

QUALITY OF MERCY IS NOT STRAINED

IT DROPPETH AS THE GENTLE DEW FROM HEAVEN UPON THE HEAD OF WAYWARD DORA SHAW.

AN ERRING WOMAN WHOSE PAST MAY BE WIPED OUT

One Who Endeavors on This Earth to Imitate the Actions of Her Master in Heaven Seven Days in the Week Will Try to See That Dora Leads the Life God Meant Woman to Lead.

In the "Merchant of Venice" Portia says in her plea to Shylock to release Antonio from his bond of the pound of flesh, "The quality of mercy is not strained, but dropeth like the gentle dew from heaven."

Dora Shaw, an unfortunate woman of the tenderloin, who has been confined at the county jail for interperence and kept at the poor farm for treatment for sickness lately, finds the Shakespearean saying a truism.

Dora's Checkered Career.

Dora has been in and out of the jails of Butte time and again, and lately, when sent from the county jail to the poor farm because of the illness that she is wasting away with, she left the farm with a male inmate who had become possessed of some money and desired to go on a spree.

Mrs. Duffield visited her in the jail and succeeded in persuading her to go to the refuge at Helena. Then Mrs. Duffield visited the county recorder and superintendent of the poor farm and the county commissioners, and requested them for transportation to Helena for Dora, and to and from for an attendant, Dora not having the strength of character left to go to Helena without an attendant.

The Commissioners Blessed.

When Mrs. Duffield appeared before the commissioners to make her request, Chairman Clark said that he believed he voiced the views of the board in saying that the commissioners were always pleased to assist in such good work as Mrs. Duffield had in hand, and the transportation was ordered at once.

Mrs. Duffield said it might be Dora's last chance of reform, and she left the commissioners' room calling down a blessing on their heads for their charity.

BUTTE ARTIST WHO HAS WON PINNACLE

wonderful art studio, with its countless Indian relics at its East Woolman street, today was the illustration which is to form the frontispiece of the book.

"Ralph Connor" is the pen name of Rev. Charles W. Gordon, who is the pastor of St. Stephen's church at Winnipeg. Winnipeg was originally old Fort Gary, and the book is about the early days at the fort, the school days of the first settlers.

A Frontier School House.

The frontispiece drawn by Mr. Paxson, which is to be in black and white, as are all the others, illustrates an incident in the early part of the book. The scene is the presentation of a watch to the schoolmaster by two scholars selected by their mates. One is a boy and the other a girl, and the boy is to make the presentation speech while the girl delivers the watch.

The picture shows the schoolmaster standing up in expectancy at the home-made desk in the little old log school house, while the boy fishes in his trousers for the written statement of his speech, which he put away carefully in his pocket and forgot about till up before the pedagogic, and the girl stands waiting for her cue, holding the watch under her apron.

The illustration is a faithful and speaking portrayal of a frontier school, and has character and humor. Mr. Paxson will finish the illustrations for the book in a short time, as he has the work well in hand.

His Famous Indian Scenes.

Mr. Paxson's Indian pictures illustrate the novel just issued by a publishing house in Chicago for the Rev. Mr. Henry of this town—the book called "By Order of The Prophet, a Tale of Utah."

He has a new Indian picture on an easel in his studio nearly completed. It shows a buffalo chase by Indians down from the hills into the bed of a stream, after a rain. There is effective landscape in the picture.

The light is very fine. It is very beautiful on the hills, and the soft light from the sky where the clouds have broken away is exceedingly natural, while the Indians, the buffalo, the rocky steps and the water in the stream are striking and picturesque in the extreme.

Mr. Paxson's Indian pictures are becoming more popular all the time, and there is a growing demand for them. At present he has his hands more than full of work, and it is a treat to visit his studio and see the paintings. His depiction of the American aborigines is said to be the truest to life of any yet drawn in America, with the probable exception of those of another Montana artist, Mr. Charles Russell of Great Falls.

QUONDAM HERO NOW MEASURES OUR TEA

Then he was a hero and they raised a hue and cry O'er the "boy who killed the burglar," and they doffed when he passed by. They toasted him, they painted him in colors fair and bright; All praised the nifty chap who shot the burglar in the night.

Then he was the children's idol—the protector of the home; He had slain the fell marauder single handed and alone. They would send him off to college; give him medals all of gold. They would be his humble servants when down fame's highway he strolled.

HUGH AN DERSON,

Who July 29 Shot and Killed a Burglar Who Had Robbed the House of S. H. Treloar, No. 823 West Granite.

Now his great deed is forgotten and the promises they made; Now he walks not in the sunshine but in the forgotten shade. The burglars have departed, Butte will need his help no more, So he humbly plys his calling in a corner grocery store.

All this is not about a hero in a fairy tale but of Hugh Anderson, a modest young man of Butte, who several weeks ago killed a burglar whom he caught in the act of robbing a house on the West Side.

At that time nothing was too good for him. The council declared he would be voted a substantial reward; citizens said they would raise a purse to send him to college at Ann Arbor; friends declared they would present him with a handsome medal.

But with the hieera of the housebreakers the excitement died. The council laid the matter of a reward on the table; citizens felt secure and forgot that burglars ever existed; friends who were going to subscribe the medal—they claim to be his friends still and as for the medal—Oh, well, medals are tacky things at best.

Hugh Anderson is modest. He did not invite the notoriety which was so suddenly heaped upon him nor did he ask for any of the promised favors. He still pegs away at his work in the West Side grocery. "I am going off to college about September 1 if my plans do not fail," said young Anderson this afternoon. "I never paid much attention to all the things that were said about rewards and medals, and I am not very much surprised that they all fell flat.

"I have made my way in the world thus far and I guess I can paddle my own canoe. Of course I appreciate the praises I got when they were sincere, but I dislike to be placed in the light of a charitable object. I would not have refused a scholarship at Ann Arbor had the people chosen to send me there but now I shall work my own way through."

BANQUET CLOSSES ANNUAL MEETING

SONS OF ST. GEORGE GATHER ROUND FESTAL BOARD AT FINLEN—TOASTS AND SPEAKERS.

There were things doing at the Sons of St. George's banquet last night at the Finlen hotel. The banquet was given under the auspices of Victoria lodge No. 332 as a happy conclusion to the annual meeting of the grand lodge.

Over one hundred members of the order sat around a table loaded with all the category of good things to eat.

Dr. T. B. Moore proved himself a graceful toastmaster. At the conclusion of the opening ode A. F. Bray responded to the toast, "Our Order—Its Sons." Mr. Bray recalled the days when he had suggested the organization of the Sons of St. George. He said that while its members are of English birth they are now Americanized, holding a love for both countries. The speaker then paid a high tribute to the Anglo-Saxon race and said that where the stars and stripes didn't wave the union jack did.

Among other speakers were W. R. Tonkin, who proposed the toast: "Our Home, the Treasure State;" H. L. Frank, who paid a glowing tribute to "Montana;" E. A. Ford, who proposed the toast, "Our Country and Our President," and Hon. Lee Mantle, who responded to this patriotic toast.

The next meeting of the grand lodge will be held in Centerville at St. George's hall.

STRIKERS FORM GUARDS TO PROTECT SOLDIERS

Reports Say the Warnke Washery Has Resumed Operations Under Strong Guard—Strikers Quiet.

Tamaqua, Pa., August 20.—The battalion of the Twelfth regiment encamped at Manila park, near here, spent a quiet and uneventful night. None of the strikers ventured near the camp during the night.

Today the striking miners strung a cordon of guards on the outside of the sentry line of the camp. They say they have done this to better protect the soldiers and to keep their own men out of the camp. A dispatch from Wilkesbarre, Pa., is to the effect that the Warnke washery at Duryea resumed operations today under a strong guard. The strikers have not gathered in any large numbers as yet.

Inventor of Revolver Dead.

Lancaster, Pa., August 20.—Joseph Shirk, inventor of the Colt revolver and of the grain cradle, died today at his home near here, aged 83 years.

IRVIN SAYS THEY HAD BETTER QUIT

MAIL BOX AGENTS WHO USE HIS NAME WILL GET INTO TROUBLE.

Postmaster George Irvin is trying to learn the identity of the man or men who are advertising reception boxes for mail at the expense of the local postoffice.

"There is somebody going around in Butte telling the housekeepers and the owners of homes that I have authorized the use of a certain make of receptacles for mail," said the postmaster this afternoon. "Now, as a matter of fact, the postal authorities require that receivers of mail be placed at each house. It is not designated what these receivers shall be like; they can be boxes or they may consist of ordinary slits in the doors. It is not a fact that some one is selling mail boxes to the householders, but the way in which they are selling them.

"The party evidently represents some company that has a patent on a certain kind of box. He tells the people that I have indorsed the use of that particular make and that the government will have no other.

"Somebody is liable to get into trouble if the use of my official position for private purposes isn't stopped."

PICKPOCKETS PLYING TRADE

John Dolan Is Relieved of Valuable Watch While in a Restaurant.

There are evidently some pickpockets in the city. Last night John Dolan went into Baker's restaurant in South Main street to satisfy his craving for something to eat, and when he came out he was minus his gold watch and chain. He says his pocket was picked.

The watch was valuable, as was also the chain, the latter alone being worth $65.

CHINKS AND OPIUM CROSS THE BORDER

SMUGGLING LIVE CELESTIALS AND THEIR DEAD-DEALING DRUG IS BIG BUSINESS

FLATHEAD MAN SAYS THE SITUATION IS SERIOUS

Sheriffs Along Border Line Are Kept Busy Chasing Chinamen, Who Camp Just Across in Canada and Watch Their Chance to Slip In—Lively Chase for Couple Who Hid in the Hills.

"Up in our country around Kalispell they are doing a good business smuggling Chinamen over the border," said D. G. Burnham of Gateway, Flathead county, at the Thornton today.

"Few people understand the number of Celestials smuggled into the country over the Canadian line during the year. We have been holding them down pretty closely up our way, but every once in a while two or three get through.

"I'll bet there's a thousand pounds of opium at Kalispell in the Chinese joints there that never paid a cent of duty in coming into the United States. That's the other feature of the smuggling game.

"Opium and Chinamen are the two contraband articles that are being brought over the border free of duty right along. Just before I came down, the officers of Kalispell had a lively time chasing two Chinamen who had come in from Canada and were sneaking into Kalispell.

Always Ready to Sneak In.

"You know there are Chinese camps all along the line on the Canadian side, and the Chinks without certificates of residence put up at those camps first, and there they watch their chance to sneak into this country.

"The two Chinks who gave the sheriff and his deputies such a run before I left there came from one of those camps. The officers got word that they were headed for Kalispell and they went out to meet them, but the Chinamen dodged them and kept out in the hills. The officers spent three days chasing them, and one of the Chinks had got a job on a ranch cooking and had just gone to work when the sheriff found him.

"The thing that gave him away was his inability to talk much English. The rancher was cussing him for a fool because he couldn't understand anything when the sheriff and a deputy rode up to get lunch at the ranch.

He Gathered John In.

"When the sheriff saw him he asked the rancher how long he had been on the ranch. The rancher told him a day and a half, and that the Chink was going to get fired right then because he didn't know anything. The sheriff took him in charge under suspicion, and found he was one of the Chinks he was after.

"The other Chink was caught near Tobacco Plains while he was heading for the Canadian boundary again.

"It's easier to smuggle opium in than Chinamen, because the drug can be hidden in vegetable carts and hay wagons and stowed away in all sorts of receptacles, while a Chink is too big for that. It will be a long time before they break up this business I'm afraid."

Contagious Blood Poison

Is the name sometimes given to what is generally known as the BAD DISEASE. It is not confined to dens of vice or the lower classes. The purest and most moral people are sometimes infected with this awful malady through handling the clothing, drinking from the same vessels, using the same toilet articles, shaking hands, or otherwise coming in contact with persons who have contracted it.

It begins usually with a little blister or sore, then swelling in the groins, a red eruption breaks out on the body, sores and ulcers appear in the mouth, the throat becomes ulcerated, the hair, eye brows and lashes fall out and, as the blood becomes more contaminated, copper colored spots and pustular eruptions and sores appear upon different parts of the body, and the poison even destroys the bones.

S. S. S. is a Specific for this loathsome disease, and cures it even in the worst forms. It is a perfect antidote for the powerful virus that pollutes the blood and penetrates to all parts of the system. Unless you get this poison out of your blood it will ruin you, and bring disgrace and disease upon your children, for it can be transmitted from parent to child.
