Steinway Pianos.

At Will A. Watkin & Co.'s, 737 Main street, is the only piano made in the world that pleases EVERYBODY—the only piano in the world that is used by all the finest artists, and the only piano in the world that positively manufacture all of the component parts in their pianos. Buy one and get the best piano and the acknowledged world's favorite.

Court Notes.

In the district court yesterday Douglass McKenzie, Jesse McFarland and Emmet McCoy each received a sentence of two years' hard labor in the penitentiary for burglary. The county attorney, in each case, entered a nolle prosequi as to indictments for theft. This is light punishment for house-breakers—murderous invaders of "sacred" homes. It costs some less fortunate specimens of humanity almost as much to go to sleep without permission.

Bucklen's Arnica Salve.

It is guaranteed to give perfect satisfaction or money refunded. Price 25 cents per box. For sale by W. H. Howell & Bro.

Is Consumption Incurable?

Read the following: Mr. C. H. Morris, Newark, Ark., says: "Was down with abscess of lungs and friends and physicians pronounced me an incurable consumptive. Began taking Dr. King's New Discovery for Consumption, am now on my third bottle, and able to oversee the work on my farm. It is the finest medicine ever made." Jesse Middlewart, Decatur, Ohio, says: "Had it not been for Dr. King's New Discovery for Consumption I would have died of lung troubles. Was given up by doctors. Am now in best of health." Try it. Sample bottles free at W. H. Howell & Bro's.

PITH AND POINT.

The man who wants the earth and compromises on Rhode Island, is not hard to please.—Whitehall Times.

The business man who is ruined by a love for whisky generally finishes off with Sheriff's ale.—Pittsburg Chronicle

Mr. Tourgee's new novel is entitled "Button's Inn." It is not a story for bachelors. They want Buttons On.—Norristown Herald.

Mary Anderson is to appear next September in "A Winter's Tale." Oh, no, not as an icicle. Whatever put that idea in your head?—Boston Transcript.

A yacht, a keg of beer, a fool and a lot of women and children make up a combination which generally calls for the services of the Coroner.—Chicago Herald.

The remark was deemed inevitable at the first signs of discontent on the part of the Crows, but no one has yet observed that if the Crows want to fight they have plenty of caws.

The fool killer takes no summer vacation, the ice-water fool, the unripe fruit fool and the beer-and-whisky fool keeps him busy all through the hot weather.—Philadelphia Press.

The subject of "The American Bar" is attracting daily attention in the Eastern press. It receives considerable attention here, but mostly closes at midnight.—Cincinnati Enquirer.

If Eve had worn bangs, a bustle and a big hat when she first burst upon the sight of Adam, that gentleman would have run away from his boarding house and taken to the woods.—Fall River Advance.

"In literature there seems to be a man constantly catching our ideas," said a writer. "Yes," some one rejoined, "and the trouble is that he catches them before you do."—Arkansas Traveler.

I see that X, the millionaire, is dead. I wonder to whom the property was left? "As the will is being contested I think it is left to conjecture, but the lawyers will probably get it."—Texas Siftings.

It was shown in a Tennessee divorce case the other day that the wife's life was made miserable by the husband, who was so jealous that he wouldn't permit her to sit on the hired man's knee.—Sunday Herald.

"That man may not be a pugilist," remarked a hotel proprietor after a stormy interview with a guest who kicked at the amount of his bill, "but I'm darned sure that he is a price-fighter!"—Arkansas Traveler.

When an Irishman went into a Chinese laundry and told the Mongolian in charge to hurry up his washing, because he hadn't a clean shirt bosom to his back, that was a bull in a China shop, wasn't it?—Texas Siftings.

It is said that the Prince of Wales is an expert performer on the banjo. Who wouldn't be a prince? Nowadays if a man plays a banjo for his own amusement he is liable to get hit with a brick, but with a prince the case is different, he can plunkity-plunk-plunk on his instrument of torture, without danger of getting killed.—Peck's Sun. "Weeping Joe" is the title of an evangelist who has appeared in Indiana. It is said that "he weeps copiously when he thinks of the millions of souls that are going to hell." If Joe intends to keep up a flow of tears at the existence of sin in the world, he should be utilized as a water-power, in which capacity he would prove very valuable.—Chicago Times.

How Girls Sit down.

The variety of complicated chairs in the theater make it a matter of concern to get safely seated. To women the problem is rendered futher difficult by bustles. A Sun reporter watched two girls as they took places in front of him. These girls having found their places with reasonable directness, looked at them carefully and turned round. They could not well twist their necks about as the dog does, to see that they do not escape their mark, but they settle slowly, with an undulatory motion, after the manner of the cat. That great tournure you know, is elastic as well as rigid, and it only needs that it be crushed in the right way for it to resume its original form without accident when the pressure is released, but if a sideways pressure is exerted upon it it becomes a critical moment for the dress. Now, it does not follow that a girl can sit directly down upon the tournure with safety to it. It is a recalcitrant creation and resents being driven. It may be coaxed, but an attempt to subdue it at one fell swoop is likely to end disastrously, for it will slip away to one side, and then, if it is not hopelessly out of place, the wearer will have to begin all over again. So the girls had to come down slowly, waving their bodies from side to side, bringing pressure to bear upon the tournure gently and finally insinuating themselves into their chairs when the bustle wasn't thinking.—New York Sun.

Saving a Nickel or Dime

on this article or that don't signify, but It Has Been Proven in the management of all institutions, either large or small, that it is the looking after or neglect of little things that tends to the building up or breaking down of any kind of business. It must be remembered that all large things are made of small ones, and no one need hope for even a moderate success in life who will not learn to save the nickels. On account of the frequent changes in the market we do not quote prices, but can assure you that we will at all times sell at
