

pages give me the writers names: my self is not disgraced by any of such rank absurdity, that their very authors are ashamed to own them." He was interrupted by the judge, who said "Sir, you are forgetting the respect which you owe to the dignity of the judicial character." "Dignity!" exclaimed Mr. Curran, "my lord, upon that point I shall cite you a case of some authority, with which you are perhaps not unacquainted.—A poor Scotchman, [Strap in Roderick Random] upon his arrival in London, thinking himself in-sulted by a stranger, and imagining that he was the stronger man, resolved to resent the affront, and taking off his coat, delivered it to the by-stander to hold; but having lost the battle, he turned to resume his garment, when he discovered he had unfortunately lost that also, that the trustee of his habiliments had decamped during the affray. So my lord, when the person who is invested with the dignity of the judgement seat, lays it aside, for a moment, to enter into a disgraceful personal contest, it is in vain, when he has been worsted in the encounter, that he seeks to resume it—it is in vain that he endeavors to shelter himself behind an authority which he has abandoned." Judge Robinson—"If you say another word, sir, I'll commit you." Mr. Curran—"Then, my lord, it will be the best thing you'll have committed this term."
The Judge did not commit him—but he was understood to have solicited the bench to interfere, and make an example of the advocate, by depriving him of his gown, and to have received so little encouragement; that he thought it most prudent to proceed no farther in the affair.

CENSURE THOUGHTS OF MATRIMONY, BY A SAILOR.
When a couple of fond, faithful lovers launched by Hymen, sail through life prepared for all kinds of weather; when in every shifting part of changeable years, they guide their vessel by the ruler of reason; when they carefully avoid the rocks of imprudence, and run no risks by prohibiting commerce; when they perfectly understand each others trim and never make false signals nor hang out false colors; when they can tell to a hair, when to traverse or tack; to advance and to retreat; to preserve themselves steady, though Syrens attempt to seduce, be well ballasted ahead, and secure their hearts against the top-gallant delights of the age, which never fail to engage the fresh water fry; when they keep their rebellious passions under hatches, that they may not make a frightful explosion, and give a shock to the pillar of conjugal happiness; when they in every dispute, on the stern of the head, are never ill-mannered, though they are sometimes tenacious of their respective opinions; but by skillfully watching the tide, conduct their barque safely through the straits of contention, when they know at all times, how to regulate their behavior, to give a broad side, or to return a salter; when they cautiously avoid the shoals of a dubi-ty by which first rates and frigates are frequently demolished, when they cut their cables on being drawn into gaming, and sail away with all their sails spread, from the gulph of ruin, in which thousands and ten thousands are tum-bled, lost and totally destroyed.—We may venture to say of this pair, that they will make a very conjugal voyage through life, and stand a very fair chance to die in the harbor of felicity.

Dancing.
MR. GENERES has the honor of informing his present and former scholars that his practising evenings will commence on Saturday next from 6 till 10 o'clock in the evening.
No strangers will be admitted without an introduction from his scholars, or their parents.
Mr. Generes flatters himself that the parents of his former and present scholars will often favor him with their company.
Young gentlemen will not be permitted to dance in boots.

cholas's confectionery. He avails himself of this opportunity to offer himself to their notice, not doubting that by many years experience, and by having a regular connexion in London in order to be informed of the fashions as soon as they appear in that town, with a strict attention to business to deserve their future support, as all orders will be thickly received and executed in the first style.

than the price of the cloth, FOR CA-being on commission. He also makes above articles in the neatest manner & newest fashions, 12 per cent lower than former prices, for cash.
N. B. As it has not been a custom of to settle up accounts at the new year, I it my duty (being compelled) to make a neral call on every one that is indebted me, I hope therefore they will be prepa-
