and the air resounded with a psalm of triumph—the same melody, but no longer soft or sad, for the gates of that fair land were opened wide, and amidst the jubilant strain the child had passed away with the angellof death.

> Sensation of Falling. [Cor. London Field.]

A few months ago I was engaged in some investigations concerning the modes of training employed by professional aerobats and gymnasts in educating children to take part in their performances, with a view to elucidating a certain point of considerable medical interest (in no way connected with the present question), and I learned incidentally that, since the precaution of a net has been insisted upon for the prevention of accidents in lofty tumbling, many gymnasts now make a "terrible descent" or "ærial dive" a special feature of their entertainment Drops of sixty, eighty, or one hundred feet sheer, or even more, are not uncommon, A member of the Hanlon-Volta troupe has dived from a height of no less than 120 feet above the net, where circumstances have permitted of it, and declares that not only is he free from all inconvenience in the descent, which is made headforemost, but that he would be willing to fall from a much greater elevation, due extension of the capacity, elasticity, etc., of the net being provided. The extraordinary "spill" made by one of the Hanlon-Lees, formerly belonging to the above troupe, in the third act of "Le Voyage en Suisse," will be remembered by most of your readers, though it is remarkable further for the arrest than the duration of motion. On being assured by the proprietor of some newly-invented mechanism, applied to a novel feat of ærial gymnastics which he had taken up to the roof of a building to inspect, that there was no danger, I made experiment of a descent of about fifty feet. Sixty feet was the Ducks..... extent of the fall claimed by the gymnast imself, but I imagined that th include the elevation of the highest point from a freight car, was arraigned and of the arc obtained by the oscillation of withdrew his former plea of not guilty, and his trapeze, as well as the depression caused by his weight upon the net, and therefore calculates it to have been about ten or twelve feet less from the situation of my body as I hung at arms length from the motionless bar with my legs drawn up in a sitting posture, to the point where I impinged flat on my back upon the cushons. I was conscious of no physical em barrassment while coming down, though I must confess that my mind was too much occupied with the possibilities contingent on arrival to admit of any accurate analysis of my respiratory sensation in transit. The idea that the act of falling "stops the breath" so that the person who falls is dead cefore he reaches the ground, is a very common one, and it would be interesting Frank Munger, convicted of burglarly, to know the testimony, if any exists, on was sentenced to three years in prison, and which it is based. Of course, asphyxiation means more than an impediment to breathing, and a man falling from a great height might attain a speed exceeding one hundred miles per hour; but I am not acquainted with the records of any post morem examinations which bear out the as phyxia theory. No matter what other lesions are found, the indications of this are
