Easter rabbits are a-sitting on bright-colored Easter eggs; Easter chickens are a-stretching their thin, yellow Easter legs; Easter lilies are a-blooming, sweet and white for Easter day; Easter maidens are a-dancing, gay, that will make Easter gay; Easter music is a-tuning, ready to make Easter glad; Easter bells are multiplying, sure to vex the Easter dad; Easter weather now would heighten all the bliss of Easter joys; Easter sunshine would enliven Easter girls and Easter boys; Easter lambs can hardly venture to supply our Easter feed; Easter warmth is now the foremost, urgent, pressing Easter need; Easter morning is approaching with its wealth of Easter thrills; Easter gladness, though, is doubtful if we get more Easter chills.

IT IS GREEN

The county commissioners have their new carpet. It was initiated yesterday and, very appropriately, it is green. St. Patrick, himself, could not have selected anything greener, and the hue illumines the commissioners' room until it rises and clashes with the blue of the mural decorations. But it carries out the scheme of nature, which places green grass under our feet and blue sky over our heads—sometimes. That is the only defense which the commissioners offer for the color scheme which the carpet introduces into their business room. The carpet is so green that its narrow black border loses all its effect. But it deadens the noise, and that was its purpose. The commissioners are no longer interrupted in their deliberations by the scraping of chairs and the tramping of feet upon the tiled floor. They can proceed with the consideration of their business without contracting nervous prostration. And they are well pleased with the innovation. If folks don't like the color of the new carpet, they should remember that it is installed on St. Patrick's day and that it is the commissioners' room which it carpets. If the color scheme is offensive, folks don't have to look at it.

Missoula was patriotic yesterday in its display of green. Limerick would have been proud of the display which was made here. There were all the necessary signs that it was St. Patrick's day. Even without the commissioners' carpet there would have been green enough in town to go around. The little lapel emblems were generally worn and were in the usual variety. The green carnations were in favor and many people donned them. A bunch of them came to the Missoulian office early in the morning from the R. & S. flower store. Even the grapefruit which was served yesterday was green, and that is going about as far as any community in the world could go. And the show windows were given up largely in the morning to the display of green and gold. But last night the show in the windows along the avenue assumed a new hue; it was the beginning of the week's display of Easter wares. The gowns and the hats and the flowers were everywhere in evidence. The men's stores were no whit behind, and there were shown the very latest bifurcated Easter wares. It was fine to look upon. Last night the strollers about town were all interested in the windows; there were groups before all the displays. And, though it might have been indignation, it seemed that the weather became milder.

Manager Dullman of the Missoula Nursery company is busy this week slipping orchard stock. CARLOADS OF TREES are going out in carloads, advertising Missoula all along the line. One carload of cherry trees was shipped Saturday to Idaho, where the fame of the Montana Bing has reached. Other western shipments will follow this week; the cars are being loaded now. The local shipments, to the Bitter Root and eastern Montana, will follow soon. There will be a good many trees sent this month to the reservation valleys. "The demand has been good for Missoula-grown stock," said Mr. Dullman to the Man About Town. "Our inspection is so close here that other states know our stock is clean. We will not have enough, I am afraid, to fill all the outside orders which have come in, though we thought we had a supply that was ample for all the requirements of the market. The call for sweet cherries is great this year. There will be more cherries planted this season than ever before, if our orders are any indication. The call for apple trees is good, too. We are going to have the heaviest shipping season we have known."

There are many people who go for their mail these days and discover that, from force of habit, they have gone to the old postoffice without thinking where they were walking. For the first few days there were scores of these absent-minded people. Yesterday there were not as many. The town is getting the habit of going to the new building now. But last week it was amusing to watch the folks who walked up to the entrance of the old building, they would stop, look around to see if anybody was watching, and then pretend they had errands somewhere in that vicinity. They all acted the same way.

HOUSECLEANING DAY BOARD WILL FIGHT INJUNCTION

COMMISSIONER PRICE CLEARS PAVED STREETS AND WILL MAKE ALLEY INSPECTION.

Yesterday's weather was sufficiently softening to make it possible for the crew of men employed by Street Commissioner Price to make considerable headway in clearing off the accumulated snow, ice and dirt on the paved streets. The work is being carried on along Higgins avenue, Cedar street and South Third street. "There are a few patches of ice which still refuse to let loose," said Mr. Price yesterday, "but with this kind of weather continuing another day or so we will have all of the paved streets absolutely cleared. It is almost alley-cleaning time, too," said the commissioner, after he had answered the telephone over which he had received numerous complaints on the carelessness on the part of some families in throwing garbage about the alleys and streets. Tomorrow Mr. Price will begin an inspection of the city and will have things lined up by the time the frost is out of the ground to order the city's annual house cleaning commenced. There have been some complaints and some deplorable cases of carelessness and neglect, but the city as a whole is in a much cleaner condition this spring than last. Mr. Price says that the spirit of cleanliness is growing apparent among the property holders, and even to renters, and he does not anticipate any trouble in having the city ordinances relating to clean alleys and the disposition of garbage carried out this spring.

COUNTY COMMISSIONERS TAKE UP CASE AGAINST THEM AND DO NOT WORRY.

The county commissioners were in regular weekly session yesterday and spent a busy day, all members being present. The board considered the injunction suit which was filed against them last Friday, and in which temporary restraining orders to prevent them from completing the purchase of 80 acres for the fairground site in South Missoula was issued. The case was at once taken up with County Attorney Heyfron, and the intention of the board is to fight it strenuously. It is considered spite work on the part of several who had urged the purchase of the west side ground, and at least two of the commissioners feel sure that the efforts of the plaintiffs named in the action will but temporarily delay the purchase of the ground for the county fair and the carrying out of such plans as had been made for the improvements and erection of buildings this season.

The board yesterday received and approved the bonds of most of the newly appointed road supervisors and of the members of the county high school board and the board of county examiners.

BOUCK CASE DRAGS.

The damage suit of J. H. Bouck against the Anaconda Copper Mining company was taken up again yesterday morning in department No. 1 of the district court and continued throughout the day. At the time of adjournment there was still several witnesses to be examined before the defendant will close its case.

MEN ARE ARRAIGNED FOR ABUSE OF HORSES

John Spangler and John Houtchins were arrested yesterday at the instance of Will Cave, acting for the Missoula Humane society, on a charge of over-driving two horses belonging to Dwyer Brothers' livery. The men were arraigned before Justice of the Peace William Dyson. They took the statutory time of 24 hours in which to plead.

It is alleged that the two men took the horses from the livery barn Tuesday morning, March 11, to ride to Bonner after some other horses and they brought them back so badly used up that one of the horses cannot recover to be used within a month or six weeks. Both horses were bruised from their saddles and torn by spurs as well as badly lamed, according to the statements made by the owners last evening.

FORGER SENTENCED TO SERVE ONE YEAR

Robert McMeekin, found guilty of forgery after trial in department one of the district court last week, was sentenced by Judge Duncanson yesterday to serve one year at hard labor in the state penitentiary. McMeekin forged a number of small checks and did a very crude job at imitating another man's handwriting. He offered to plead guilty after his arrest, but the court refused to allow him to do this, and appointed an attorney and the trial proceeded.

LARGE IS AUDIENCE TO HEAR SERMON

EVANGELIST ABERLEY AT THE CHRISTIAN CHURCH PREACHES THOUGHTFUL SERMON.

The evangelistic service at the Christian church last night was one of interest from beginning to end. Every part of the program centered around the theme of the Cross. The song service conducted by Professor Ridenour prepared the hearers for the great message that followed from Mr. Aberley. The special solo last night was "Would You Believe?" Professor Ridenour's voice is strong and melodious and his enunciation is such that every word and thought of the music are distinctly understood. It is evident that the purpose of the evangelistic campaign is educational as well as inspirational. The leader of the forces endeavors to instruct his hearers in the great fundamental principles of the Christian religion. And those who follow him closely will certainly be greatly edified in Christian truth as revealed in the word of God. The theme of Mr. Aberley's discourse last night was "The Tragedy of Calvary." He said in part: "From time immemorial thoughtful men have pondered over this question, 'Why must Christ die?' It was not because of the cowardice of Pilate, the hatred and malice of the priests, the display of the mob, the cruelty and avarice and selfishness and inconstancy are all well understood. But from the divine standpoint, why was the death of Christ necessary? Jesus did not die to satisfy the wrath of an angry God, as some have taught. Such a thought is a travesty on the gospel of Christ's love. Christ's death was to proclaim the justice of God and His hatred of sin. Calvary manifested God's willingness to pardon a guilty world and proclaimed supremely His love for a sinful man; and the divine purpose to bring the race to a sinless destiny and hence an immortal life of happiness in heaven."

Mr. Aberley's language is rich both in Biblical phraseology and classic allusions. Last night he used as one of his main illustrations a very touching interpretation of Charles Dickens' "Tale of Two Cities."

Service Tonight.

Tonight the theme will be "The Power of the Gospel." Special music arranged by Professor Ridenour. The service will begin at 7:45 o'clock.

CLAIM FOR DAMAGES IS REDUCED BY JURY

Ira L. Fredericks was given a judgment of $150 against the city of Missoula last night, when the jury which had heard the evidence in the damage case on trial before Judge Patterson returned a verdict at 6:30 o'clock. The plaintiff alleged that property she owned on Toole avenue had been damaged by the improper cutting and lowering of street grades. She asked $425 damages in the complaint.
