FROM AUSTIN.

Special Correspondence of the Dallas Herald.

AUSTIN, Texas, Feb. 23, 1873.

Editor of the Herald:

The most important topic of discussion here is, and has been, the brutal assassination of the Hon. Louis Franke, a member of the House of Representatives from Fayette county. The deceased was much respected and beloved for his kindly and generous qualities, both of head and heart. He had no enemies. Upright in all his dealings, genial in deportment, a good friend, a loving husband, a kind father and an exemplary christian, he has passed away without a stain on his record, to that higher House "not made with hands eternal in the Heavens." So far, his have not been discovered, nor is there any good reason to believe they ever will be, from the bungling manner the authorities have adopted to ferret out the perpetrators. The cool deliberation and audacity displayed stamp the murderers as professionals; yet men are arrested who neither have the motive nor nerve to commit the [illegible] while doubtless the guilty ones are cooly looking on arithmetic, joying the farcical examinations. As an example: Mr. John Fitzgerald, a gentleman of Houston, well known there and related to some of our best citizens, summoned to testify in a contested election case, was arrested and submitted to a long cross examination, and finally turned loose. Others have been treated the same way. Our authorities should at least have some probable cause to make an arrest before they thus interfere with the liberty of the citizens.

The committee to examine the

still plods along. The accused is allowed to be present, but very few facilities are extended to prove his innocence—if innocent he is. Certain it is that there is a screw loose somewhere. I have talked with teachers, male and female, and their unanimous testimony is that had they no friends to rely on, they must have starved. In two cases the parties have received no pay since last April! It is well that the Legislature should assure teachers that they will be paid, and it would be better if that august body, instead of donating lands to railroads, donated a little of their massive intellect to expediting the cashing of school warrants.

I have spoken of

RAILROADS.

The feeling here seems to be decidedly antagonistic to giving away immense slices of the public domain to speculators in railroad stock. This feeling has cropped out, and, in spite of subsidized presses, little presents, petits soupers, &c., &c., the lobby mill finds material in the House not so easily moulded as that in the Senate. The is especially unfortunate, not only in the selection of its lobbyists (by courtesy attorneys) and agents, but just at the wrong time we find Fremont's swindling transactions, affecting the Transcontinental Branch, while the Southern Pacific portion is universally admitted, by lobbists themselves, the very creature of fraud, corruption and bribery. These two (the Transcontinental and Southern Pacific,) combined as the Texas Pacific railroad, are prepared to bid and pay liberally for votes, and will buy by "rings" or single members, as thought best. Is not Tom. Scott at the helm?

COL JOHN R. BAYLOR'S

speech on the frontier, was straight forward, manly and convincing. You may expect, as one of its effects, a speedy provision for the protection of the frontier by the Legislature. I am glad to note that your Representative, the Hon. J. Henry Brown, is in earnest in this matter. He has much weight in the House, and deservedly, for all his suggestions are marked by sound sense and are eminently practical. The grand comes off Monday, a special train leaves at eight in the morning arriving at Houston at five. The guests lay over until Tuesday, when another special train carries them to Galveston, arriving at 12:30. Unprecedented preparations have been made by the Galvestonians—everything is free, hotels, dramshops, street cars, and steamboats. It is to be hoped that "ye solons" will have a good time, a high old time—while the State goes to protest the first day of March, A. D. 1873. Verily, "Nero fiddled while Rome burned." SALLAD.

Did not Hang.

A Hendersonville, N. C. correspondent of the Herald, writes, Oct. 25th:

Over five thousand people were assembled here to-day for the purpose of witnessing the execution of Martin Baynard, one of the murderers of Silas Weston and his three children, but were doomed to be woefully disappointed. All the preparations were made, and scaffold was in readiness, and the crowd had been arriving from all quarters for several days to witness the tragedy. During his imprisonment, the wife of the condemned man was faithful, constant and devoted in her attendance upon him. The night that was to have been the last of Baynard's earthly existence had arrived, and upon the earnest, [illegible] and sorrowful entreaty of his wife [illegible] as new the jailer compassionately allowed her to pass the remaining hours of his life with him in the cell. About 6 o'clock in the morning the woman came to the jail door to be let out with her bonnet drawn down over her face and a handkerchief pressed down over her mouth, through which her heart broken sobs burst as the jailer passed her through the outer door of the prison. She walked slowly off with a feeble gait, bowed figure and wailing pitifully, giving vent to her grief, and she was soon lost to the sight of the gaping and morbidly curious spectators. Breakfast time came at 8 o'clock, and the confident and compassionate jailer, with a meal—the last the doomed man was to have eaten, comprised entirely of tempting delicacies, repaired to the cell. The bar was moved and the heavy doors were swung back, and the jailer entered, when a sight that made him shake like an aspen leaf, met his astonished gaze. In the further end of the cell, instead of the condemned man, crouched up in the corner, was a woman in her night clothes. The plates and the dishes with the breakfast fell from the jailer's hand to the cell floor and were broken into fragments. He tried to speak, but could find no words for utterance, and as he stood in actual dispair the crouching figure arose, and, in the tones of a woman who thinks she has done a praiseworthy action, said, "Well, as Martin is gone, I reckon I had better eat the breakfast," and she forthwith began picking up the scattered portions of the meal. Baynard had escaped in his wife's clothes, and was doubtless by this time far beyond the reach of the county officers. The sheriff, as soon as apprized of the circumstances, set out in pursuit of the criminal with a posse, but in vain; for after scouring the country for miles, they returned without their prisoner. The assembled crowd gave expression to their chagrin in various ways, none the least of which was an anxious desire on their part to see the woman hanged in the place of her husband, and indeed many of them were firm in the impression that such would be the case. Having come to see "a hanging" they were not particular as to who the victim was, whether guilty or innocent as long as their morbid curiousity was gratified.

ENJOYMENT OF LIFE.—It is singular to what an extent people believe happiness depends on not being obliged to work. Girls are considered well married if their husbands are wealthy, and boys considered well cared for if enough can be left them for support, and enough surplus for them to play business with. Bosh! Honest, hearty, contented labor is the only source of happiness, as well as the guarantee of life. The gloom of misanthropy is not only a great destroyer of the happiness we might have, but it tends to destroy life itself. Idleness and luxury induce premature decay much faster than many trades regarded as the most exhaustive and fatal to longevity. Laborer in general, instead of shortening the term of life, actually increases it. It is the lack of occupation that actually destroys so many of the wealthy, who have nothing to do but play the part of drones, and like them, make a speedy exit, while the busy bee fills out its day of usefulness and honor.

The proprietors of two principal hotels at St. Paul lately refused Fred. Douglas a seat at their tables, on account of his color, and the excitement was great in consequence. The legislature threatened to remove the seat of government as a punishment to the hotel-keepers, and all the members boarding at those hotels left en masse. The only result was that Douglas got an immense crowd to hear his lectures on "Caste."

OBITUARY.

MEMPHIS, Feb. 21, 1873.

WHEREAS, It hath pleased our Heavenly Father to remove from our circle and mortal association our fellow student and loved companion, Wm. B. Miller, therefore Resolved, That in the death of our beloved associate, Mansfield College has lost one of its best and brightest ornaments, the teacher an agreeable and obedient student, the pupils a lovely and gentlemanly companion and associate, the church a pure and consistent member, the State one of its best citizens.

Resolved, That we will imitate his virtues, and hold in sacred remembrance his goodness of heart and christian bearing during his stay with us.

Resolved, That we sincerely condole with his parents and relations, for whom he manifested such intense affection, in this great and irreparable loss, knowing that it is his eternal gain.

Resolved, That we request the faculty of Mansfield College to suspend labor until Monday morning in respect to his memory.

Resolved, That we request the Dallas HERALD to publish these resolutions and a copy be furnished the family.

Resolved, That we wear the usual badge of mourning for thirty days.

Unanimously adopted by the students of Mansfield College.

JOSEPH NUGENT, Secretary.

The former home of Thomas Jefferson, located on the Monticello Mountain, near Charlottsville, Virginia, is in litigation at present before the Supreme Court of Virginia. It is well known that Mr. Jefferson expended a large fortune in a lavish hospitality, and died poor. Monticello, his estate was sold and purchased by Commodore Levy, of the United States navy. Commodore Levy devised the estate, at his death, to the United States, as trustee, for the purpose of establishing an agricultural school for the children of warrant naval officers, whose parents were dead. In aid of this scheme he also devised three hundred thousand dollar's worth of property in New York. In the event of the trust being refused by the United States, he pruvided that the State of Virginia should act as the trustee for purposes named, and in the event of the State of Virginia not accepting the trust, he devised the property to the Portugues Hebrew congregations of New York, Philadelphia and Baltimore, for the benefit of the children whose fathers were dead. His legal heirs brought suit in New York to set aside these provisions of the will. The court of New York declared the charity too indefinite, and that the United States could not take the property as trustee. Virginia not being a party to that suit, instituted a suit for its recovery as secondary trustee. The case is at present being exhaustively argued in the Supreme Court of Virginia, now in session at Richmond.—Cincinnati Commercial.

A YOUNG LADY SUED FOR BREACH OF PROMISE.—A novel case is on trial before a jury in Montreal, the plaintiff being a dentist named Mathieu, who brings suit against a young lady named Laflamme, for refusing to comply with the terms of a marriage engagement into which she had previously entered. This is said to be not the first time which she violated the tenor of the golden rule, and it is reported that, to prove her malice afore thought, and the deliberation with which she ruthlessly snapped the tooth puller's heart strings, her old discarded flames will advance in solemn procession and give evidence against her with the view of establishing the fact that she jilts with methodical regularity. It is also alleged that the fair lady gave her affianced, the too confiding dentist, notice of the change in the thermometer of her affections only a week previous to the day appointed for the ceremony; and further that the doctor, in the fullness of touching faith in her eternal constancy, had provided a house and purchased the clothes in which he was to be married.

A CHRISTIAN LADY WEDS A JEWISH GENTLEMAN.—Yesterday afternoon an interesting ceremony was performed at Meyer's Music Hall, in the presence of a very large assemblage of ladies and gentlemen. It was the uniting in marriage of a former Christian lady to a gentlemen of the Jewish faith. The name of the gentlemen is Mr. S. Reichzenstein, and that of the lady was Miss Emma Brape, both of Council Bluffs, and the officiating priest was the Rev. E. Hertzman, of the same place. After a prayer, the priest asked the bride if she renounced the Christiain religion, and professed a belief in the Jewish faith. Upon replying that she did, the marriage was then performed according to the custom of the Jews, and the new name of Sarah was given to the bride. After the marriage the newly united couple and their friends adjourned to one of our first-class resturants and joyed an elegant and luxurious we[illegible] serve is repast.—Omaha Bee, 13th.

Jim. Nye's sands of Senatorial life nearly run out, but he still persists his little joke. The other day on hearing of Mr. Patterson's intention to go before Poland Committee again and "explain" his letter of January 4, 1873, to Oakes Ames, Jim strolled over to New Hampshire Senator's desk, slapped him on the back and uttered winged words as follows:

"Patterson, if I wanted to take out a patent for a d—d fool, I'd send you to the Patent Office as my model."
