The manual training class would like to have something to build. At present they have nothing to work on; so if the people have anything they want to be made, as chairs and piano benches, the class would like it very much.

Marjorie Sharrard spent the week end with Florence Wood. They attended the Basket Social at the Lower Belt school given by Edna Burrows.

ATHLETICS

In the boys' basketball class series, played November 22 and 23, the seniors won first place. The soph- omores placed second while the juniors placed third and the fresh- men fourth. The accurate and snappy basket shooting of Jay and the good guarding of Skinny and Les won the game for the seniors. Both sophmores and seniors had good defense.

The high school girls are playing their class series this month.

SOCIAL NEWS

A business and professional meet- ing of the normal club was held last Monday. The business meeting was first, then the professional meeting. At the professional meet- ing Miss Sifford began reading the book, "Understood Betsy". This is a very good book for the students as it contrasts good and poor methods of child training.

After she had read as much as she had the time to, she called on different members of the club to give their opinions upon it, that is, to tell why it is good, and discuss what she had read.

The Dramatic Club held its third meeting Tuesday night at 8:00 o'clock. The program consisted of a business meeting and the dividing up of the club. The evening was spent in studying.

The roll was called and the students responded by giving a name of a modern play.

GRADE NEWS

Edmund Anderson, Robert Frisbee, and Harvey Sabo won in a spelling contest held between the second and third grade.

Louise Johnson and Leslie Wins- ton had the most one hundreds in the third grade for this month and Lyle Vendsell and Edmund Anderson won in the second grade.

The pupils of the eighth grade have started chore charts. The monitors inspect the pupils in their rows as to condition of hands and arms, face, neck, ears and general appearance. Results have been very satisfactory.

The three leaders in the eighth grade spelling contest are Pauline Dorchak, Alice Klimas and Pauline Soha.

The fourth grade has started the study of the Northwestern States. No one has been tardy in the Fifth grade so far this year.

The boys of the Fifth grade had 100 per cent. for attendance last month.

The health records of the Fifth grade are improving.

Margaret Gago and Robert Anderson are on the Fifth grade honor roll for the month of November.

VOCATIONAL CONFERENCE

The Montana State College an- nounces the State Live Stock Judg- ing Contest as a part of the Young Men's Vocational Conference which meets January 31, February 1 and 2

Due to the fact that the N. P. and G. N. railroads furnish free trans- portation to three young men from each high school on their lines it will be possible for students in the Agriculture Dept. of the Belt Valley High School to attend this con- ference. This opportunity to at- tend the conference is just another proof of the efforts being put forth by large corporations to get the young men of this state interested along agricultural lines. Speakers and instructors are being employed from various parts of the country for this conference. A large attendance is expected.

The Misses Myrtle Skadsen and Ablanda Pfrimmer were passengers on Wednesday's train to the county seat.

Belt Park visitors in town the past week were: Mr. and Mrs. Albert Schoberg, Dave Thomas, George James, Mrs. George Camp, Sal Gonsler, Joe Anderson, Glen Griffin, Tom Westlake, Archie and Francis Hunt and Guy Camel.

Tenny Kelleher and brother, Frank passed through town Wednesday en- route to Nelhart.

Mr. Brown who has charge of the W. H. George ranch was a business visitor in town Wednesday.

Miss Anna Griffen who has been attending high school at Great Falls came home Thursday to spend Thanksgiving with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Glen Griffen.

Mr. and Mrs. W. A. Day of Naan spent Thanksgiving at the home of their son, Robert Day.

Mr. and Mrs. James Brazee en- tertained Mr. and Mrs. Harlock at a Thanksgiving dinner.

Howard Wixson who has been at- tending the Belt high school came home Thursday to spend Thanksgiv- ing with his parents, Mr. and Mrs. W. H. Wixson.

Mrs. F. J. Gies and children of Great Falls spent Thanksgiving va- cation at their cabin here.
