ANNOUNCEMENT.

The most sensational story of Chinese underworld life ever shown on the screen will be seen at the Grand Central Theatre Tuesday and Wednesday, January 14 and 15 when "The Midnight Patrol," Select Pictures' great special attraction produced by Thomas H. Ince, is shown. At the time the story begins, Mr. Fang, a notorious leader of the Chinese district of a big western city is plotting with Jim Murdock, a corrupt politician, to receive a shipment of opium. The one man whom they fear is Terrence Shannon, who has been made Sergeant of the Chinatown police squad as the result of which many successful raids he has undertaken. Shannon is in love with Patsy O'Connell a young lady who has charge of the Chinese mission house. In order to keep Shannon out of the way on night the shipment of opium is expected, Murdock tells him that they have captured Patsy and will learn her unless Shannon keeps out of the way. Terrence, however, believes that duty comes first. He calls his assistants together and plans to raid Mr. Fang's den on the night the shipment arrives, and at the same time to rescue Patsy. In order to gain entrance to Mr. Fang's den it is necessary for Shannon to employ "chink" Ross, a white man, whom Mr. Fang has turned down. Leaving word with an assistant to bring help if he is not back within a certain time, Shannon and Ross descend through a secret entrance and surprise Mr. Fang and his gang. A fight follows and Shannon is overpowered. Murdock is furious to think that Shannon should have undertaken the task and orders Mr. Fang to throw him into a pit filled with live rats. Just at the nick of time the reserves arrive. Mr. Fang is killed and Murdock is taken prisoner, leaving Patsy and Shannon free to complete a very pretty love affair.

See it at the Grand Central Theatre 2 days, Tuesday and Wednesday, January 14-15. Admission for adults 15c. Ten year old children 10c.

GREW FROM ROMAN COLONY

City and Fortress of Cologne Has Figured Prominently in the Pages of History.

A fortress of the first rank, and a place of trade and manufacture, Cologne is one of the most important cities in Germany. It lies in a vast semicircle on the left bank of the Rhine, some 45 miles north-northwest of Coblenz, and, as the center of a network of railways, it has direct communication with all the chief cities of Europe; whilst along the broad waters of the Rhine its ships may go down to the sea. At the time when Julius Caesar was leading his legions over Gaul, in the first century before the Christian era, Cologne was the chief town of the Ubii, and was known to the Romans as the Oppidum Ublorum. Here, in A. D. 50, a Roman colony was planted by the Emperor Claudius, in honor of his wife, Agrippina, and given the name of Colonia Agrippina. It rapidly rose to be a place of importance, and, under the emperors, had the privilege of the Jus Italicum. Then came the decline of the empire, and with it the outlying Roman city began to feel more and more the pressure of the Frankish hosts, as they moved steadily westward. The city was taken by the Franks in 530, but they did not permanently occupy it until the fifth century, when, in 475, it became the residence of the Frankish king, Childebert.

NOTHING TO WORRY ABOUT

George Really Couldn't Get Interested Over Probable Loss of Another Person's Boat.

They were tossing about on the wild and restless air in a small open boat, at least a hundred feet from the beach. He was struggling manfully to battle with the surging waves and to pull for the shore; she was sitting in a heap in the stern of the frail bark, holding on like grim death and mentally vowing that she would never again be tempted by her sweetheart's daring spirit to venture so far from land.

"I know we shall go over," she shrieked, as the boat gave another lurch. "Oh, George, try and manage it!"

"I will," replied he firmly. "I could get along splendidly if the waves didn't make it go all ways at once. Don't be afraid, Sarah. We're getting nearer, aren't we?"

"A little. Oh, George, what shall we do if the boat is lost?"

"Don't worry yourself about that, my dear," said George soothingly. "You mustn't upset yourself about other people's business. It isn't our boat."

And he continued to fight with the cruel, remorseless waves.—Rehebooth Sunday Herald.

Prince of Writers of War.

In Valenciennes there is a statue of Jean Froissart, prince of war correspondents, who was a native of the town. Froissart came into all the splendor of the medieval life of Valenciennes, the streets crowded with knights and soldiers, priests, artisans and merchants, and the churches and houses rich with stained glass and precious carvings. There were air-festivals, masques, tournaments and moralities every year. Instigated by his sovereign, he set himself to write contemporary history. He would describe a battle more vividly than any of his contemporaries. He wanted to know everything; liked to get the story of a battle from both sides and many points of view, and wanted the details of every little cavalry skirmish, every capture of a castle, every gallant action and brave deed. A good journalist, he forgot nothing. "I had," he says, "thanks to God, sense, memory, good remembrance of everything, and an intellect clear and keen to seize upon the facts which I could learn."

Truth About the Desert.

The French, who have been the greatest explorers of the desert, have corrected many false ideas about the desert. The most conspicuous and persistent of these errors has been the notion that the desert is a vast area of sand. The French have proved that this is not so. In fact, only about a fifth of the Sahara is covered with sand.

The greatest desert in the world is about as large as the United States and Alaska together. The sand areas in the desert are somewhat larger than Alaska; and the rocky tablelands forming a part of the desert are somewhat smaller than the United States. In other words, the Sahara is made up of about 700,000 square miles of sand and 2,500,000 square miles of rocky surface.

Lawmaking Bodies.

Any legislative or lawmaking body may be called a congress or parliament but different countries have different names. France has a national assembly, with two houses called senate and chamber of deputies. Belgium has senate and chamber of representatives; Spain has a cortes, with two houses, senate and congress; Denmark has a rigsdag with upper house called landthing and lower house folkthing; Italy's a parliament with senate and camera di deputati, or chamber of deputies; Sweden a diet, with first chamber and second chamber. All the South American republics, being modeled on the government of the United States, have a congress composed of two bodies, senate and chamber of deputies.

MT. HEBRON TO HAVE REVIVAL SOON.

At Mt. Hebron Baptist church, corner Main and Walton, a big revival will be held soon, the date of which will appear soon. Rev. R. W. Shaw, pastor states that a bloody battle will be pitched soon against Satan and his big army.

Mr. Sidney Waller of Muskogee, Oklahoma, came in Tuesday night on a business mission. He was musty shaking hands with friends Wednesday.

Great Special Attraction!

Two Days, Tuesday and Wednesday, Jan. 14-15

"THE MIDNIGHT PATROL."

Which is a story of life in the colorful Chinese quarters of a Western city, was produced by Thomas H. Ince. It shows the work of the police in the district, the bravery of the blue coats in facing great danger, and the cunning and stealth of the Orientals and white men of the underworld who live by their wits and misfortune of others. Although melo-dramatic, the story is told with fine restraint, and its never mawkish or overdone. Two of the principal characters are Patrolman Terrace Shannon, a good looking young policeman of the better type and Patsy O'Connell, a brave Irish girl, who is in charge of the Chinese Rescue Home. These two characters are well played by Thurston Hall and Rosemary Theby. Both players are well known for their excellent work in other pictures, and their acting in the "Midnight Patrol" will be shown.
